The second question did not admit of so ready an answer. The conditions under which trade here and at home is conducted are so widely divergent, and the nature and cause of the majority of insolvencies so entirely different, that at first sight the mere fact that the Bill is drawn on the same lines as the English Act carries with it a presumption of possible unfitness. A closer examination of its provisions, however, shows that in its leading principle of official control over bankrupt estates it is in a great measure a return to what has long been recognised as one of the best features of the present Indian insolvency law. The signal failure in operation and the gross malpractices perpetrated under the Bombay Act for speedy liquidation,—XXVIII of 1865,—which was a distinct departure from this principle, is still well within the memory of several members of the Chamber; and there can be no question that efficient control by responsible, qualified officials must be a fundamental principle of insolvency legislation in India. The absence of the separate supervision exercised in England by the Board of Trade need not, in the opinion of the Chamber, interfere with the effectual working of the Act so long as careful provision is made in the rules that only thoroughly competent officials are appointed to responsible posts, and that they are placed under the guidance and direction of the Court.

A very marked difference between the law of insolvency here and in England exists in imprisonment for debt being still maintained in India. In the opinion of the Chamber it would be unadvisable as yet to deprive creditors in this country of that power. There are no doubt weighty arguments in favour of following English legislation. Amongst the poorer classes their personal liberty in reality constitutes the security on which they are able to obtain advances; and were the power of utilizing that security once removed the ability of contracting debts beyond their means of repayment would be done away with also, and much unnecessary extravagance in the shape of expenditure on marriage and other festivities—which accounts for a considerable proportion of the insolvencies amongst the lower classes—would thus be avoided. In other words, by removing the power of getting into debt, people would be compelled to live within their means. While admitting this as regards the poorer classes, the general opinion amongst merchants and bankers is decidedly adverse to the abolition of liability to imprisonment for debt from a mercantile point of view. The change would be too radical, and, by altering the basis on which business has been conducted in this country from time immemorial, might seriously interfere with the ordinary course of trade. As to whether or not the Bill in its present form fully contemplates the existence of imprisonment for debt is more a question for skilled lawyers than a body of laymen, and the Chamber therefore would content itself as regards this point by merely expressing the opinion that it cannot be too carefully considered.

So far as Bombay is concerned—and the same probably holds good in the other Presidency towns—one of the greatest disadvantages which creditors have to contend with is the facilities which fraudulent debtors have for escaping from the jurisdiction of the Court by absconding into Native territory. Amongst a certain class of Native traders—and that by no means the lowest—this is a very common means of evading punishment, and owing to the ease with which it can be accomplished it tends greatly to encourage fraudulent bankruptcy. The Chamber quite appreciates the serious difficulties there are in the way of bringing about a remedy, but it would earnestly solicit the attention of Government to this point. Once made it possible for the writ of the Bankruptcy Court to take effect in Native States, and reckless trading amongst Native dealers will have received a deathblow which no other form of legislative enactment could administer.

The Chamber observes that the draft Bill omits the disqualification of a bankrupt to hold certain offices, as provided under Part II of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883. The advisability of this omission the Chamber is very much inclined to question, as there is no doubt that, especially amongst Natives, the holding of certain appointments carries considerable dignity, and the deprivation of these as the direct result of bankruptcy might have a wholesome deterrent effect. In the opinion of the Chamber the Bill should provide for the disqualification of a bankrupt for holding the following positions where not already settled by existing Acts, namely :—

Member of the Legislative Council.
Justice of the Peace.
Member of the Town Council or Municipal Corporation.
Member of a Port Trust or Harbour Board.
Director of a Joint Stock Company.

The eligibility of bankrupts for these offices after obtaining their discharge might be made dependent on the nature of the bankruptcy as certified by the Court.

Taking each section in order the Chamber begs to submit the subjoined remarks :—

Section 5 (1) (d).—In addition to this clause the Chamber considers it important for the due protection of creditors that in the case of a firm which has carried on business at a place where a Bankruptcy Court exists, and has partners where there is no such Court, the estate should be wound up at the place where the Bankruptcy Court is, and the partners elsewhere should be liable to have their assets at once taken possession of by the Official Receiver. Further that, if a firm so constituted becomes insolvent, the act of insolvency of any one partner should render all other partners, wherever situated, insolvent also, and liable to have their property attached by the Court.

Section 8.—The Chamber is of opinion that this section should provide that in the case of a debtor with no available assets the Court should not be able to give a complete discharge, but should have power to compel him to proceed with his insolvency. An interim order might be granted in the first instance, but revoked unless the debtor proceeded with the insolvency when called upon to do so.

Section 12.—The advertisement giving notice of the receiving order should, the Chamber thinks, be published in at least one of the leading local newspapers in addition to the Government Gazette, and this suggestion should be made applicable in every instance where notice by advertisement is provided for, notably in section 19, (5), section 27 (5), section 30 (3).

Section 15.—As the time fixed for submitting a statement of a debtor's affairs seems very limited, it is suggested that under sub-section (2) (i), where an order is made on the petition of the debtor, ten instead of three days should be allowed, and where the order is made on the petition of a creditor (ii) the time be increased from seven to twenty days.

Section 16.—The Chamber is of opinion that there is no necessity for making the public examination of a debtor compulsory where a compromise has been agreed upon, and it would therefore ask that the following be added to sub-section (1) :—

"Except that in cases where the majority of creditors in number and three-fourths in value are prepared to accept a compromise, the public examination of the debtor may be dispensed with."

Section 17.—In all cases of compromise or composition the Chamber deems it most important that the creditors should have the fullest possible information before them as to the true state of the debtor's affairs; and it seems desirable, therefore, that the following words should be appended to sub-section (3) :—

"with a full statement of the debtor's affairs."

Section 21. the Chamber recommends, should be entirely omitted from the Bill. It may be that in England, where the books of an insolvent are in English and information as to an estate can be obtained without much difficulty, a committee of creditors may prove of considerable assistance in securing a favourable liquidation; but the experience of those who have been concerned with bankrupt estates here is of a contrary character. In all probability it might lead to the appointment on committees of creditors favourable to the debtors, as was found to be the case in working Bombay Act XXVIII of 1865, which was admittedly a complete failure as a means of advantageous liquidation.

The omission of this section and the abolition of committees of inspection would necessitate some alterations in the wording of subsequent provisions of the Bill. For instance, the Chamber suggests that section 50 should read :—

"The trustee may, with the permission of the Court, and after such notice to creditors as the Court may prescribe, do all or any of the following things"; and in sub-sections (3) and (4) of the same section, (2) of section 51, (1) of section 57, and (1) of section 63, the word "Court" should be substituted for "committee" or "committee of inspection."

Section 24.—The desirability of arranging to secure the arrest of an insolvent who has taken refuge in a Native State has already been alluded to, and, if that be practicable, provision would have to be made for it under this section as also under (2) of section 26.

Section 25.—The same provision as for the redirection and delivery of letters should be made for telegrams.

Section 27 (5) allows 14 days' notice only to creditors of the day fixed by the Court for hearing a debtor's application for discharge. This would be insufficient for creditors out of India, and the Chamber would recommend one month's notice being allowed.

Section 27 (6).—The Chamber suggests that a decree passed by the Court against a debtor when making an order of discharge should be in favour of the Official Receiver only, his office being continuous, while a trustee might have to leave the country at times under very short notice.

Section 34 (5).—Considering that the current rate of interest in India is 9 per cent. as compared with a per cent. in England, the rate of interest payable out of surplus funds, as provided for in this clause, might fairly be increased from 4 per cent. as proposed to 6 per cent. per annum.

Section 36 (1).—The Chamber is of opinion that the preference extended to a landlord's claim for rent under this section is unduly large. It thinks that no power of distraint should be granted after bankruptcy, and that he should not be entitled to a preferential claim for more than four months' rent, subject, moreover, to assets of that amount belonging to the insolvent's estate being on the premises.

Section 52 (2).—After the words "application of" the Chamber suggests the insertion of the words "the trustee or."

Section 64 (3).—It would be well to have the "prescribed officer" mentioned in this clause defined, as it is important to know in whose hands the very responsible power of regulating the charges may be placed. It is also suggested that "leave of the Court" be substituted for "proof of such taxation having been made," before payment.

Section 67.—Having regard to the constant fluctuations in the value of Government securities, it seems to the Chamber that if it could be so arranged it would be preferable, instead of investing surplus funds in Government paper, to hand them over to the Accountant-General, who on behalf of Government should pay 4 per cent. interest on the amount. Such interest, moreover, should go to the separate estates, or, in other words, be for the benefit of the creditors, who are frequently kept out of their dividends for long periods pending the decision of suits and disputes. The system adopted under the English Act, and sought to be introduced into this Bill, of utilizing the interest obtained on funds held during liquidation towards minimising the fees payable in bankruptcy, has rather a tendency to favour debtors to the disadvantage of creditors.

Section 70.—In addition to rendering it incumbent on a trustee to grant a creditor inspection of the books kept in connection with the liquidation of an estate, it should also be provided that creditors should have free access to the books of the insolvent. It should be further arranged that an experienced and trustworthy staff of Native mektas or accountants should be maintained on the staff of the Court (either attached to the Official Receiver or Trustee), through whom reliable translations and extracts from books kept in any of the Native languages could be obtained. Great difficulty is experienced in obtaining information of this character under the existing law, and a creditor employing an outside mekta for the purpose of searching a debtor's accounts always runs the risk of the man being bought over by the other side.

Section 88 (3).—It appears to the Chamber somewhat anomalous that a Judge of the Small Cause Court should not have the same power to commit for contempt as is granted to the Court under section 23, clause (4). The omission of clause (3) is accordingly suggested.

Section 103.—The Chamber would be in favour of raising the limit for small bankruptcies from Rs. 3,000 to Rs. 5,000. In estates within the latter sum it is very unlikely that cases of fraudulent books, &c., will occur requiring the more complicated machinery of the previous portions of the Act; nor does it seem necessary that the examination of the debtor be insisted upon, as provided under clause (c).

From H. BATTY, Esq., Under-Secretary to Government, Bombay, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 784, dated 5th February, 1886).

WITH reference to your letter No. 113, dated the 18th ultimo, I am directed to forward, for submission to the Government of India, copy of a letter from the Acting Prothonotary and Registrar of Her Majesty's High Court, Bombay, No. 21, dated the 28th idem, and its accompaniments, regarding the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

From G. H. FARRAN, Esq., Acting Prothonotary and Registrar, High Court, Bombay, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bombay,—(No. 21, dated 28th January, 1886).

WITH reference to your letter No. 4005, dated the 1st July, 1885, I am directed by the Hon'ble the Chief Justice to forward the accompanying report on the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, prepared in accordance with his Lordship's directions, and to state that the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bayley, who has been for some years presiding over the Insolvent Court, approves generally of the same.

From G. H. FARRAN, Esq., Acting Prothonotary and Registrar, High Court, Bombay, and C. A. TURNER, Esq., Official Assignee, Bombay, to the Hon'ble the Chief Justice, Bombay.

IN accordance with your Lordship's directions we beg to submit the accompanying remarks on the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Remarks.

Protection from arrest.—The proposed Act, which is principally taken from the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 now in force in England, where imprisonment for debt has been abolished, provides that the receiving order shall have the effect of protecting the debtor from arrest in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy. It does not contemplate any opposition on the part of creditors at this stage, but deals only with the granting or withholding of a final discharge. In Bombay, where imprisonment for debt is still permitted and no protection is afforded by the vesting order under the present Act, the chief object of the majority of insolvents is to obtain immunity from arrest at first by means of interim protection-orders, and afterwards by obtaining their personal discharge under section 47, after which they but rarely trouble themselves about applying for their final discharge; while the principal object of the opposing creditor is to prevent an insolvent from obtaining such immunity, in order that he may be able to secure better terms by making use of his power of arrest. A practical result would be that the large proportion of petitioning debtors, who come to the Court for the purpose solely of obtaining protection from arrest, would have no object in proceeding with their petitions, and would probably neglect to take any further steps after the receiving order was made. To remedy this it is suggested that the Court should have power both (1), to dismiss petitions for want of prosecution, and (2) to cancel so much of the receiving order under section 8 (1) as gives protection from arrest. It would also seem necessary that the Court should have power to direct the discharge from jail of a debtor imprisoned before the making of the receiving order: there does not appear to be any provision to this effect in the proposed Act.

Adjudication of bankruptcy.—The change made by the proposed Act with respect to the adjudication of bankruptcy is highly advantageous. Under the provisions of the Act in respect to that subject it will be possible to have debtors adjudged insolvent before they have had time to dispose of all their property, and creditors will in all probability make use of those provisions more and more if the Act is found to work well. It is very important that adjudicated insolvents should (1) make the statement required by section 15 and (2) come up for the public examination directed by section 16. Debtors who have been adjudged insolvent almost invariably abscond from Bombay into Native States, and there is no power under the present Act to compel their return. Such a power extending throughout British India is given by section 24 of the proposed Act; but as absconding debtors almost invariably abscond to Native States it would largely increase the efficacy of the Act if it were found possible to extend that power to Native States also.

Composition with creditors.—The change made by the proposed Act with respect to composition with creditors is also beneficial. The present Act is silent on the subject, and the result is that documents purporting to be assignments in favour of creditors hastily executed just before the date of the vesting order are often set up with the effect of either entailing troublesome and expensive litigation, or of keeping from the Court all power of investigating the insolvent's affairs, even though a majority of creditors may desire such investigation. Considering, however, that the public examination of debtors will in many cases involve the disclosure of affairs of creditors which they may naturally object to be made public, power might be given to the Court in cases of composition with creditors to dispense with the public examination of debtors when a sufficient majority of creditors desire or consent to it.

Property of bankrupt.—The words of section 38 (1), which deals with the property of the bankrupt, are not so wide as those of section 7 of the present Act, and it is important, especially when dealing with property in the Mufassal or outside British India, where the law is imperfectly understood, that the words of the Act should clearly and distinctly cover the property of the bankrupt, whether within British India or without.

Discharge of bankrupt.—Under the present Act there are two sorts of discharge that can be granted to an insolvent by the Court—(1) freedom from personal imprisonment for debt, and (2) freedom from liability of after-acquired property. It is one of the greatest faults of the present Act that a separate application has to be made for each, and the Court at the hearing of the matters of an insolvent's petition under section 36, where all the facts regarding his conduct are before it, makes no order as to the latter but only as to the former sort of discharge. In Bombay the principal object of the debtor in coming to the Court is to obtain his personal discharge, and the object of an opposing creditor is either to force the insolvent to buy off his opposition or to induce the Court to dismiss his petition. The reason is that a creditor in Bombay in opposing an insolvent is invariably working in his own interest and not in that of the general body; and he considers that if the petition is dismissed he will succeed in obtaining a greater portion of the insolvent's property than if it were distributed by the Official Assignee. The power of dismissing petitions given by section 47, and used as a penalty for misconduct, encourages this system. The proposed Act will effect a great improvement in this respect, as under it the Court will consider the whole question of the insolvent's course of dealing and conduct, and will either grant him his discharge (conditional or otherwise), or punish him under the Act itself.

Penalties.—The provisions of sections 27, 105 and 107, which deal with penalties and punishments, are much more severe than in the present Act. It may be noted that a bankrupt cannot under them obtain an unconditional discharge more than once, and, if undischarged, he is liable to be punished by imprisonment if he obtains credit to the extent of Rs. 200 without informing his creditor. There is a class of penalties under the English Act which has been omitted from the proposed Act, namely, disqualification of a bankrupt to hold certain offices. It, however, seems desirable that no penalty should be omitted which may have the effect of causing the mercantile community to regard bankruptcy as a disgrace, which in Bombay, since the share mania, they have to a great extent ceased to do. And for this reason it would appear advisable to make the disability to hold certain positions which may be regarded as honourable the direct result of bankruptcy.

Decrees against bankrupt.—Passing a decree in favour of the trustees against the bankrupt is a punishment often enforced in England in cases where no assets are forthcoming in the bankruptcy. The practice in Bombay has been to pass such a decree in every case, and, considering the great facilities bankrupts have in this country for concealing their property from the Court, that practice seems a good one, as affording a ready way of recovering from the bankrupt after his discharge property that he may be shown to be possessed of without having to prove that it was concealed at the time of the discharge. It would probably be found more convenient if such decrees were passed in all cases in favour of the Official Receiver, as a trustee might not be forthcoming some years after the bankruptcy when required to act. Such decrees should also, if possible, be exempted from the operation of the law of limitation as provided in the present Act, as it would be manifestly impossible, as well as useless, for the Official Receiver to take the necessary steps for keeping all such decrees alive, and equally impossible to foresee in what cases it would be desirable to do so.

Procedure.—The procedure under the proposed Act will largely increase the work of the Court—an essential feature of the Act in the public examination of the bankrupt in every case. During the last three years there have been on an average over forty petitions presented each month, which under the proposed Act would entail an equal number of public examinations, for the taking of which the time at present allotted for sittings in insolvency would be wholly inadequate. The provisions of section 99 of the English Act, or such modification of them as may be considered proper, might with advantage be inserted in this Act, and work of a formal nature, such as taking such examinations in unopposed cases, granting receiving orders and other work of a similar nature, relegated to an officer of the Court. In any case, whether the public examination be taken by the Court or by an officer, the provision in section 16, by which the notes of examination are to be signed by the debtor, might, with advantage, be omitted, as it would involve not only the loss of time occasioned by reading over and interpreting his deposition to a Native witness, but, especially in the case of a debtor subjected to a searching examination, may result in a refusal to sign the notes as taken down or an endeavour to retract previous admissions or statements.

Unclaimed dividends.—The proposed Act provides (section 132) for the payment of any unclaimed dividends under it to the bankruptcy estates account, but omits the provision contained in the corresponding section of the English Act as to the disposal of the unclaimed dividends under the present Act. These unclaimed dividends in Bombay amount to upwards of eight lakhs, of which between two and three lakhs are in respect of proved claims in estates in which redistribution has been already made under Act XXVII of 1841, and which cannot be further distributed under any Act now in force. The remainder is to a large extent made up of dividends in respect of debts admitted by insolvents in their schedules as due, but which have not been proved, and are for the most part unprovable; and it is doubtful whether these dividends can be distributed under the Act of 1841. Section 7 of Bill No. 3 of 1881, which was intended to remedy this state of circumstances, has never become law, and it therefore seems necessary that some means of dealing with those funds should be provided by the proposed Act. The interest upon the first class of those funds at least might be applied towards the general purposes of the Act; otherwise there may be a difficulty at first in working the proposed Act, unless a very high scale of fees is adopted.

Appointment of Official Receiver.—Under the present Insolvent Act the Official Assignee can only be removed from office in the cases specified in section 18. By the proposed Act the removal of the Official Receiver will depend solely on the pleasure of the Chief Justice. There does not appear to be any reason why the position of the Official Receiver should be less independent than that of the Official Assignee, or his tenure of office less secure.

A few remarks dealing with some of the sections more in detail are annexed.

Appendix.

Section 2. Regarding application of section 48 to England.—Section 48 could hardly be made applicable to England, but nevertheless cases may arise in which onerous property in England may become vested in the trustee in India. Is not some provision necessary to provide for disclaimer by the trustee in such cases?

Section 21 (3).—The committee of inspection might very well be dispensed with, or at all events confined to cases in which an order is made under section 20, sub-section (2).

In cases in which the Official Receiver is acting, reference to the Court for necessary powers and authority will be more satisfactory and cause for less delay than to committees of creditors.

Sec 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, s. 28.

In that event some such words as the following might be added to section 21 (9):—

“by and with such notice to such creditors as the Court may think fit to direct.”

Section 24.—As has been already pointed out, the value of this section would be very greatly increased if it enabled debtors absconding to Native States to be also arrested.

In any case, however, the section would seem to be incomplete, as it does not distinctly provide for the case of a debtor who may have actually absconded from the local jurisdiction of the Court to some other part of British India, but only deals with the case of a debtor who is “about to abscond with a view,” &c.

Section 34 (1). Municipal rates.—Port-trust dues, &c., are at present only entitled to dividends.

Sub-section (5). Interest after payment of principal in full.—As decrees in India carry interest at 6 per cent., in the same way interest after the receiving order should be allowed in India at 6 per cent. also.

Section 36.—Section 36 of the proposed Act gives a landlord the power to exercise, with certain restrictions, his right of distraint upon the property of the bankrupt for rent due. This right was taken away by the present Act, and the change will considerably hamper the Official Receiver when an estate first comes to his hands. Landlords, on the insolvency of their tenants, often put padlocks on the godowns or premises let to them, and claim a lien for rent; and as rent in Bombay is heavy, and the value of the goods so locked up uncertain, such claims, even under the present law, are not easily disposed of. The proposed change is, we think, to be deprecated; but if it is considered that the landlords should have any preferential claim, it would be more convenient to allow a preferential claim for two months' rent (not exceeding the value of the goods on the premises let by them) under section 34, and leave the law otherwise unchanged.

Section 38, clause (2).—The words "wearing-apparel and bedding" are hardly sufficiently wide. In India cooking-pots, &c., are more necessary even than bedding. The words of the Act 11 & 12 Vic., cap 21, section 7, are "wearing-apparel, bedding, and other such necessities."

Section 51 (2).—The distribution of a dividend depends almost entirely on the creditors and not on the trustee.

The words "shall be declared and be payable" might be substituted for the words "shall be declared and distributed."

As to the period of four months prescribed by this section for the declaration of the first dividend, see note for section 99.

Section 57 (2). Allowance to bankrupt.—We think the allowance to a bankrupt should be limited both as to amount and as to duration. The limit we would propose is Rs. 100 per month extending over not more than ten months.

It must be remembered that in all bankruptcies the bankrupt himself has always influence in the liquidation of his estate.

A considerable body of the creditors, either through friendship or relationship, or because they have received, or expect to receive, special preference, are always ready to support the bankrupt.

In large estates there will always be danger of candidates for trusteeship making a bid for the bankrupt's influence by promise of a good allowance if they are appointed.

Some limit of time is necessary, or an insolvent in receipt of a good allowance will be tempted to protract the liquidation of his estate.

Section 61. Official Receiver's report.—Before the discharge of any bankrupt under section 27 of the new proposed Act, the Official Receiver has in every case to prepare a report, which has to be taken into consideration by the Court at the hearing of the bankrupt's application under that section. In order to make such reports of any value, the Official Receiver must (in cases of insolvency of traders) have the assistance of experienced Native accountants capable of themselves reading and understanding Native account-books.

Account-books in Bombay are kept not only in different languages and character, but even on different principles, varying according to the particular trade or business carried on by the bankrupt or to the skill or ignorance of the mehtas employed by him.

The accountants would have to be high class men, well paid, and in the regular employ of the office (not engaged for any particular estate), to ensure trustworthy performance of their work.

The examinations of account-books so made would be of the greatest value both to creditors who might wish to oppose and also to the Court itself at the hearing.

This would, however, seem to be a matter to be dealt with by rules under the Act, and not in the Act itself.

Section 65 (5).—We do not consider that this provision can be of any value in India.

Section 67. Investment of moneys.—Under this section investment is made out of the "bankruptcy estates account" generally, and not out of the moneys belonging to any particular estates, and the whole interest so realized is appropriated for the general purposes of the Act (section 67 (3)).

Were it possible to distribute the moneys to creditors as quickly as is contemplated in the Act, there would be no great hardship in the present provision. In Bombay, however, considerable sums have always to be reserved to meet the possible costs of the litigation that invariably ensues on any large insolvency proving unsuccessful, and (as has already been pointed out) claims of creditors cannot be quickly adjusted.

It would be hard on creditors that money so locked up should not be invested for their benefit.

Perhaps the simplest way would be to leave the provisions of the Act as they are, and out of the interest accruing under the provisions of this section (67) to allow interest at 4 per cent. on all sums paid into the "bankruptcy estates account" until dividend is declared.

Section 88.—It appears from paragraph 29 of the draft "Objects and Reasons" that this section has been put in at the request of the Government of Madras. We do not think that the section can be of any value in Bombay while the High Court and the Small Cause Court are so far apart. It would be necessary to have a special Official Receiver and Registrar, with proper office establishments, to carry on the insolvency business of two separate Courts.

We believe that in 1880 both the High Court and the Small Cause Court of Bombay were opposed to the introduction of this provision.

Sections 92 (4); 124. Times.—All "times" allowed for the act are far too short; and though full power of extension is given by section 92 (4), yet the times mentioned in the different sections for each Act should, as far as possible, approximate the average time within which such act ought to be done.

There are several reasons why longer times will be required in Bombay than in England—

- (1) the Courts sit weekly only;
- (2) books of account are always in arrears, especially during the busy season, and take a long time to make up, and only a very limited number of mehtas can be employed on them at once;
- (3) traders of any importance always have goods on their way to England or elsewhere, the account-sales of which are not received for a considerable time;
- (4) no estate of any size can be realized without litigation owing to the invariable attempts made by bankrupts to conceal property or favour particular creditors; and litigation in Bombay is both tedious and expensive.

Section 99. Petitions of partners in different Courts.—Under this section we suppose petitions by partners of firms carrying on business in the different Presidency-towns would be transferred to the Court in which the first petition was filed; otherwise some provision is required on this point. See also section 13.

Section 103 (3).—Small bankruptcies under Part VII, section 103, might, with advantage, be extended to Rs. 6,000.

Where the gross assets of an estate are not more than Rs. 6,000, it would rarely be worth the creditor's while to attend meetings and take any direct interest in the winding up of the estate, nor will the estate itself stand the expenses of proceedings prescribed by the Act and by the first schedule.

Creditors may of course in such cases wish to have the bankrupt's affairs more expensively investigated, and the bankrupt himself punished; but provision is made for this by clause (c) of this section (103).

Section 116 (2).—If the suggestions contained above regarding business to be done before the Registrar be adopted, it might be convenient to provide for the remuneration of that officer also under this section.

Section 120, clause (4).—We doubt if this provision is sufficient in the case of Native States. Would it not be simpler to allow affidavits to be also made before the British Resident or Consul or Political Agent?

Lien on bankrupt's books of account by solicitors and others.—There have been several cases lately in Bombay of solicitors claiming a lien on insolvent's books of account and so making it extremely difficult for creditors to get full and free inspection of them. Such claims might, moreover, be set up in collusion with an insolvent.

Section 121 of the English Act of 1861 abolished claims for lien of an insolvent's books of account, and the same provision was made by a rule under the Act of 1669, there being power under that Act to make the rules.—See Fate Lee on Bankruptcy, page 676.

A similar rule has been made under the present English Act of 1883, but it is of doubtful validity under section 127 (4) of that Act.

It would therefore seem advisable to put the provision into the Act itself.

From F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 799J., dated 15th February, 1886).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1041, dated the 17th June, 1885, forwarding copies of the Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, with Statement of Objects and Reasons, and asking for an expression of the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion and of the opinions of such persons as His Honour might think fit to consult on the provisions of the Bill.

2. In reply, I am desirous to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the accompanying replies received from the officers and gentlemen named in the margin and the Secretary to the Calcutta Trades' Association, who were consulted by this Government, and to say that, with the exception of section 88 (1), the Lieutenant-Governor approves generally the provisions of the Bill. This section provides that the High Court may, from time to time, direct that a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court shall have all or any of the powers therein mentioned. In this connection I am to ask the attention of the Government of India to the letter from the Chief Judge of the Calcutta Court of Small Causes, and to say that, even with the assistance that this Government is about to ask should be given it, the Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, has more work on its hands than it can satisfactorily get through; and the Lieutenant-Governor is therefore averse to throwing additional burdens on the Judges of that Court.

The Chief Judge, Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, No. 68, dated the 2nd October, 1885.

Baboo Doorga Churn Law, dated the 7th September, 1885.

From R. L. UPTON, Esq., Solicitor to Government of India, to Officiating Under Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 1096, dated 3rd September, 1885).

REFERRING to your No. 1336J.D. of the 8th ultimo, I have the honour to forward you herewith a copy of the Hon'ble the Advocate General's opinion on the subject therein referred to.

OPINION.

THERE can be no doubt that the present Insolvent Act is antiquated and requires to be replaced by fresh legislation.

The Statement of Objects and Reasons very clearly and fully explains the grounds on which the proposed change in the present Insolvent Laws are rested, and deals in an exhaustive manner with the principles which are to be followed in framing a new Bankruptcy Act. I agree in the main with the Objects and Reasons, and I think it advisable that legislation here should be supported by an Act of Parliament.

The provisions of the Draft Bill are principally taken from the English Bankruptcy Act, 1883, with certain necessary modifications.

The English Bankruptcy Act is the outcome of an extended experience of years, and has, I think, been properly adopted as a model for the proposed legislation. I have doubts whether the provisions in the English Statute in relation to composition or scheme arrangement, which have been embodied in the present draft Act, will be found useful or of any practical benefit in this country.

With regard to jurisdiction, I think that up-country traders, who have had large commercial transactions, and whose estate would be more satisfactorily administered in a Bankruptcy Court, should be allowed to petition the Bankruptcy Court of the Presidency in which they have carried on business, and such Court should be vested with powers to adjudicate such persons bankrupt on their own petition if it thinks fit, the powers to adjudicate being discretionary, to be exercised according to the circumstances of the case. The objection to such a procedure would naturally be that it would be a hardship upon creditors living at a distance to follow the proceedings in a Bankruptcy Court; but such a hardship must often occur where a debtor carrying on business in Calcutta is adjudicated by the High Court of Calcutta, and has creditors up-country as well as in the different Presidencies.

The 29th August 1885.

(Signed) G. C. PAUL,
Advocate General.

From G. C. SCONCE, Esq., Officiating Chief Judge, Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 68, dated 2nd October, 1885).

WITH reference to letter No. 294J., dated 9th September, 1885, from the Under Secretary to the Government of Bengal, calling my attention to No. 1312 J.D., dated 8th July, 1885, I have the honour, after consultation with my colleagues, to say that we believe that the provisions of the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India are calculated to be of great benefit to the country.

We also approve of section 88, which empowers the High Court, from time to time, to direct that a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court shall deal with the matters therein mentioned; but we do not consider it would be beneficial to deprive a Judge of the Small Cause Court of the power to exercise in matters relating to bankruptcy and insolvency such authority as he has in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction under section 83 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts, Act, 1882, to punish for contempt.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor is already aware that the Judges of this Court are unable, in the existing state of the files, to cope with the mass of business that comes before them. Any addition to the ordinary business will necessarily occasion further arrears.

From T. T. ALLEN, Esq., Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Bengal, to Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(No. 901, dated 9th November, 1885).

IN reply to your office No. 1337 J.D., dated 8th July last, I have the honour to say that the draft Indian Bankruptcy Bill is applicable to the presidency-towns, where at present a similar law is administered by the High Court in its original jurisdiction. As I have no knowledge or experience of the working of the existing law, I am unable to form an opinion as to the necessity for, or improvements effected by, this Bill.

2. As to the mufassal, I consider the present Bill utterly and entirely unsuitable; but as there appears to be no intention to make it current there, this is no detracton from its merits.

From MAHARAJÁ the HON'BLE SIR JOTENDRO MOHUN TAGORE, K.C.S.I., to Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 31st August, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 1310 J.D., dated the 8th ultimo, forwarding, for the expression of my opinion on it, copy of a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and in reply to submit the following remarks for the consideration of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

2. The primary object of the project is consolidation. The law of bankruptcy and insolvency, as now current in India, is scattered in different Acts, which are in some respects defective, and in others discordant or not convenient; and the Bill under notice proposes to reconcile differences, to supply omissions, to remove defects, and generally so to amend and alter the present law as to make it fully suited for the requirements of the day. In so far the project is worthy of commendation. The opportunity has also been taken to make it accord with the latest English law on the subject, and provision has been made so to transfer cases from Indian to English Courts as to cause no inconvenience.

3. It is not necessary for me, however, to notice all the alterations, particularly as the hon'ble and learned gentleman who has drafted the Bill has fully and clearly treated the subject in great detail in his Statement of Objects and Reasons. I desire, therefore, to confine myself here to only those points which appear to me to require further consideration.

4. In the Civil Procedure Code Act (XIV of 1882, sections 336 and 344), relief for bankruptcy is made dependent on a preliminary arrest or imprisonment; no debtor can obtain the benefit of the law until he is taken up under an execution warrant. This mode of making relief accessible only through the gates of a prison to honest but unfortunate debtors is highly objectionable, and clause (1) of section 7 of the Bill does well in doing away with it in the case of persons residing or carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the Presidency Courts for at least a year. The limit of time fixed, however, appears to me to be too long. There are many causes which may, and not unoften do, bring on insolvency within a much shorter time, and that without any dishonest or fraudulent motive on the part of a debtor; and in such cases it is not at all desirable to insist upon a preliminary punishment. The law provides ample safeguards against fraud, and the punishment should come when the fraud is laid bare in the course of enquiry, and at the time of granting the discharge, and not precede enquiry. The provision, moreover, appears to me to be totally ineffectual as a salutary measure. A debtor who becomes insolvent in six months' time can easily avoid going to jail by getting up a creditor to petition against him, and the law is at once defeated. This applies likewise to the first part of the section, which insists upon lodgment in prison as a sine quâ non in the case of an ordinary debtor. It makes a provision which can always be circumvented, except in the improbable contingency of a debtor being so unfortunate as not to be able to get a creditor to petition against him. Under these circumstances, I am respectfully of opinion that the clause in question should be divested of the conditions attached.

5. Clause (f) of section 26 gives power to the Court to compound with the debtors to an insolvent estate; and this is as it should be, inasmuch as, however, such compositions must, as a matter of course, be effected by the Receiver or the Trustee of the estate, and more frequently by his subordinates. It would be an advantage if provision were made to give an opportunity to the creditors, or the Committee appointed by them, to appear in Court and show cause why particular compositions should not be made in the way proposed. Instances are well known of such compositions in connection with large insolvent estates having been made in a manner injurious to the interests of creditors.

6. Clause (5) of section 26 appears imperfect as it stands. There should be some provision made with reference to any counter-claim that the person concerned may have against the debtor.

7. Among the facts which would disqualify a bankrupt from getting immediate discharge, mention is made of absence of books of account for three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy (clause (a) of section 273). This would suggest the idea that the discharge would be withheld or delayed if the books of account are not forthcoming, or should extend only to one or two years. Such cannot, however, be the intention of the law in cases in which insolvency supervenes after one or two years' trading. In regard to merchants and traders, the law should be so worded as to imply a period of not less than three years in the case of persons carrying on business from a long time, and for the whole period in the case of persons who have carried on business for less than three years; as regards persons other than merchants and traders, it may be a grave hardship to demand regular books of accounts. Such people do not ordinarily keep any account of their income and expenditure; they live upon what they get, and are satisfied. They may, however, be overtaken by a sudden misfortune, such as a decree of a Civil Court calling upon a person of this class to pay heavy damages, for which he might be forced to seek the benefit of the Insolvent Court, and in such a case it would be cruel to call upon him to produce regular books of accounts, and on default subjecting him to punishment. The Court should be left perfectly free to exercise its discretion as to whether the omission is due to unavoidable or accidental circumstances, or to improper motive. The word "shall" in line six of the clause, page 16, leaves no room for such discretion.

8. I look upon clause (g) of the same section as calculated to operate harshly. There are many merchants and traders now in Calcutta who have been under the necessity through their misfortune, without any fraudulent or dishonest action, of taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act two, three, or more times, and there is no valid reason why men of that class should not readily obtain their discharge under the proposed Bankruptcy Act. The broad line of distinction between honest misfortune and fraud should never be lost sight of.

9. Clause (2) of section 46 appears to contravene to a certain extent the provisions of the current law of the country on the subject of pensions. Section 11 of Act XXIII of 1871 says: "No money due or becoming due on account of any such (political considerations or past services) pension or allowance shall be liable to seizure, attachment or sequestration by process of any Court in British India at the instance of a creditor for any demand against the pensioner, or in satisfaction of a decree or order of any such Court." This provision is repeated in several subsequent Acts, and appears last in section 266 of Act XIV of 1882, and no circumstances have since transpired to suggest a departure from it. Pensions are in theory benevolences, and to render them liable to seizure by a decree of a Court is to convert charity into civil right. They are granted by Government to provide for the support of persons who have rendered good service for extended periods, and are liable to stoppage at any time at the will of the donors, and should not on any account be treated as a fixed asset.

10. When the Bill regarding the amendment of the Courts of Small Causes in Presidency-towns was under consideration a few years ago, the public feeling was strongly expressed against a section in the Bill which proposed to vest those Courts with insolvency jurisdiction to a limit of Rs. 1,000, and in compliance with the wishes then expressed the section was withdrawn. Section 88 of the Bill now under notice renews the project in a modified form, that is, by delegation of powers by the High Court, but removes the money limit. There are cases in which such delegation would prove useful, but I would respectfully urge that the limit of value should be fixed by law and not exceed Rs. 1,000.

From BABU DOORGA CHURN LAW, to Officiating Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal, —(dated 7th September, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 1341J.-D., dated the 8th July last, forwarding copy of a draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting an expression of my opinion on it.

2. In reply, I beg to submit the following remarks on the Bill for the consideration of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

3. Time was when a bankrupt or trader who secreted himself, or did certain act with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, was looked upon as a criminal or offender, but that time has long since passed away, and the aim of legislation has of late been to afford every protection to honest but unfortunate debtors. All the insolvency and bankruptcy laws now current have been formed with this object, and the present attempt is to effect a general amendment of the law alike in the interests of general trade, and the principles of humanity and justice. The opportunity has also been taken for a consolidation of the law so as to make it most conveniently workable. The occasion has moreover been utilised to make the Indian Act accord with the latest English law on the subject, and provision has been made so as to transfer cases from India to English Courts as to cause no inconvenience. The necessity for these amendments and improvements, it is stated in the "Draft Statement of Objects and Reasons," has been frequently of late years pressed upon the attention of Government, and in my humble opinion Government does well in taking up the measure.

4. The bulk of the Bill is made up of the law now in force, with such alterations and improvements as the experience of the last four and thirty years during which the Statute 11 & 12 of Victoria, 21, has been in operation in the Presidency Courts has suggested; and as the honourable and learned gentleman who has drafted the Bill has fully and clearly explained the nature and drift of the alterations in his Statement of Objects and Reasons, there is no need for my noticing them. I shall, therefore, confine myself here to only those points which appear to me to be susceptible of further improvement.

5. For expeditious and satisfactory liquidation of an insolvent estate, it is necessary that power would be given to the Court to compound with the debtors to it, and this is done in clause (4), section 26. Inasmuch, however, as such compositions must, as a matter of course, be effected by the Receiver or the Trustee of the estate, and more frequently by his subordinates, it would be an advantage if provision were made to give an opportunity to the creditors, or the committee appointed by them, to appear in Court and show cause why a particular composition should not be made in the way proposed. Instances are well known of such compositions in connection with large insolvent estates having been made in a manner injurious to the interests of creditors.

6. The provision made in clause (5) of section 26 is necessary and proper, but as it stands it appears imperfect. There should be some provision made with reference to any counter-claim that the person concerned may have against the debtor. In all such cases the counter-claim should be fully satisfied before any demand is made. In other words, the demand should be limited to the difference between the claim and the counter-claim.

7. I am respectfully of opinion that clause (a) of section 27 (3) is likely to act with hardship. In it mention is made of absence of books of account for three years immediately preceding a bankruptcy as a ground for withholding immediate discharge. This would suggest the idea that the discharge would be withheld or delayed if the books of account forthcoming should extend to one or two years only. Such cannot, however, be the intention of the law in cases in which insolvency supervenes after one or two years' trading. In regard to merchants and traders, the law should insist on a period of not less than three years in the cases of persons carrying on business from a long time, and for the whole period in the case of those who have carried on business for less than three years. This should, however, not apply to debtors other than merchants or traders. Such people do not keep any account of their income and expenditure: they live upon what they get, and are satisfied. They may, however, be overtaken by a sudden misfortune. A decree of a Civil Court may call upon a person of this class to pay heavy damages for which he may be forced to seek the benefit of the Insolvent Court, and in such a case it would be cruel to call upon him to produce regular books of account, and, on default, subjecting him to punishment. The Court should be left perfectly free to exercise its discretion as to whether the omission is due to unavoidable or accidental circumstances, or to dishonest intention. The word "shall" in line 6 of the clause, p. (16), leaves no room for such discretion.

8. The provision made in clause (g) of the same section also appears to me as calculated to operate harshly. There are, I believe, many cases of merchants and traders in the Presidency towns in which men have been under the necessity, through sheer misfortune, without any vicious or dishonest action, of taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act more than once, and there is no valid reason why men of that class should not readily obtain their discharge under the proposed Bankruptcy Act. The broad line of distinction between honest misfortune and fraud should be very rigidly fixed in all such cases.

9. Clause (1) of section 46 provides for the stoppage for the benefit of creditors of the pay and allowances of persons in the service of Government who may happen to become insolvents, but the next clause appears to contravene to a certain extent the provisions of the current law of the country on the subject of pensions. Section 11 of Act XXIII of 1871 says: "No money due or becoming due on account of any such (political) considerations or past services, pension or allowance shall be liable to seizure, attachment, or sequestration by process of any Court in British India at the instance of a creditor for any demand against the pensioner, or in satisfaction of a decree or order of any such Court. This provision has been upheld in several subsequent Acts, and appears last in section 266 of Act XIV of 1882, and no circumstances have since arisen to suggest a departure from it. Pensions are in theory benevolences, and to render them liable to seizure by a decree of a Court is to convert charity into a civil right. They are granted by Government to provide for the support of persons who have become unfit for further work after rendering good service for extended periods—as provisions for old age—and are liable to stoppage at any time at the will of the donors, and should not, on any account, be treated as a fixed asset.

10. Section 88 of the Bill invests the High Courts with the power of delegating their powers for certain purposes to Presidency Small Cause Courts. This is indirectly a revival of the clause in the Bill for the Presidency Court of Small Causes which proposed to invest those Courts with insolvency jurisdiction. The public feeling against the project was then strong, and it was therefore withdrawn. The modified form in which it is now proposed appears to me to be not only unobjectionable, but likely to prove very useful. I would respectfully urge, however, that the money limit of the jurisdiction should be fixed by law, and not left to the discretion of the High Courts. In matters of jurisdiction the law can never be too precise.

From E. HICKIN, Esq., Secretary, Calcutta Trades Association, to Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 14th December, 1885).

I HAVE now the honour to place before you, for submission to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the views of the Committee of the Trades Association on the Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. It would be impossible, the Committee feel, to overrate the importance of the proposed Act to the trading community throughout India; they have consequently given to its provisions the most careful consideration, and are unanimously of opinion that the measure, as a whole, will afford assistance and protection to both debtor and creditor.

3. In order, however, that the protection to be given by the Act may be adequate and complete, the Committee would beg to suggest that the Government of India might be moved to amend the Bill in so far as it deals with the following important points, which appear to be deserving of further consideration.

4. In regard to this section, the Committee are of opinion that the jurisdiction of use should be extended

Conditions on which creditor may be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless—

(a) the debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court under an order of a Civil Court for non-payment of money, or has within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

5. The Committee are of opinion that the

34. (1) In the distribution of the property of a bankrupt, priority of debts, there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(b) all wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the bankrupt during four months before the date of the receiving order, not exceeding five hundred rupees, mittee that due regard should be given to this fact on a further consideration of this portion of the Bill. They would strongly recommend that not less than three months' salary should be granted.

6. The Committee would beg to suggest that in this section "three months" should be substituted for

38. (1) The landlord or other person to whom any rent is due from the bankrupt may at any time, either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy, exercise his right of distress (if any) upon the property of the bankrupt for the rent due from him from the bankruptcy, with this limitation, that if such distress for rent be levied after the commencement of the bankruptcy it shall be available only for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication, but the landlord or other person to whom the rent may be due from the bankrupt may prove under the bankruptcy for the surplus due for which the distress may not have been available.

39. The property of the bankrupt divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Act referred to as the property of the bankrupt, shall not comprise the following particulars—

But it shall comprise the following particulars—
(iii) All moveable property being, at the commencement of the bankruptcy, in the possession, order or disposition of the bankrupt, in his trade or business, by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof. Provided that things in action, other than debts due or growing due to the bankrupt in the course of his trade or business, shall not be deemed moveable property within the meaning of this section.

40. (1) Where a bankrupt is an officer of the army or navy or of Her Majesty's Indian Marine Service, or an officer or clerk or other person employed or engaged in the Civil Service of the Crown, the trustee shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the trustee, with the consent of the chief officer of the department under which the pay or salary is enjoyed, may direct. Before making any order under this sub-section the Court shall communicate with the chief officer of the department as to the amount, time and manner of the payment to the trustee, and shall obtain the written consent of the chief officer to the terms of such payment.

9. Finally, the Bill makes no provision for the registration of mortgages of moveable property, or bills of sale as they are termed in England; such a provision would, it is believed, be a very material protection to creditors, and I have accordingly to express the hope of the Committee that it will be conceded by the proposed Act.

The Committee trust that the suggestions contained in this letter will meet with the approval and support of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor.

From J. O. MILLER, Esq., Under-Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 998—VII-78-7, dated 14th November, 1885).

With reference to your letter No. 1040, dated the 17th June, 1885, asking for opinions on the provisions of Note by Legal Remembrancer to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, dated 8th October, 1885.

Letter No. 2501, dated 3rd November, 1885, from the Registrar, High Court of Judicature, North-Western Provinces.

2. As the Act is not to be extended to these Provinces at present, the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner thinks it unnecessary to add any remarks on the provisions of the Bill.

Note by Legal Remembrancer to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,—(dated 8th October, 1885).

I HAVE gone through the draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, together with the draft Statement of Objects and Reasons for the same.

I note that in the draft Statement it is proposed to apply the Bill, if it becomes law, in the first instance only to the Presidency towns and to certain commercial centres in Burma.

to all cases in which the High Court has jurisdiction. For example, a person ordinarily resident in the Mufassal is liable to be sued in the High Court in respect of contracts made by him in Calcutta, but a Calcutta firm holding a decree of the High Court against such a person could not, under the Bill as drawn, avail itself of the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act. This seems to the Committee to be a serious anomaly, and one which will materially lessen the usefulness of the Act.

amount to be paid to clerks under this section should be equivalent to three months' salary. To limit the amount to five hundred rupees would to inflict an undeserved hardship on a large number of employees. Not a few firms employ assistants whose salaries range from Rs. 200 to Rs. 500 a month, and who belong to a class of employees who contribute in no small degree to the proper carrying on and success of a business, and it appears to the Committee that due regard should be given to this fact on a further consideration of this portion of the Bill. They would strongly recommend that not less than three months' salary should be granted.

"one year." The powers of a landlord are sufficiently great, and the existing law provides him with ample facilities for recovering his dues, and for these reasons the Committee submit that, if he should be permitted under the proposed Act to levy distress "for one year's rent due prior to the date of the order of adjudication," he will be receiving an undue preference over all other creditors. The Committee would, therefore, urge that the period for which he may recover under this section should not exceed three months.

7. In reference to this section, the Committee would observe that the Bill as drawn leaves the order and disposition clause still open to be defeated by the ruling in ex parte Gubbay re Morgan, which decided that the absence from the country of a partner in an insolvent firm prevented the clause in the Insolvency Act applying, on the highly technical ground that property left by the true owner in the possession of such a firm was not in the sole possession of the partner or partners who happened to be resident in this country.

8. In this section the words "with the consent of the chief officer of the department," and "the written consent of the chief officer," deprive it, in the opinion of the Committee, of all its value. The present law under which Courts are empowered to issue attachments against a debtor's salary are absolute, and do not require the consent of any third party to the appropriation of a moiety of a debtor's pay. The Committee, therefore, think it would be undesirable that the Indian Bankruptcy Act should differ in this important particular from other Acts.

* As regards the North-Western Provinces and Oudh we shall have ample opportunity of seeing how the law works before we extend it to any commercial centre. My experience as a Judge leads me to think that it will be some time before we shall require any extension, and that when it is extended we shall need stronger Courts and Courts with more leisure than they at present enjoy.

Many of the large commercial firms in these Provinces have houses in the Presidency-towns, and, as I understand section 4, creditors would be entitled to present bankruptcy petitions against such firms; so that some considerable portion of the class for whom the Act is intended will be covered by the provisions of the Act.

It is worth noticing that increased use is being made by debtors of Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code. The number of applications for insolvency must vary more or less in concert with fluctuations in the number of applications for execution of decrees. Compared with these, the percentage of applications for insolvency has steadily increased from 15 per cent. in 1881 to 35 in 1882, to 37 in 1883 and 30 in 1884. I feel convinced that, meagre as the provisions of Chapter XX now are, they are still too intricate and expensive for the poor insolvent; but for this we should have a still greater number of applications.

With a few alterations the provisions of Chapter XX would meet the present wants of these Provinces, but the present paper is no place to discuss those alterations.

I see little use in discussing seriatim the provisions of a Bill which is not to be applied to these Provinces, and I doubt whether I could do so to much purpose. It would need more acquaintance with the customs and wants of Presidency-towns to do so effectually.

From Registrar, High Court, North-Western Provinces, to Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,—(No. 2701, dated 3rd November, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 674—VII-78-2, dated 26th June, 1885, in the Judicial (Civil) Department, forwarding a Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, and requesting to be favoured with the Court's opinion thereon, and in reply to state as follows.

2. The Hon'ble the Chief Justice has forwarded a minute on the subject direct to the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert, Legislative Member of Council.

3. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Straight regrets he has had no leisure to consider the provisions of the Bill or offer any remarks thereon.

4. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Brothurst believes it is not intended that any Court in these Provinces shall, for the present at all events, have jurisdiction under the proposed Act, and he therefore refrains from offering any remarks on the proposed legislation.

5. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Tyrrell also has no remarks to offer on the Bill.

WITH reference to your letter No. 1042, dated the 17th of June, 1885, I am desired by the Lieutenant-Governor to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the opinions of the officers noted on the margin, who have been consulted upon the draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

From T. G. WALKER, Esq., Registrar, Chief Court, Punjab, to Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(No. 2582, dated 13th August, 1885).

IN reply to your letter No. 664-S., dated 13th July, 1885, forwarding, for the opinion of the Judges, a copy of a Draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, I am desired to say that as it is proposed to limit the application of the Bill to the Presidency-towns and certain other commercial centres, the Judges have no remarks to offer on the Bill.

From E. P. HENDERSON, Esq., Government Advocate, Punjab, to Officiating Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(No. 370-D.A., dated 21st September, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter No. 665-S. of 13th July last, forwarding for opinion draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. I observe that the Act only constitutes by its direct operation four Courts of Bankruptcy, namely, the High Courts of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay and the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon. I also observe that while power is taken to confer upon Local Governments authority, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to constitute other Courts of Bankruptcy in the territories administered by them, the insolvency sections of the Punjab Laws Act (1872) have not been repealed.

As moreover I am now, and have been for some time past, much pressed with important references, I trust that I may be permitted to refrain from discussing in detail a measure which is not intended to apply to this Province, and which appears to me to be far too advanced and technical for the state of things prevailing here.

From BUNSEE LAL RAM RATTAN, Rai Bahadur, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(No. 982, dated 2nd September, 1885).

As directed in your letter No. 844-S. of 30th July 1885, which you have very kindly sent for any remarks that I may wish to offer, I have the pleasure to state for your information that the Draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in India is worth of maintenance, and that the draft Statement of Objects and Reasons is worth of consideration.

I beg to suggest to afford the following remarks after full examination of the documents you have so kindly sent.

1st.—The cost of Court for advertising notices, &c., should be defrayed from the estate concerned, but the Court expenses should not exceed some fixed allowances at the rate of percentage which after full consideration the Legislative ought to fix.

2nd.—In India there are lot of persons who, in anticipation of being insolvent give up their estate, cash and property to their sons or brother, and they themselves remain to be insolvent. In this case the Legislative should pronounce some kind of punishment to be awarded to such insolvent.

3rd.—To avoid re-occurrence of insolvent the Legislative should consider and order some kind of distinguished mark to be worn by the bankrupt, in order, if the bankrupt go to another country or city, he may soon be recognized as such a man, as in India there are many men who are dealing in this way, i.e., open a shop in a city, and, while their trade became popular, they abstract lot of money by sending it to their homes or making it away otherwise, and afterwards declare themselves as insolvent. If some distinguished mark be ordered to be worn by the insolvent, there will be a kind of check over them.

4th. In section 21 I beg that the committee should consist of 8 members, i.e., 4 from among the creditors and 4 who do not any way mixed in the case, but know the custom of the city, and the Judge should take their opinion before passing any order on the file.

5th.—In my opinion in section 38 the hereditary rights, such as villages or other landed property, should be included in the estate which must be sold too and assessed in the administration leaving a necessary portion for the insolvent only.

I beg to return the papers received with your letter under reply.

From RAI MEHA RAM, to Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 27th August, 1885).

I HAVE gone through the draft Bill received with your letter No. 8448, of the 30th July, and am very glad to come to know that steps have been taken to make up the deficiencies which have been observed during the last 35 years. Handing over the matter to the committee of creditors whose interest is chiefly concerned in such proceedings is a great improvement to bring this law to the point of completion, and I hope it will satisfy those who were sulking at the introduction of such a defective measure as that of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy. As far as my experience is concerned, I would beg to state that Part VII of the Bill, regarding the small bankruptcies, would not work efficiently in a Province like the Punjab until the educated party takes lead in the way of improving the commercial condition of the country. Of course it will be received with great satisfaction in Presidency and other towns where the people by means of their extensive education are sufficiently enabled to understand the objects and reasons of the measure in question. I would, however, beg to suggest that for such cases the qualifications of trustees must be prescribed, as they have to manage the estate without the control and supervision of those whose interest they are to guard.

2. In conclusion, I request that the Insolvent Estates Courts must be very strict in awarding punishment to the guilty debtors, as the number of rejected applications clearly shows the bad motive with which they have often been led to defraud their money-lenders.

From RAMKISHAN DAS, Honorary Magistrate, Delhi, to Under-Secretary to Government Punjab,—(dated 25th September, 1885).

IN reply to your No. 844, dated 30th July last, enclosing a draft Bill on the law of Bankruptcy for opinion, I have the honour to submit the following remarks.

In my opinion the Bill should, when enacted into law, be made applicable to the Punjab and North-Western Provinces, and the District Courts empowered to exercise authority conferred on "the Court" under it. The provisions of the Bill, though based on the English law, are not so very abstruse or intricate as to be difficult of comprehension or to be peculiarly suitable to any particular town or city. They are catholic and general in their character, and may advantageously be extended to the Mufassal. Uniformity of principle—certainly so far as the British Indian Empire is concerned—necessitates the existence of one and the same law for identical cases and circumstances wherever they may occur in that empire. The provisions as to the voluntary management by creditors and as to appointment of trustees and the conduct of business by the insolvent under the supervision of trustees or of the committee of inspection are not new or strange. They are acted upon every day in this part of India. Indeed, there is hardly a case in which resort is not had to them as the most efficacious machinery for realising assets for distribution. I would therefore very strongly urge the extension of the Bill to the Mufassal.

SECTION 3 (b) and (c) may be fused into one clause. There is no meaning in keeping them separate.

SECTION 8 (2).—There is no benefit likely to accrue to the insolvent's estate by allowing a secured creditor to realise or deal with his security. Except in cases of English mortgages (as to which even there is considerable doubt), no mortgagee can exercise the power of sale, except through the medium of a Court, and why he should be allowed to bring a suit to sell the property and thus entail more costs, which are after all to come out of the insolvent's estate, is incomprehensible to me.

SECTION 15 (2).—For 3 days I would substitute 10 days, and for 7 days 1 month. The time mentioned in the section is very little, especially in the case of a creditor who has to enter on very difficult enquiries in order to submit the statement.

SECTION 15 (4).—The word "so" before stating should be omitted. "So" would mean for this purpose, i.e., for inspecting statement. The penalty should be general and absolute, and not confined to any particular circumstance.

SECTION 17 (15) AND SECTION 18 relate to the same matter, and with some slight change of language could easily go into one section or clause.

SECTION 25.—This is a very harsh measure and has been strongly condemned recently by Mr. Justice Norris. If it is considered advisable to keep it, then there can be no meaning in the limitation of 3 months, which should be expunged.

SECTION 28 (2).—Would deposits come under this or not?

SECTION 31.—To this section add "Barred debts, obligations without consideration—Voluntary bonds shall not be provable."

SECTION 36 should be omitted and its provisions added to section 34, which is their proper place.

SECTION 38.—Add executory contracts which the assignee or receiver may perform.

SECTION 40.—"Or engaged in the Civil service." Omit the word "Civil."

SECTION 48 (5).—Add "Provided that if the party does not agree and feels aggrieved, he may institute a suit for declaration as to quantum of damages which he will be allowed to prove as a debt."

SECTION 48 (6).—"And on hearing such person" modify into "on hearing the trustee or such other person."

SECTION 49.—Add "(f) See debtors." This power should be conferred on the trustee irrespective of the following section.

SECTION 64.—The word "solicitor" will have to be changed into "legal practitioner" or "pleader."

Adverting to the Statement of Objects and Reasons, it would of course be necessary to obtain the sanction of the British Parliament to ratify the measure. It is of no importance whether the sanction is antecedent or subsequent, but I consider Draft I to be the preferable of the two.

From RAI BAHADUR KALLIAN SINGH, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 1st September, 1885).

With reference to your letter dated 30th July 1885, I have the honour to submit my few remarks as to the Draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in certain part of British India, and they are as follows.

2. In Section 3 it is necessary that the British India may be defined, that it may be more clear whether the foreign States comes within the definition. Although the General Clauses Act, I of 1858, defines the British India, but still remains doubtful as to its limits supposing for instance—Biluchistan, &c., &c.

3. In the same section clause (c) is somewhat harder, that by issuing the process of sale in execution of decree cannot be said that the debtor has committed the act of bankruptcy.

4. In Section 5, clause (d) paragraph 2nd, where it is said within a year before the date of presentation of the petition ordinary reside, &c., &c.

The above clause in the section is not clear to fix the period gives rise to a doubt.

5. In the Section 6, clause 1, it should be added that the copy of petition must be furnished to the opposite party, that the opposite party may come proper and unnecessary delay may not occur.

6. In the Section 6, clause 5, that the words to take security for payment of debt is to put the hindrances in the way, but to ask security for the costs of the proceedings is not so.

7. In the Section 7, clause 1, where it is said unless he is in prison, &c., &c., should be added if he is left on security under Section 336 of Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, as there is generally the case with judgment-debtors in execution of decrees of civil court.

8. Section 17, paragraph 10, provides that the order made on the application may be executed as if it were a decree. It ought to be for those persons only who wish to get the dividend from the estate of bankrupt and not for others who do not wish to be benefited by the provisions of the Act.

9. Section 27 is silent. Clause (c) should be added that who contracted debt recklessly or carelessly.

10. Section 28, clause 1, should fix any period in which debt may be liquidated, say 12 years is a reasonable time. After that he must declared free from the such debt, otherwise it would be once a bankrupt always a bankrupt.

From CHOTA LAL, House Proprietor and Contractor, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 14th October, 1885).

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter, dated Simla, the 30th August, under cover of No. 844, enclosing a copy of a draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in certain parts of British India, with Draft statement of Objects and Reasons, for my humble remarks on the same.

I have gone through the whole of the draft, and, so far as I can see, I agree with it, except in two or three places, for which I beg to offer the following remarks.

In Section (7), No. 3, the debtor's petition ought to be withdrawn without the leave of the Court, except in cases the Court thinks it fit as otherwise.

In Section (11) the manager for the debtor's estate ought to be appointed by the Court, as well as the receiver and the debtor also be consulted.

In (Section 6), No. 6, when persons owing the debtor acknowledge themselves as debtors to the debtor, the Court ought to give decree against them in favour of the receiver for the debtor.

In (Section 23) in cases where debtor is personally required to point out persons owing him, the expenses in so doing by the debtor ought to be given him.

Also there is required a section by which a debtor may settle with his creditors privately or by appointing arbitrators.

Hoping you approve of the above.

From LALA GAGAR MAL, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 15th October, 1885).

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your your favor, No. 540, dated 8th instant, as well as a copy of draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency for my opinion. In reply to that I beg to return herewith, under a separate cover, the said draft with my notes thereupon. Some delay occurred in forwarding the draft, as I had to consider it thoroughly. Please excuse delay.

Within a year.—This seems to be a very long time. For it is just possible that a person may contract large debts within a year, and he himself be unwilling to go to the Insolvency Court and the creditor may not be able to take any steps. Therefore in my opinion 3 months or 6 months at the most should be the limit.

* Rather vague. It should be during office hours, or some definite time or day should be fixed.

Signed must be defined, and made to include sealing and marking.

† Vide note to section 15, clause (4)

‡ Should be and. It is very easy to put the seal of Court on papers without the Judge knowing it. Seals are always in the hands of peons and others of the same class.

Section 5, clause (d).—The debtor is in prison within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court under an order of a Civil Court for non-payment of money, or has within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business within those limits.

Section 15, clause (4).—Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the bankrupt may personally or by agent inspect this statement at all reasonable times,* and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom * * * * *

Section 16, clause (8).—Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to and signed by the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him; they shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.†

Section 17, clause (7).—If the Court approves the composition or scheme, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument containing the terms of the composition or scheme, or‡ by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court.

Section 42, clause (1).—Every conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors shall, if the person making, taking, paying or suffering the same is adjudged bankrupt on a bankruptcy petition presented within three* months after the date of making, taking, paying or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in the bankruptcy.

PART V.

TRUSTEES.

Remuneration of Trustee.

Section 63, clause (1) —Where the creditors appoint any person to be trustee of a debtor's estate, his remuneration (if any) shall be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors, or, if the creditors so resolve, by the committee of inspection, and shall be in the nature of a commission or percentage, of which one part shall be payable on the amount realized after deducting any sums paid to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities, and the other part on the amount distributed in dividend.

Section 83, clause (c).—The local limits of the jurisdiction of a Court appointed by a Local Government shall be such as may, from time to time, be fixed, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by that Local Government within the territories administered by it.

Section 91, clause (c).—An appeal shall lie from the order of a Court appointed by a Local Government under section 82 of the High Court of the province.

PART VII.

SMALL BANKRUPTCIES.

Section 103.—When a petition is presented by or against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, or the official receiver reports to the Court, that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value three thousand rupees, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner.

Section 105.—Any person against whom a receiving order has been made under this Act shall, in each of the cases following, be punished with imprisonment which may extend to two years or with fine or with both ;

Notices.

Section 125.—All notices and other documents for the service of which no special mode is directed may be sent by prepaid post letter to the last known address of the person to be served therewith.

Section 133 (1).—In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,— Interpretation.

"Province" means the territories under the administration of a Local Government :

"High Court of the province" means the highest Civil Court of appeal for the province :

"The Court" means the Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy under this Act :

"Affidavit" includes declarations under any legislative enactment, affirmations and attestations on honour

"Available act of bankruptcy" means any act of bankruptcy available for a bankruptcy petition at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the receiving order is made :

* Should be six months : three months is too little time.

The remuneration of the trustees should be fixed by the Court itself in every instance. It will be very improper to give this power to the creditors. It is sure to be abused.

It will be quite unnecessary to obtain the Governor General's previous sanction on a matter like this. The words in italics should be omitted.

The appealable orders should be specified. At present the law (which is the same as this) is very unsatisfactory. Some orders are appealable and some are not. Further, why should an appeal lie to the Chief Court direct? This is a hardship. It will be convenient to give this power to the Divisional Courts in this Province and other corresponding Courts in other Provinces.

There should be a final appeal to the Chief Court or High Court, as sometimes intricate questions arise in such cases.

Small Bankruptcies.—This should not be with regard to the amount of the debtor's property. It should be the reverse, i.e., with reference to the amount of debts due, and the amount to make a bankruptcy small should be Rs. 1,500 only, and not more ; otherwise some dishonest people may succeed in arranging that their property may not exceed Rs. 3,000.

Imprisonment.—Simple or what?
Fine.—What amount?

Insert registered between the words "prepaid" and "part."

These interpretation clauses should be placed in the beginning.

Should be one hour.

24. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

From BAGGAN LAL, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, to Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab,—(dated 1st September, 1885).

WITH reference to your letter dated 30th July 1885, I have to submit my few remarks as to the Draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in certain parts of British India, and they are as follows.

2. In section 6 it is necessary that the British India may be defined, that it may be more clear whether the foreign States come within the definition. Although the General Clauses Act, I of 1862, defines the British India, but still remains doubtful as to its limits supposing, for instance Biluchistan, &c., &c.

3. In the same section, clause (e) is somewhat harder, that by issuing the process of sale in execution of decrees cannot be said that the debtor has committed the act of bankruptcy.

4. In section 5, clause (d), paragraph 2nd, where it is said within a year before the date of presentation of the petition ordinary reside, &c., the clause in the section is not clear to fix the period gives rise to a doubt.

5. In the section 6, clause I, it should be added that the copy of petition must be furnished to the opposite party that the opposite party may come proper and unnecessary delay may not occur.

6. In the section 6, clause 5, that the words to take security for payment of debts is to put the hindrances in the way, but to ask security for the costs of the proceedings is not so.

7. In the section 7, clause I, where it is said unless he is in prison, &c., &c., should be added if he is left on security under section 336 of Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, as there is generally the case with judgment-debtors in execution of decrees of civil court.

8. Section 17, paragraph 10, provides that the order made on the application may be executed as if it were a decree.

It ought to be for those persons only who wish to get the dividend from the estate of bankrupt, and not for others who do not like to be benefited by the provision of the Act.

9. Section 27 is silent. Clause (c) should be added that who contracted debt recklessly or carelessly.

10. Section 28, clause I, should fix any period in which debt may be liquidated, say 12 years is a reasonable term. After that he must be declared free from that said debt, otherwise it would be once a bankrupt always a bankrupt.

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 4131—202, dated 24th October, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge your No. 1043, dated 17th June last, forwarding for opinion a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. The Bill will affect only the Presidency-town, the four chief towns, in British Burma and the few large commercial centres to which it may hereafter be extended. There are no large commercial centres in the Central Provinces at present, and the likelihood of the extension of the Bill to any town in these provinces in the future is remote. Under these circumstances the Chief Commissioner does not think it necessary that he should make any observations on it.

3. The Bill was sent for opinion to two selected officers, Mr. J. W. Neill, Officiating Judicial Commissioner, and Mr. Venning, Commissioner of Nagpur. Neither of these officers has offered any criticisms on it.

From E. S. SYMES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 252—26-L., dated 15th December, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1044, dated the 17th June last, regarding a draft Bill to amend the law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

2. I AM now to submit copies of the letters cited in the margin, which contain expressions of the opinion of the Recorder of Rangoon, of the Judge of Moulmein, and of the Rangoon Chamber of Commerce on the provisions of the bill. The opinion of the learned Judicial Commissioner is still awaited. It will be submitted in due course. The delay in replying to your reference has been occasioned by the Chief Commissioner's desire to be in possession of the views of the Chamber of Commerce and, if possible, of the Judicial Commissioner, before taking the matter into consideration.

3. The Chief Commissioner agrees that for the present, as regards this province, the new Act should apply only to the four principal seaport towns. By Act XIV of 1885 power has been conferred on the Chief Commissioner to transfer the jurisdiction in insolvency matters of the Recorder of Rangoon to the chief Civil Courts of Moulmein, Akyab, and Bassein in respect of those towns. Subject to the assent of the Governor General in Council, a similar power is conferred on the Chief Commissioner by sections 82 and 83 of the Bill. It would seem necessary to take care that the provisions of the Bill should not conflict with those of the Act above cited. But the Chief Commissioner does not support the suggestion made by the Judge of Moulmein that the power at present exercised by the Local Government of conferring insolvency jurisdiction on and withdrawing it from the Moulmein Court should be annulled by the constitution of that Court as an Insolvency Court under section 82 of the Bill.

4. The Chief Commissioner supports the proposal made by Mr. MacEwen that power should be taken in section 88 to confer on the Court of Small Causes in Rangoon the limited jurisdiction in bankruptcy matters which it is proposed to enable the High Courts to confer on the Small Cause Courts in the presidency-towns.

5. Section 91 of the Bill provides for appeals from orders in bankruptcy matters. Before the Bill is introduced into the Legislative Council it is probable that the jurisdiction of the superior Courts in this province will have been satisfactorily settled. But should the question of the constitution of a Chief Court in Burma be still unsettled when the Bankruptcy Bill is finally drafted, it will be necessary to specify in clause (c) of section 91 the particular High Court to which appeals under that clause would lie. Such appeals might appropriately lie to the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon.

6. The Chief Commissioner solicits special attention to the opinion of the learned Recorder of Rangoon, particularly to the views stated in paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 of his letter, which seem to be worthy of consideration. It seems very important that the application of the less cumbersome procedure (section 103 of the Bill) should be extended so as to embrace cases where the assets are, apparently, not more than Rs. 10,000. Mr. MacEwen's figures, namely, 91 insolvencies, Rs. 28,71,000 of debts, and only Rs. 43,000 (less than 2 per cent. of the debts) recovered by the Official Assignee in all, do not warrant sanguine hope that bankruptcy proceedings will greatly benefit the mass of creditors. There is perhaps, therefore, the more reason for attempting, when the law is under revision, to free innocent debtors from some part of the pains and penalties now accruing to themselves and their families from non-fraudulent debt.

The recommendation made in paragraph 8 of Mr. MacEwen's letter regarding the abolition of dual jurisdiction in the same Court also commends itself to the Chief Commissioner.

7. Mr. MacEwen's report contains a recommendation for the abolition of imprisonment for non-fraudulent debt. The learned Judge is clearly in favour of such abolition, though he mentions that the retention of this penalty has been practically decided upon. The Chief Commissioner does not know how this may be. He ventured previously (letter No. 679—1-L, dated the 21st July, 1882, to Home Department) to show cause for the total abolition of imprisonment for non-fraudulent debt. He still holds to the same opinion. He recently referred to the Judicial Commissioner certain cases of imprisonment for civil debt in the hope that the learned Judge would advise or comment upon the matter. If anything of interest or value results from this recent reference and discussion, the papers will be laid before the Government of India.

From D. G. MACLEOD, Esq., Judge of the Town of Moulmein, to Junior Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(No. 129—2, dated the 24th August, 1885).

In compliance with the request made in your letter No. 100—26L. (Judicial Department, Legislative), dated the 6th ultimo, I have the honour to offer the following opinion on the Indian Bankruptcy Bill.

In dealing with the first question raised in the 11th paragraph of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, namely, as to the extent to which the proposed law should be applied locally in British India, it is necessary to bear in mind the main object of a bankruptcy law, which is to relieve honest debtors from the punishment of imprisonment for debt. The securing of the debtor's property for the benefit of his creditors is really subsidiary to the relief to the debtor, and the question, therefore, should not be entirely judged with reference to the existing machinery for working the proposed law for the benefit of creditors.

The question, however, as discussed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill, is not, as it was in the correspondence in 1882, whether it is advisable to abolish imprisonment for debt, but whether the privileges of the proposed law should be extended to debtors in India generally, or only to a favoured few who have the good fortune to be inhabitants of the small local areas to be brought under the operation of that law.

Allowing even that there are differences between the circumstances of indebtedness arising in commercial seaports and those occurring in the Mufassal, it seems to me desirable to have only one insolvency law for the whole of India, and this, as stated in paragraph 11 of Statement of Objects and Reasons of this Bill, might be effected by inserting in the proposed measure a chapter providing the modifications and simplifications necessary to suit the requirements of Mufassal Courts. Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code has been, if not long enough in force to pave the way for a measure such as the present, sufficiently tried to show the necessity for its very considerable amendment, if not for its abolition, and I consider it inadvisable to retain it in preference to a simplified but complete insolvency law.

If it should in the end be decided not to frame an Act applicable to the whole of British India, it should, I think, at least be left optional with persons resident beyond the local limits of the Courts with insolvency jurisdiction to avail themselves of the benefit of the insolvency law. Cases are conceivable in which it may be a less hardship to debtors and creditors to get insolvency affairs administered by a Court having jurisdiction under the proposed measure than by the ordinary local Court with limited powers under Chapter XX, Civil Procedure Code, such for instance as the case of a debtor who resides just outside the limits of an Insolvency Court or has considerable property within such limits.

Coming to that part of the Statement of Objects and Reasons which refers to the difference between the Bill and the law on which it is modelled, I would remark, in regard to the question of jurisdiction to entertain applications for a declaration of insolvency, that by reason of the difficulty in the case of natives of proving the fact of residence at all, it seems desirable to amend the provision by including the personal carrying on of business or working for gain as grounds of jurisdiction. This would afford creditors larger and easier means of proving the point of jurisdiction, which would probably be frequently raised by reason of the limitations imposed on it by the draft Bill.

As regards the provisions of the Bill, it is not easy to foresee how details, for the most part adapted to English modes of business, would work in practice in India. My remarks, therefore, will be directed and confined to what appear to me to be omissions in the Bill rather than to criticising the propriety or efficiency of the proposed procedure.

Section 8 (1).—If it is intended, as I think it must be, to give the Court power to release the debtor from jail if he should be there when the receiving order is made, provision for that should be made here by empowering the Court to order the release of the debtor wheresoever he may be confined. The power to release from jail, even if the jail be without the jurisdiction of the Court, is necessary in view of the different grounds which confer insolvency jurisdiction.

(2)—Under Act XXVIII of 1866, the power of sale is only conferred in respect of mortgages to which English law is applicable, and unless this provision is limited to the exercise of such power, mortgagees would be entitled to realize their securities by suit to the detriment of the interests of the unsecured creditors, which the expenses of the suit would occasion. This remark should be read in connexion with another, which I shall presently make in reference to the rights of mortgagees (infra 2nd Schedule 12c).

Section 19 (4).—Provision similar to that previously suggested should be made here also for the release of the debtor from jail if not released at the time of making the receiving order.

Section 26 (1).—The right to summon others than the debtor should be limited, as in the Civil Procedure Code, with reference to the means of communication between their place of residence and the court-house.

(2) I would add after the word "sum" the words "for his travelling expenses and subsistence."

Section 45.—It is, I think, desirable that the power of the Courts to seize the property of a bankrupt should extend to any part of Her Majesty's dominions, suitable provision being made for the procuration of the necessary authority from the Court having jurisdiction where the property is situate.

Sections 82 and 83.—As the Bill was drafted before the amendment of the Burma Courts Act, 1875, by the Act of 1885, whereby the insolvent jurisdiction before exercised by the Recorder of Rangoon in Moulmein has been vested in the Judge of Moulmein, these sections should be altered so as to give the Court at Moulmein jurisdiction in bankruptcy by the direct operation of the proposed Act.

Part VII.—The usefulness of this chapter would be extended by providing that the Official Receiver shall not be required to pay the court-fees prescribed for proceedings in Court for the recovery of debts, but that the amount due for such fees shall be a first charge on any decree that may be obtained by him, or that it shall be payable out of the general funds of the estate. The difficulty also of investigating small claims of insolvents must, I should think, act prohibitively against the institution of suits for the recovery of such claims. If such suits were allowed to be brought on the statements made by insolvents in their schedules, greater responsibility would attach to such statements, and the burden of the suit would be rightly thrown on the person who, but for the intervention of the Receiver, would be the party to sue. The Official Receiver of course would be bound to satisfy himself as to the legality of the claim as disclosed by the facts stated in the schedule, but every other facility should be given him to realize the property of the debtor in the way I have indicated. No. 25 of the rules of the Calcutta High Court, framed under the present Insolvency Act, provides that the Official Assignee may sue without payment of office fees if he have no funds, but this does not include stamp-duty, to which my remarks are intended to apply.

Second Schedule 12 (c).—To meet the case of mortgages whose securities exceed in value the amount of the debt, corresponding rights should, I think, be to the trustee to force a sale of mortgaged property at a reserved price equal to the amount due on the mortgage, as the trustee may not always be in a position to redeem.

The trustee should also have the right to sell the equity of redemption in mortgaged property if the mortgagee does not seek to foreclose his mortgage within some specified time.

From R. S. T. MacEwen, Esq., Officiating Recorder of Rangoon, to Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(No. 164—51, dated the 20th August, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 100—26-L, dated 6th July last, forwarding copy of a draft Bill to amend the Law of Insolvency and Bankruptcy in India, and asking for an expression of opinion on the provisions of the Bill.

2. The Bill itself is a large measure and deals with a somewhat difficult and complex subject. It is drawn on the lines of the recent English Bankruptcy Statute, and would require much more time than I have at present at my disposal to examine its provisions in detail and consider their probable effect in the event of its becoming law. But I may say that a new Act dealing with insolvency and bankruptcy in India has long been felt to be a necessity, and I think the general feeling has been, both amongst lawyers and commercial men, that any measure of the kind which is undertaken should be as clear, simple, and effective as possible. Whether this Bill fully answers these requirements it is difficult to say without a much more minute examination of its provisions than I am now able to give to it.

3. Part I (sections 3—29) of the Bill deals with the procedure to be followed from an act of bankruptcy to discharge, and in cases of large bankruptcies, where the bankrupts are traders and the property for distribution is considerable, the provisions are no doubt to the advantage of creditors, but they are more cumbersome than under the present system, and will lead to greater expense in the administration of bankrupt estates. They will add considerably to the work of the Courts and of the Official Assignee (called Official Receiver in the Bill), and appear to contemplate (in large cases at least) the appointment of a trustee, other than the Official Receiver, in each bankruptcy. The appointment of such a trustee, except in large and intricate cases, seems unnecessary and undesirable. If generally adopted, the effect would be to take all bankruptcies likely to render reasonable remuneration to the trustee out of the hands of the Official Receiver and Trustee and to leave him with only such cases as would yield little or no returns; and as he is not a salaried officer, but dependent wholly upon commission for his own labour and the cost of his establishment, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to secure the services of competent persons as Official Receivers. If the commission to come to the Official Receiver is likely to be inadequate, the Government will have to pay a high salary to the Official Receiver and the cost of his establishment. For the duties imposed by the Bill on the Official Receiver are considerable and important, and must be performed by a professional lawyer. At present the Official Assignee and his establishment cost the Government nothing. No doubt section 20 leaves it in the discretion of the Court to appoint an independent trustee, but the appointment might be applied for by the creditors: the Official Receiver would probably object. At all events there would be a conflict of interests, and it might be difficult to refuse an application by the body or a majority of the creditors. Such applications would never be made in non-paying bankruptcies, and the practical effect might be to leave these and no others in the hands of the Official Receiver. It seems to be considered that there would be difficulty in finding non-official persons qualified and willing to act in such cases. I do not think this is so much to be apprehended, as the competition there would be for paying trusteeships. There are always a considerable number of persons ready to offer for any business that may be expected to pay, and sub-section (2) of section 64 contemplates the appointment of solicitors. It appears to me, therefore, that unless some restrictions are placed upon the appointment of non-official trustees, there is likely to be a good deal of competition for the business, and if appointments were freely made, it would be with the result just indicated. On the whole, I think the business is likely to be better performed in the hands of a responsible professional Official Receiver, and, in addition to the discretion imposed upon the Court in the matter, I think no appointment of a non-official trustee should be made except upon a resolution of three-fourths in number and value of the creditors, and that section 20, sub-section (2), should be altered to this effect.

4. The Bill (section 63) provides for the remuneration of non-official trustees, but it does not appear how the Official Receiver is to be paid. Of course if it is intended that he shall be a salaried officer and receive no commissions, then these observations will be inapplicable. But if he is to be on the footing of the present Official Assignee, they appear deserving of consideration; and if he is to be a salaried officer, it may be well to enquire from what source his salary and establishment are to be met. The only court-fee chargeable in insolvency cases is the ordinary petition fee of eight annas, and the fees for serving notices go to the messenger and not to the credit of Government.

5. The provisions of Part I are, it seems to me, unnecessarily complex for the large number of small bankruptcies which occupy so much of the time of the Courts at present. It is true Part VII provides a summary procedure for some, but not for all of these cases. It is only in cases where the property to be administered does not exceed Rs. 3,000 that this part applies. I annex a statement showing the number of insolvencies in this Court during the past three years, with the scheduled liabilities, assets, and actual recoveries. In 1882 there were 20 insolvencies, aggregating Rs. 4,54,401 of liabilities, and scheduled assets amounting to Rs. 2,12,526, while the total recoveries amounted to Rs. 23,487, and of this sum Rs. 20,163 was secured, the sum which the Official Assignee recovered for distribution amongst creditors being only Rs. 3,324.

In 1883, out of 22 insolvencies with total liabilities of Rs. 14,17,824 and scheduled assets of Rs. 6,32,792, Rs. 82,823 was all that was recovered. Of this sum, Rs. 60,080 was secured, and the balance, Rs. 22,743, the Official Assignee called in.

In 1884 the total liabilities in 49 insolvencies was Rs. 10,03,035. The assets as per schedule amounted to Rs. 7,82,933, the recoveries to Rs. 56,446, of which Rs. 39,782 was secured and the Official Assignee recovered Rs. 16,664.

It is not quite clear what "property of the debtor" in section 103 is intended to cover. If it means scheduled assets, then Chapter VII would apply to about one-half of the business in this Court. Of the 91 insolvencies shown in the statement it would apply to 47. Having regard, however, to the results in the remaining 44 cases, it appears to me that the limit might very well be raised to Rs. 5,000, and I think it might with safety and advantage be raised to Rs. 10,000. In three only out of the 91 cases has property of the value of Rs. 10,000 and upwards been administered, and in seven cases has property between Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 10,000 been recovered. In the remaining 81 cases the property actually administered was less than Rs. 5,000. In 53 cases absolutely nothing was recovered. The provisions of section 14 relating to meetings of creditors would be inapplicable to the whole of these 81 cases.

In 9 out of 10 of these cases the insolvents only come into Court for the purpose of obtaining a protection order. They are either in jail in execution of a Civil Court decree or are threatened with arrest; they have little or no property—in many cases absolutely none. They are nearly all petty traders or impecunious clerks and other persons; the number of their creditors and the individual debts are small; there is seldom much, if any, opposition, and the whole business in these cases is of a simple and rudimentary character. To apply the provisions and machinery of this Bill, to any great extent, to these cases would, in my opinion, be a mistake. The cost, trouble, and delay would far exceed the benefit to be derived. The estates would not bear the cost, which would therefore fall upon the Government.

6. I have very little doubt, although I have not the means of testing my opinion by returns, that in the Presidency towns the results will be found to be much the same as here. I think that if there was no imprisonment for debt there would be very little insolvency business in India; at all events it would be confined to bond fide trading bankruptcies. It seems to me that, no matter how stringent a bankruptcy law may be made, it will be taken advantage of so long as imprisonment for debt continues, and the Courts will be resorted to by a class of debtors who ought not to be able to get rid of their debts by means of an Act of this kind.

The true remedy is abolition of imprisonment for debt. It would curtail credit, and be immensely to the advantage of the public and the administration of justice. It would practically abolish small bankruptcies, save much legislation, the time of the Courts, and the expenditure of public money. I understand the question has lately been considered and it has been decided to retain imprisonment for debt. I think, however, it is well worthy of further consideration in connection with the subject of insolvency and this Bill.

7. Section 103 (b) provides that the committee of inspection may be dispensed with in small bankruptcies, and (c) allows for other modifications by rules. But this is an inconvenient arrangement, and the power to make rules which absolutely annul the direct provisions of an Act is often questioned. I think where modifications are considered necessary they ought to be made in the Act itself in this part. I am of opinion that all the provisions relating to meetings of creditors should be dispensed with in small bankruptcies, and that this modification should precede or follow clause (b).

8. I am also of opinion that in Courts where the Bankruptcy Act is in operation, Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code should not apply. The double jurisdiction and procedure lead to confusion, doubts, and uncertainty; persons will not know which procedure to come under, and objections and difficulties will be raised. As it is, Chapter XX has been very little used in the Courts now exercising insolvent jurisdiction. There is not a single instance of it in this Court, and until the High Court of Calcutta lately held that it had concurrent jurisdiction under the Civil Procedure Code, the power was doubted. At all events it had not been freely exercised. I am of opinion, therefore, that one of two courses ought to be followed with regard to this part of the subject—

- (1) Additional provisions ought to be added to Chapter XX to provide more fully for small bankruptcies, and they should be omitted from this Act altogether; or
- (2) Part VII ought to deal with them entirely and be the only law in the Courts to which the Act would apply, and Chapter XX of the Code should be restricted to Courts in which the Act did not apply.

I think the second is the preferable course, and that their proper place is in this Act; but the procedure should, as nearly as possible, be that of the Code.

9. This Court has not at present the machinery necessary to carry out the provisions of the Bill, and even if a Chief Court should be constituted for British Burma, it will require some addition to its establishment to work the Act properly if all bankruptcies, where the property likely to be realized exceeds Rs. 8,000, were to be made subject to the full provisions of the Act. The principal Civil Courts at Moulmein and Akyab have lately been invested with insolvency jurisdiction, and certainly they have not, and are not, likely to obtain the establishments necessary for the purpose. The jurisdiction might no doubt revert to the Recorder or be vested in a Chief Court, but I think it would be a very great hardship to persons resident in these places to compel them to come to Rangoon in all cases of small bankruptcies. The principal Civil Courts in these places are quite competent to deal with small insolvencies, and with a simple procedure they would not require extra establishments. I think, therefore, that this is a matter of considerable importance so far as the seaport towns of this province are concerned.

10. Section 88 confers certain powers on the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Courts. I see no objection to this provision. It will relieve the High Courts of a great deal of purely formal work and of a number of petty unopposed bankruptcies, and I presume the rules contemplated by sub-section (1) would fix a pecuniary limit beyond which these Courts could not receive or hear bankruptcy petitions. In the draft Bill to constitute a Chief Court for British Burma power has been taken to extend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act to Rangoon. Similar power might be taken to extend, at any time, the provisions of section 88 to the Small Cause Court of Rangoon, although I could not at present recommend that the powers given by the Bill should be exercised by the Rangoon Small Cause Court. But if that Court is reconstituted under the Presidency Act, and the necessary establishments are allowed, there is no reason why it should not exercise the same powers as the Presidency Courts.

11. I entirely approve of the penal sections of the Bill. I think they are most necessary and will meet most of the cases which arise in practice.

From J. STUART, Esq., Secretary, Rangoon Chamber of Commerce, to Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,—(dated the 5th December, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your No. 101—20-L., dated the 6th July, 1885, asking the opinion of this Chamber on the draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy and insolvency in British India.

In reply I am directed to inform you that, as this was a matter involving legal knowledge for a complete understanding of the proposed alterations, the members of the Chamber did not feel themselves qualified to express an opinion. They, therefore, referred the matter to their legal adviser, and I am directed to forward to you his remarks on the proposed amendments.

I have further to apologise for the long delay in submitting an opinion on this matter, a delay which was occasioned by the references which Mr. Gillbanks, the Chamber's adviser, had to make as to the course of legislation in England on the same subject.

Note by Mr. J. C. GILLBANKS, Barrister-at-Law, Rangoon,—(dated the 5th December, 1885).

FROM the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the proposed draft Bill to amend the law of bankruptcy it would appear that in 1870 a proposal of Sir James Stephen's to introduce virtually the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 was by general opinion negatived as being too complicated for the mofussil and because the principle of voluntary management by creditors was considered unsuited to India. We think that for the same reasons the present proposed Bill is unsuited for the mofussil in Burma. A proposal in 1881 to amend the existing insolvency law was rejected on the ground that the law required recasting rather than amendment. We fully agree with this opinion, and we believe that nothing short of re-casting the law would be satisfactory. The present law does not seem to us to be cumbrous, though it certainly is defective and out of date.

The proposed Bill adopts the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883; thus we pass at once from legislation in 1848 (our present Insolvent Act is dated 9th June 1848) to an Act of 1883, a gap 35 years in legislation. We consider that it is eminently desirable to assimilate the law in force in India in insolvency to that in force in England and thus to afford our Courts the advantage of English decisions.

In the face of the opinions elicited by previous proposals we are not prepared to recommend at present that the proposed Bill should extend beyond the limits of Rangoon, Moulmein, Akyab, and Bassein as far as Burma is concerned, but we think it desirable that a proviso should be inserted giving power to the local Government to extend the Act to other places in this province when it shall be deemed desirable or necessary. Further, we consider it advisable that the jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be vested in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon (or such Court as may be constituted in its place), except as to Moulmein, where there is already a Judge, in whose Court the jurisdiction might be vested with a right of appeal. Provisions on this point must, however, await the passing of the new Burma Courts Act.

Some of the most important provisions of the Bill are those which apply to a composition in satisfaction of the debts due from the bankrupt, or for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs. These provisions remove some of the gravest defects of the existing Indian insolvency law, and they show the enormous gap in our legislative enactments, for the principle of deeds of arrangement, by which the property of an insolvent trader was made available for the common benefit of his creditors without his being adjudicated a bankrupt, was introduced in England as far back as 1825. Now, without any preparatory legislation it is proposed at once to progress from our legislation of 1848 (which was then more backward than English legislation) to the latest English enactment. We must admit that we are legally advised that it appears somewhat doubtful, whether as the proposed Bill is shorn of whatever advantages were expected from the control of the Board of Trade, it is desirable to follow so closely the English Act of 1883.

It may be broadly stated that the chief defects of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 were in the provisions for liquidation of the debtor's affairs by arrangement and composition. These defects, it has been alleged, arose mostly from the improper use of proxies and the supineness of creditors, which led to the adoption of inadequate compositions through the influence of the debtors' friends and from the want of control over trustees in bankruptcy in case of liquidation by arrangement, the trustees being exempted from the control of the Court.

We presume that the principle of liquidation by arrangement under the voluntary management of creditors is no longer (as in 1870) considered unsuitable to India. From our experience in Rangoon and Burma we do not think the principle unsuited for this province. We may add that many instances of a desire to carry out such arrangements have come within our experience. Sometimes they have been frustrated because there was no method of making them compulsory, and no control could be exercised by the Insolvent Court. A similar want has been felt when a petition has been withdrawn upon arrangement with creditors.

In so far as a provisional order is only made for the protection of the bankrupt's estate when necessary in the first instance, and the creditors are to have a voice in deciding whether the debtor shall be adjudicated a bankrupt or his affairs be liquidated by composition or arrangement, we approve of the principle of the proposed Bill. If it appears that the approval of the Court, which is necessary, was obtained by fraud, or if it appears that in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or the debtor, the composition or scheme may be annulled without prejudice to anything done under it. This is a departure which we approve thoroughly; but at the same time we feel some doubt as to whether the proposed Bill is adapted in details to Indian circumstances. It is extremely stringent in many of its provisions, and we think complicated. We should prefer an Act embodying the main principles and features (with the exception of the important changes just noticed, which should be engrafted) of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869, which was not found to work badly, and could have been amended without much difficulty, rather than a close copy of an enactment, which has not been in force for two years, and of the working of which doubts have already been expressed.

We are hardly prepared at present to recommend the abolition of imprisonment for debt or the introduction of more of the provisions of the Debtors Act, 1869, than the proposed Bill contains.

The duties to be discharged under the English Act by the Board of Trade can, we conceive, only be undertaken by the Courts through properly appointed officers. The appointment of such an officer is much needed in Burma.

We can see no object in preserving any distinction between traders and non-traders.

The limitation of the jurisdiction of the Court, and the departure from the corresponding provisions of the English Act, are adapted to this province, and we think that domicile should be rejected as a ground of jurisdiction.

With regard to bankruptcy being a disqualification for certain officers. We consider that a provision for the removal of the disqualification on a bankruptcy being annulled might be provided for.

In sections 39 and 40 of the proposed Bill the provisions of section 295 of the Civil Procedure Code as to the time at which an attaching creditor's title becomes complete as against rival decree-holders will be that at which it becomes complete as against the trustee in bankruptcy. This seems to be a sufficient provision, and one which it is desirable to insert, for although it is in consonance with a decision in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon there are decisions which conflict with that law.

At present it would not be desirable to overburden the Small Cause Court by jurisdiction in bankruptcy in petty cases transferred. But a provision for the delegation of such powers might be inserted, to be exercised when desirable, as it appears to have worked well in Madras.

The following are instances of the stringency of the proposed Bill:—

Section 3, (1) (c).—"If execution issued against him has been levied by sale of his property in any civil proceeding in British India."

If this is intended to include a foreclosure of a mortgage or order of sale in a suit on a mortgage, it is, we consider, too stringent; such a provision as that contained in the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, would be sufficient.

"That execution issued against the debtor on any legal process for the purpose of obtaining payment of not less than Rs. 500 has been levied by seizure and sale of his goods."

Section 15 (2).—The time for filing a statement of, and in relation to, his affairs by the debtor is extremely short; it is true that the Court may, for special reasons, extend it. By the present Act a debtor is allowed such time as the Court may deem reasonable.

Section 27, relating to the discharge of the bankrupt, especially 3 (a), which requires him to keep such accounts as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position for three years preceding his bankruptcy. For the present the analogous provisions of section 48 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1869 would suffice for Burma, which are shortly as follows:—(1) assent of creditors to closing of bankruptcy by special resolution; (2) that he has paid eight annas in the rupee, unless prevented by trustee's conduct or circumstances, for which the bankrupt is not justly responsible, and that they desire his discharge, unless he has made default in giving up property required to be given up by the Act, or that he is being prosecuted under the Debtors Act, 1869. This might be coupled with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, as to the status of an undischarged bankrupt (section 54).

Section 28, is stringent enough as to those debtors who are likely to make settlements on their wives, but it does not touch the case of immoveable property which is bought by a debtor and conveyed to his wife or child. Such transactions are, unfortunately, not uncommon, and some provisions might be inserted as to them. Partially provided for in section 41.

Section 34, restricted to Rs. 500. Under the present Act, no restriction as to amount. The rate of interest, 4 per cent., is very low; the usual Court rate allowed is 6 per cent., 9 per cent. being an average rate of interest.

Section 38.—Property not divisible among creditors, only Rs. 200. At present Rs. 300. In the present state of exchange this is much below the value allowed by the English Act, 1883, nearly £20 (111) of this section is less stringent than section 23 of the present Insolvent Act on the words "in his trade or business" are inserted. Having regard to the abolition of the distinction between traders and non-traders, it would seem hardly desirable to insert these words, but rather to continue the former provisions of the reputed ownership clause.

Considering the heavy stamp duties exacted in India, and that certain conveyances, letters-of-attorney, &c., are by section 75 of the present Insolvent Act exempt from stamp duty, we hope that a section similar thereto, or to section 144 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, may be inserted in the new Act.

The provision that a creditor may convey his dissent to a composition or scheme by a letter in a prescribed form attested by a witness, section 17 (2) does not appear adapted to this country; a more formal attestation is necessary.

In section 59 it will be necessary to insert such provisions as would include a senior Judge of a Court not being a High Court; but this will depend on the new Burma Courts Act as far as this province is concerned.

We consider that it is unnecessary at present to introduce the most stringent provisions of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1883, as they are, we think, not adapted to the circumstances of this province. And for the present, and until the English Act of 1883 has been longer in operation, and its advantages practically demonstrated, we would suggest that the main principles of the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869 should be adopted with the requisite amendments, already mentioned, and with the adoption of the principle that the creditors are to have a voice in deciding whether the debtor shall be adjudicated a bankrupt or his affairs shall be liquidated by composition or arrangement. We hold that less complication and greater simplicity is necessary both to adapt the Act to Indian circumstances and to render it possible for our Courts and their officers to work an Act which will be such an enormous stride in legislation. Finally, we are glad that there has been a return to the older and more usual nomenclature, and that the terms 'bankrupt' and 'bankruptcy' will replace 'insolvent' and 'insolvency.'

From E. S. SYMES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 269—3L., dated 15th January, 1886).

WITH reference to paragraph 2 of my letter No. 352—26 L., dated the 15th ultimo, I am directed to submit a copy of a note by the Judicial Commissioner on the Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Note by Judicial Commissioner, British Burma.

I HAVE compared the Bill with the English Statute, 46 & 47 Vic., cap. 52. With very few alterations the Bill reproduces the Statute. To criticize the Bill is in effect to discuss the Statute, which became law in England after very full consideration, and which is the outcome of the experience of some twenty years of the working of the Statute which it displaces. That Statute came into force just two years ago. I have no experience of its working and I can find very few cases bearing upon it.

It is desirable that the bankruptcy law of the Presidency-towns should as closely resemble that in force in England as local conditions will allow. I approve of the proposal to restrict the operation of the Bill to selected areas in which business is usually conducted on Western usages. As far as my own experience goes the greater part of the provisions of the Bill are unsuited to the small bankruptcies which usually come before the Courts of the interior, and those Courts have no agency for working the Bill.

From E. STACK, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 1047, dated 7th June, 1885).

IN reply to your letter No. 1045, dated the 17th June, 1885, I am directed to say that the Chief Commissioner thinks it unnecessary to offer any remarks on the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency, as the proposed Act is not likely to be wanted in this Province.

From A. MARTINDALE, Esq., Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 610—70, dated 3rd July, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1046, dated the 17th of June, 1885, forwarding for an expression of the Chief Commissioner's opinion, a draft Bill to amend the Law relating to Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India, with draft Statement of Objects and Reasons.

2. In reply, I am to say that, so far as the Officiating Chief Commissioner is able to judge, the Bill seems suited to the circumstances of the places to which it is proposed to apply it in the event of its becoming law.

From LIEUT.-COLONEL SIR E. R. C. BRADFORD, Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 807, dated 29th July, 1885).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1047, dated the 17th of May, 1885, forwarding copies of the papers noted on the margin, and in reply to state that I have no observations to offer on the provisions of the draft Bill.

From J. R. FITZGERALD, Esq., Secretary for Berar to Resident, Hyderabad, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 570G., dated 7th December, 1885).

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1048, dated the 17th June, forwarding, for the opinion of the Resident at Hyderabad, a draft Bill to amend the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. In reply, I am to inform you that, as the operation of the Bill is by paragraph 11 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons expressly and closely limited to certain seaport towns and commercial centres, of which none exist in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, Mr. Cordery has no observations to offer in the matter.

From R. BELCHAMBERS, Esq., Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 107, dated 13th February, 1886).

I SEND herewith copy of a letter from the Official Assignee and the original note received therewith.

From J. C. MACGREGOR, Esq., Official Assignee, Calcutta, to Registrar, High Court, Calcutta,—(No. 76, dated 13th February, 1886).

I HAVE the honour to enclose herewith a note on the Draft Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Note.

THE draft Bankruptcy Bill is, in my opinion, calculated to effect a great improvement on the existing law but I think that it follows the lines of the English Statute too closely, and requires certain alterations and modifications to adapt it to the requirements of this country. In the following note I have attempted to indicate section by section the amendments which seem to me to be most necessary or desirable.

Section 3 (1) (d).—I would add the words "or closes his place of business". A considerable number of the persons who pass through the Insolvent Court are Marwarrees, who reside in Native States and carry on business in the Presidency-towns by their gunashtas. Some such words as I have suggested would seem to be required to meet their cases.

I think the following clause, or one to the same effect, might be added with advantage:—"or suffers himself to be arrested or taken in execution for a debt not due, or submits collusively or fraudulently to an adverse decree, or procures himself, or his property, movable or immovable, to be attached or taken in execution."

Section 3 (1) (e) and (g).—These clauses are very sweeping; I think they should be modified.

Section 7.—I think the question is worthy of consideration whether up-country debtors, Native or European, should not be allowed to seek relief in the Bankruptcy Courts. The provisions of Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code apply only to judgment-debtors; they are very defective in many respects, and residents in the Mufassal have practically no really effective insolvency law.

Section 9 (2).—The power given to the Bankruptcy Court to stay suits, executions and other proceedings against the debtor in any Court should prove highly useful. When a debtor having property in the Mufassal files a petition of insolvency, his up-country creditors at once proceed to sue him in the local Courts and to attach his property, and, as the staying of such proceedings is, under the present law, a matter of some difficulty, the trouble, cost and delay of winding up his estate are greatly increased.

Section 11.—The Official Receiver should be empowered to appoint a special manager, with or without an application by the creditors, whenever he considers such functionary necessary. He should also be empowered to appoint the debtor to be special manager if he considers such appointment expedient, and without having imposed upon him the necessity of first procuring the sanction of the Court. It should further be provided that in the event of a private trustee not being appointed the special manager should be continued so long as the Official Receiver deems his services necessary.

The Official Receiver, who makes the appointment, might also be allowed to settle what security should be given by the special manager, and what remuneration, within certain limits proscribed by rule, he should be allowed. For reasons of economy, as well as of expedition, it is desirable to dispense, as far as may be, with frequent applications to the Court.

Section 14.—The provisions as to meetings of creditors do not seem to me to be suited for India. I believe that, in nine cases out of ten, creditors will not take the trouble to attend, or, at any rate, that only two or three of them will do so. In my opinion it would be well to omit all the provisions and rules as to meetings; or the proceeding by meetings might be made the exception instead of the rule, power being given to the Court to direct that, in any particular bankruptcy, meetings should be held. When no such direction is given the holding of meetings should not be compulsory but should be left to the discretion of the Official Receiver or Trustee. It might also be provided that a meeting should be called on a requisition signed by a certain number of creditors.

Section 15 (2).—Provision should be made for the preparation of the statement of affairs in the event of the debtor absconding or neglecting to prepare it. The present practice seems a convenient one and might be adopted. The Court, on the application of the Official Assignee or a creditor, directs the Chief Clerk to issue advertisements calling upon creditors to bring in statements of their claims supported by affidavit before a fixed date, and the Chief Clerk prepares a schedule from such statements.

The proviso to section 62 (2) authorizes the Official Receiver to employ some persons to assist "in the preparation of a statement of affairs" when the debtor himself cannot prepare it, but that does not go far enough, and will not be found sufficient in the not uncommon cases of residents up-country who hide in their native villages and put the Court at defiance.

Section 16 (9).—The declaration that the debtor's examination is concluded should not prevent his being brought up for further examination in the event of fresh facts transpiring which render such further examination desirable.

Section 17.—If, as I have suggested above, the provisions regarding meetings are omitted or not made compulsory in all cases, this section must be altered. The best plan would seem to be to enact that when a debtor makes a proposal for composition such proposal shall be submitted, in the first instance, to the Official Receiver who, if he considers it reasonable, shall either call a meeting of, or submit the proposal by circular to, the creditors. If the creditors, or a sufficient majority of them accept the proposal, it should then be submitted to the Court for sanction.

Section 20.—The power to appoint some person other than the Official Receiver to be trustee of the bankrupt's property is similar to that which the Court now possesses, under section 17 of the present Act, to order the election of a special assignee. I have not known a single instance in which that power has been used; and I believe the instances are very rare. In this country there will always be some difficulty in finding a fit and proper person who has the leisure and inclination to accept a very troublesome and responsible office. Again, it is a fact that native creditors are generally suspicious of one another, and prefer a responsible public officer to one of their own body. Nor is it likely that the creditors will often agree as to the person to be appointed, and the making of a selection by the Court will almost always involve delay, and possibly a tedious and contentious enquiry, attended with some considerable expense. The frequent changes among the European population would involve constant changes in the office of trustee of European bankruptcies and the cost and delay of repeated applications to the Court for appointment of a new trustee in place of a former one who has died or gone home. Management by a public officer has the further advantage of being cheaper than management by a private trustee. The former would not find himself under the constant necessity of consulting a solicitor, while, as a responsible permanent officer of the Court, he might be safely entrusted with a wide discretion and be allowed to take steps for which a private trustee would require the previous sanction of the Court. I have already adverted to the advisability of avoiding frequent applications to the Court. The little use that has been made of the existing power to appoint a special assignee seems to show clearly that administration of insolvent estates by official agency is better adapted to the circumstances of this country than their administration by private agency. I believe that if this section is passed in its present form it will be rarely, if ever, used, and I think, therefore, that it would be well to omit altogether the power to appoint a private trustee, and to entrust the administration of all bankrupt estates to a public officer.

If, however, it is thought expedient to retain that power, then I am clearly of opinion that the person appointed private trustee should always be one of the creditors of the bankrupt; otherwise there will be some danger that the provisions, if used at all, may give rise to a class of professional trustees, and that, when an estate which is likely to be lucrative is brought into Court, we may see several such persons canvassing for the trusteeship and trying to outbid one another.

Section 20 (6).—If it is thought expedient to retain the provisions as to appointment of private trustees in certain cases, then I would suggest that a trustee once appointed and approved by the Court should be removable from his office only by order of the Court on cause shown. It seems to me that this sub-section will increase the difficulty of getting proper persons to accept the office, inasmuch as it makes their tenure of office dependent upon the will of the creditors. The trustee should hold office, during good behaviour and not at the will of the creditors.

Section 21.—I think the power to appoint a committee of inspection will be as little used as the power to appoint a trustee, and that, whenever it is used, the committee will serve no useful purpose but will be a hindrance to the proper discharge of his duties by the trustee. I would, therefore, entirely omit this section. In the event of a private trustee being appointed the functions which the Bill gives to the committee of inspection might be exercised by the Official Receiver, while in cases when that officer is acting as trustee no controlling or inspecting authority other than the Court would seem to be necessary.

Section 22.—See my note on section 17, ante.

Section 23.—This and the three following sections should prove most useful. One of the great defects of the present Act is that it is comparatively easy for the insolvent to keep the Court and the Official Assignee at arms' length.

Section 26 (1).—I would add "or of any creditor who has proved his debt" after the word "trustee."

Section 26 (4) and (5).—Instead of the words "If any person on examination before the Court admits" I would say "If it shall appear to the Court on such examination that any person is indebted," &c. I would further suggest that the Court should be empowered to order the person examined, or any other person, to deliver any money or property which the examination showed him to have received from the debtor under such circumstances as to render it a fraudulent preference, also any property which the debtor has settled upon him by a settlement which would be void under section 41, and also any property which he appeared to hold bénéficiaire for the debtor.

Section 27 (3).—The following might be added to the list of facts proof of which shall render a bankrupt liable to have his discharge refused or suspended, namely:—(1) failing to give proper assistance in the realization of his assets; (2) procuring or assisting any person to raise a false claim to property of the bankrupt; or it would perhaps be better to add these to the offences punishable under section 105, in which case it would be unnecessary to repeat them here.

Section 27 (5).—When there are creditors residing out of India longer notice than 14 days should be given.

Section 27 (7).—This ought to be useful. One of the great difficulties of the present Act is that, in the great majority of cases, insolvents after obtaining personal discharge take no further trouble and give no assistance. The only way of punishing them is by refusing their final discharge, but this is practically ineffectual, as about 90 per cent. of the persons who become insolvent never apply for final discharge.

Section 32.—Would it not be well to specify who shall take the account—whether the Court or the trustee?

Section 34 (1) (b) and (c).—The present Act gives six months' wages, which seems reasonable.

Section 36 (2).—The present Act gives Rs. 300 as the limit of value of excepted articles. That does not seem excessive, especially in the case of Europeans.

Section 38 (2).—The concluding words of this clause seem to be unnecessary in India.

Section 48 (1).—The time allowed to the trustee to disclaim onerous property is the same as that given by the English Statute; but the circumstances of the two countries are so different that that time would frequently not suffice in India. I think the various periods mentioned should be doubled.

Section 50.—I have already said that I believe a committee of inspection will be rarely appointed, and even when one has been appointed I do not think the trustee should be obliged to ask its permission before he can exercise the powers specified in this section. To obtain that sanction will almost always involve delay, and in many of the matters specified expedition may be of the utmost importance. In cases when a person other than the Official Receiver is acting as trustee I would suggest that he should obtain the permission of the Official Receiver to exercise these powers. When the Official Receiver is acting as trustee he might be safely left to exercise them on his own responsibility and without sanction. See note on section 20.

Section 51 (2) and (3).—In a large number of cases it is quite impossible to declare a dividend within four months after the adjudication, or indeed to specify any time within which it will be possible to declare a first or any subsequent dividend. I would omit these two sub-sections. The words in sub-section (1)—"with all convenient speed"—will suffice to show that the trustee is to avoid all needless delay, and it will always be open to the creditors to bring undue delay to the notice of the Court.

Section 52 (2).—It will not always be possible to declare dividends of joint and separate property together, for instance, in the not uncommon case of a partner whose separate estate is not sufficient to pay any, or more than one, dividend, while the joint estate may suffice for several dividends; or the perhaps still more common case when the separate estate can pay 100 per cent. at once, while the difficulties connected with the winding up of the business render it impossible to declare a dividend on the joint estate for many months.

Section 57 (1) and (2).—For the reasons given in my notes on sections 20 and 50 I would omit the reference to the committee of inspection and would substitute the Official Receiver as the authority to give the requisite permission to a private trustee, while in cases in which the Official Receiver is acting as trustee would allow him to exercise the powers without previous permission.

Sections 59 to 62.—Part IV, which treats of Official Receivers, is one of the most important parts of the Bill, and seems to me to require a good deal of amendment to make it, as it should be, one of the most useful.

In the first place I would observe that the title "Official Receiver" will be likely to cause some confusion. There is already in Calcutta an officer whose official designation is Receiver of the High Court, but who is commonly described as the Official Receiver. Why not retain for the officer to be appointed under the new Act the title of "Official Assignee," with which the Indian public are now familiar?

I would submit that in common justice it should be expressly provided that the persons who, when this measure passes into law, may be Official Assignees of the present Insolvent Courts should be appointed to be the first Official Receivers (or whatever other title may be given to that officer), and that the rights of their respective establishments to employment not less remunerative than they now enjoy, or to compensation, should be expressly preserved. The Bill to amend the Insolvency Law, introduced by Sir J. F. Stephen in 1871, proposed to substitute Comptrollers in Bankruptcy for the Official Assignees and contained an express provision that the existing Official Assignees should be the first Comptroller in their respective Presidencies. Similarly, the English Act of 1883 (sections 94 and 163) saves the rights of all persons holding office under the old Act.

The only reference to the Official Assignee made in the Bill is in section 134 (4), which provides that proceedings pending when the measure comes in to force shall be continued as if the Act had not been passed, and that for the purposes of such proceedings the Official Receiver shall be deemed to have been appointed Official Assignee. This shows that the framers of the measure consider the new office analogous to the old one, and it would certainly save much confusion, so long as any proceedings continue under the old law, that is to say, for at least two or three years after the new law comes into force, if the Official Assignees are retained in office as Official Receivers, and use is made of their experience to bring the new procedure into working order.

In a country like India where fraud is not only more common and more subtle, but where the facilities for its successful prosecution are infinitely greater, than in England, it is in the highest degree essential that the powers of the Official Receiver or Trustee (I continue to use the titles used in the Bill, although I have suggested that the former should be changed and that trustees should be altogether omitted) should be strengthened.

One of the main defects of the existing law, and one of the principal reasons,—perhaps the principal reason,—why it works so unsatisfactorily, is because of the very limited power it gives to the Official Assignee. I admit that these powers are theoretically fairly extensive, but practically they are all but non-existent. He can hardly take a step save at great risk of personal liability. To give only a few examples: an insolvent has no property in Calcutta, but the Official Assignee is informed, perhaps by the insolvent himself, that there is large property in the Mufassal; he takes possession of that property and proceeds to sell it; it almost invariably happens that a number of claimants spring up, who at once file suits against him in the local Courts; the Official Assignee having no assets in hand, is obliged to decide whether to withdraw from possession at once at the risk of being blamed by the Court or the creditors, or to defend the suits at the risk of being made personally liable for costs. Or again, the Official Assignee ascertains that property which is in the possession of a third party is really the property of the insolvent; if, as often happens, he has no assets, he cannot seize that property without exposing himself to the risk of being held personally liable in a suit for damages. I might multiply instances of the difficulties which confront the Official Assignee under the present law, but I will give only one more—one of not uncommon occurrence. A man files his petition with no other object than that of gaining time and avoiding arrest; he brings in little or no assets, and, as soon as he has got his order for ad interim protection, he studiously absents himself from the Official Assignee's Office, and begins behind that Officer's back, to settle with his creditors taking the more importunate first. If the operation takes a long time he applies from time to time for an adjournment of the hearing; and when he has thus purchased the acquiescence or silence of all of them he comes before the Court; there is no opposition, and he gets his discharge almost as a matter of course. This is generally the true explanation of a very common occurrence in the Insolvency Court, namely, the sudden and apparently unaccountable collapse of an opposition which had commenced with every appearance of vigour and bona fides. It is easy to say that when the Official Assignee has reason to believe that anything of this kind is going on he has only to bring it to the notice of the Court, and to apply for an order which shall force all creditors who have been paid behind his back to disgorge. But this is not so easy in practice as in theory. When there are no assets, or only nominal assets, in the Official Assignee's hands, it is practically impossible, and even when he has assets he cannot do it, as the law now stands, without running the risk of personal liability for costs.

For these reasons I think that the principal ministerial officer in each bankruptcy should be invested with very extensive inquisitorial, and even quasi-judicial, powers. He should be empowered to enter upon the premises of the debtor at all times, and to seize any property which he has reason to believe to be the property of the debtor, even though it be in the actual possession of a third party; he should be allowed to summon before him the debtor or any person whom he believes to be in a position to throw light on the debtor's affairs, and to examine them upon oath; perjury committed on such examinations should be liable to the same punishment as perjury committed in Court, and disobedience to such summons should be treated as a contempt of Court and a ground for refusing discharge; in all suits brought by or against him he should be described by his official title, and no suit should lie against him personally for any act done by him bona fide in the performance of his duties; he should be entitled to two or three months' notice prior to the institution of any suit against him, and suits not instituted within twelve months from the date of the cause of action should be barred; he should be allowed to apply to the Court at all times for advice and instructions, and should have power to bring before it any debtor or person whom he suspects to hold property of the debtor. If an estate is being administered by a private trustee, that trustee should have all, or most, of the same powers and privileges. It may perhaps be objected that such powers are too extensive to be conferred upon any person whom the creditors might select as trustee. That may be, and I think is, a strong argument against the whole system of private trusteeship in Indian bankruptcies. But it does not follow that the powers are too extensive to confer upon a responsible public officer, who would doubtless be selected with a view to his special fitness for their exercise, and who, it may be presumed, although the Bill does not expressly say so, would in all cases be a professional lawyer. It might be well to provide expressly that the Official Receiver shall always be a barrister.

Finally, if the provisions as to private trustees are not abandoned, then the Official Receiver should exercise over private trustees the functions which the Bill gives to the committee of inspection; the trustees should be subordinated to his authority and control, and should be required to furnish him with periodical accounts and reports, and to obey his directions in all matters respecting the estates under their charge.

Section 63.—If, as I have already suggested, the idea of allowing private trustees is abandoned, this section will be unnecessary or will require much alteration. Assuming, however, that that idea is retained as part of the Bill, I would remark that the proposed method of remunerating trustees by a commission, calculated partly on the assets realized, and partly on the amount distributed in dividends, is very much fairer than the present system, whereby the Official Assignee is remunerated only by a commission on dividends—a system which has the result that a large number of estates, some of them involving great labour and responsibility, bring him absolutely no remuneration. But I fail to see the justice of denying him commission on sums which he may pay to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities. If he has the trouble of realising those securities he should surely be paid for that trouble. This is recognised by the general rules passed under several of the English Bankruptcy Acts (see General Rules under Act of 1883, Nos. 65 to 69), which direct that when a trustee sells mortgaged property under order of Court his commission and costs shall be a first charge on the proceeds.

I would further remark that the fixing of the remuneration should not be left to the creditors; to do so will give rise to bargaining and will have the effect of degrading the office of trustee. The remuneration should be regulated either by the Act or by a rule of court.

Section 64 (3) would seem to imply that the trustees must get the sanction of the Court before employing Solicitors, auctioneers, &c. This will necessitate frequent applications to the Court, always attended with more or less expense and delay. The employment of such persons might be left to the discretion of the trustee.

Section 65.—The provisions regarding the bankruptcy estates account will impose considerable labour upon the Court, and will necessitate the creation of a new establishment. At present all moneys and securities belonging to insolvent estates are deposited in the Bank of Bengal in the name of the Official Assignee, and that officer has a staff which is specially adapted for, and well acquainted with, the keeping of the necessary accounts, while the fact that his accounts are regularly and strictly audited by the Comptroller General's Office affords an effectual guarantee against fraud or carelessness. I have already suggested that the Official Assignee should be appointed Official Receiver, and that his staff should be taken over by the Official Receiver. I would add the further suggestion that the bankruptcy estates account should be kept in his name and under his control, the system of a Government audit and a half yearly report by the auditors to the Chief Justice being continued as at present.

Section 67 (1).—The investment in Government securities should stand in the name of the Official Receiver, and the interest should be devoted to paying his salary and pension (if he is to be remunerated by salary), the salaries and pensions of his establishment, his office and audit charges, and to the costs of advertising and of administering poor estates, so as to leave as large a portion as possible of the assets available for the creditors. This is the present system, which was established many years ago with the sanction of the then Chief Justice on the recommendation of the auditors of the Official Assignee's accounts. It has the advantage of utilising for the general purposes of administration of insolvent estates a large number of cash-balances of individual estates which, by reason of their smallness or liability to immediate demands, could not be separately invested. It removes from the corpus of individual estates the heavy burden of a proportional share of the cost of administration, and substitutes a simple and economical machinery for a clumsy and costly system.

Section 67 (2).—The proposed procedure will take time and cause some expense. If the invested funds are allowed to stand in the name of the Official Receiver for the time being, he can, when necessary, sell them with a minimum of delay and expense, and the audit will be an effectual check upon any misuse of that power.

Section 68.—In this section I would substitute "Official Receiver" for "Court" in respect of all cases in which a private trustee is appointed. Where the Official Receiver is acting as trustee the regular Government audit of, and periodical report upon, his accounts will suffice. These alterations would save the Court much labour, without diminishing the efficacy of the proposed checks.

Section 72.—My remarks on section 68 will apply, mutatis mutandis, to this section also.

Section 79.—I would substitute the words "Official Receiver" for "committee of inspection." See notes on sections 20 and 50, ante.

Section 86.—The delegation of powers to a Judge of the Small Cause Court seems most objectionable. The time of the Judges of that Court is already very fully occupied; examinations of debtors or of persons suspected of having in their possession property of the debtor frequently take up several days; and it is certain that in a large number of cases the Small Cause Court would not be able, without a considerable increase to the number of Judges, to give those matters the time and attention they require. Moreover, complicated and difficult questions of law arise so frequently in bankruptcy-proceedings that it is most desirable that every step should be taken before a Judge of the High Court. I agree with the Select Committee on the Small Cause Courts Bill of 1880 in thinking that unless the Small Cause Courts are to hear cases which, owing to their length, intricacy and difficulty, ought to be removed to the High Court, the saving of time to the latter tribunal will be altogether unimportant. If, as before suggested, the powers of the Official Receiver are extended, he will be able to dispose of a large portion of the petty business. Should his aid not suffice, it would, I believe, be found better and cheaper to appoint a special Registrar for bankruptcy-business, as in England, than to delegate a portion of that business to the already over-burdened Small Cause Court.

Section 91.—If the Bankruptcy Courts are allowed to delegate powers to a Small Cause Court Judge, there should be a provision for appeal from his orders.

Section 94.—I think it would be advisable to empower the Court to give the carriage of proceedings to the Official Receiver or trustee, whenever it has reason to suspect that the want of diligence on the part of the petitioning creditor is due to his having made an illegal arrangement with the debtor. The case is one of frequent occurrence in this country.

Section 103 (b).—I would omit the words "with the permission of the Court", as their retention will necessitate frequent applications to the Court with their attendant delay and cost. The Official Receiver, as a permanent officer of the Court, may be entrusted with a wide discretion, and his position will be a sufficient guarantee against abuse of that discretion.

Section 105.—The following offences, all of which are common in this country, might be added to the list of offences which will render a debtor liable to punishment under this section, namely:—fraudulently making away with property; improperly interfering with, or hindering, the trustee in the realization of the bankrupt's property; doing, or procuring the doing of, any act which is likely to prevent the disposal of the property at its full value (for instance, inducing bidders to absent themselves from the trustee's sales); showing fraudulent preference to any creditor; entering into a composition with his creditors, or any of them, without giving notice thereof to the Official Receiver or trustee; inducing any creditor by an illegal gratification or preference to withdraw, or neglect to proceed with, a petition, or to acquiesce in the discharge of the bankrupt.

Section 110.—The Bankruptcy Court should be empowered to try offences under the Act, and to pass sentence, without sending the offender to the ordinary Criminal Courts.

Section 113.—This section would seem to exclude ordinary business partnerships from the operation of the Act. It is not, however, likely to be held to have that meaning, as it follows the words of the English Statute, and there is no doubt that such partnerships are constantly adjudicated in England. Still it might be well to make the wording clearer.

Section 132 (2).—The present system of investing unclaimed dividends in the name of the Official Assignee, and devoting the interest to the maintenance of his office and to administering poor estates, works well, and there seems no reason why it should not be continued. See note on section 67 (1), ante.

Schedule II.—The English rules regarding the sale of mortgaged property and the taking of mortgagees' accounts (General Rules 65 to 69) are frequently followed here. They have been found to work admirably and to effect a considerable saving of time and expense in realizing mortgage-securities. I would suggest their incorporation in this schedule. The rules in question are substantially the same as those issued by Lord

Loughborough in 1794, and the fact that they have been retained, with slight alterations, under the various Bankruptcy Acts passed since that date is strong evidence of their utility.

I have now finished my remarks on the Draft Bill, but before closing my note I desire to add a few words on subjects not mentioned therein.

First.—I submit that Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code should be repealed as regards the local limits of the Courts created under the new law. There seems no valid reason for maintaining in the same place two entirely distinct systems of insolvency law. That the application of Chapter XX to the Presidency-towns has not caused very great confusion is, I take it due only to the rarity of the instances in which the provisions of that chapter have been used. There is, however, a recent case in which the two systems came into direct conflict. I allude to Pigot v. Hastie (I.L.R. 11 Cal.). The defendant, Mr. Hastie, was on his own application declared an insolvent under the Civil Procedure Code, and was on the same day adjudicated under the provisions of 11 & 12 Vic., c. 21, on the petition of the plaintiff. The fact that the Official Assignee, in whom his estate became vested under the latter proceeding, was also appointed Receiver under the former, alone prevented the raising of serious difficulties and confusion. Moreover, the principles of the Civil Procedure Code insolvency, although they may be adapted for the Mufassal, are altogether unsuited for the Presidency-towns, and will be quite out of place beside the elaborate system of the new measure.

Second.—The introduction, either as part of the Bill or as a separate enactment, of a system of compulsory registration of mortgages on moveable property, similar to the English Bills of Sale Acts, would be a most valuable auxiliary to the bankruptcy law. It is a matter of frequent occurrence, when a tradesman comes before the Insolvent Court, to find that his entire assets are mortgaged to one or two creditors, and that he has been trading for years on a credit which he would certainly never have obtained had there been any means of ascertaining the real state of his affairs. A notable instance of this kind occurred some months ago, when, on the occasion of a well-known and old established trading firm in Calcutta becoming insolvent, it transpired for the first time that their entire stock-in-trade and outstandings were mortgaged to two creditors, who stepped in at once and seized and sold the property. There are some 500 other creditors, to some of whom the firm owed large sums, and none of whom are likely to get any dividend, the entire assets having been swallowed up by the mortgage-debts. It may safely be assumed that had the mortgages been registered, thus affording the public an opportunity of learning their existence, the firm in question would not have obtained such long and extensive credit, and many of the 500 unsecured creditors would have been saved from serious loss. This is only one of many similar instances which have occurred lately.

Third.—A system of compulsory registration of business-partnerships would also be highly valuable.

Fourth.—The system of what are known as bendmi transactions is one of the most serious difficulties in the administration of insolvent estates and if any means could be devised of grappling with it successfully an enormous boon would be conferred upon the country. I am well aware of the great difficulty of the subject, and I merely throw out the suggestion as one which might be appropriately considered concurrently with the amendment of the bankruptcy law.

From C. A. WILKINS, Esq., Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(No. 570, dated 27th February, 1886).

IN continuation of my letter No. 3049 of the 30th November, 1885, I am directed to forward the accompanying printed copy of a report prepared by a sub-committee of the Judges of this Court, as well as a printed copy of a note* by the Official Assignee, on the provisions of the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

2. I am to request that you will be good enough to submit these papers for the consideration of the Governor General in Council.

3. I am to add that the High Court concurs generally in the observations made by its sub-committee, and that any further observations that may occur to any individual Judge will be communicated in due course for the information of His Excellency in Council.

Report of the Committee of Judges appointed to consider the provisions of the Bankruptcy Bill.

WE regret the lapse of time which has occurred since the Bankruptcy Bill was submitted for our opinion; but the changes which are sought to be introduced by the Bill required grave consideration, and it has therefore been impossible to avoid the delay which has taken place.

We have held repeated sittings, and have come to the conclusions which are hereafter particularly mentioned.

We were met by the preliminary difficulty that the Bill as drafted is, as it professes to be, a reproduction of the last English Bankruptcy Act, introducing English law and methods of procedure and English phraseology, and we had to decide whether the proposal to introduce the English Bankruptcy Act with modifications into this country offered advantages sufficient to counterbalance the mischief of completely upsetting a system to which, from the practice of many years, the Court, the practitioners and the suitors had become accustomed.

We have come to the general conclusion that much of the substance of the English law and system of procedure may be introduced in India, but that some important parts of it are wholly inapplicable.

On the other hand we think it preferable to adopt the phraseology of the English Act, except where there is strong reason for not doing so, as thereby the Courts in this country will have the assistance of the decisions of the English Courts.

For the sake of convenience we have dealt with the Bill in the order of the sections.

The following are our recommendations:—

1. We think the proposed form of legislation open to question. An enabling Statute followed by an Indian Act will give rise to questions as to whether the Indian Act has exceeded the powers given to it by the English Statute. The best course will be for the Indian legislature to pass such Act as may be deemed suited to the requirements of the country, and then to obtain from Parliament a Statute confirming and ratifying the Indian Act.

2. We do not think that the provisions for the appointment of trustees and of committees of inspection are suited to this country. It will be very difficult in most cases to induce creditors to meet together, and in many cases it will be quite impossible to expect creditors residing at a distance to attend any meeting.

Power is given to the Court by section 17 of the Indian Insolvent Act (11 & 12 Vic., cap. 21) to order the election of assignees by the creditors; but such power has rarely, if ever, been exercised. As far as we can ascertain, in only one case in recent years have creditors applied to the Court for an order under this section; but, although this shows that creditors prefer to see the estates of insolvents administered by the Official Assignee, there would be no harm in inserting in the new Act a provision similar to that contained in section 17 of the present Act.

Shortly, the objections to the administration of insolvent estates by creditors through trustees and committees of inspection are—

- (1) danger to the interests of creditors residing at a distance: the whole administration would be in the hands of Calcutta creditors;
- (2) the general body of creditors would not place the same amount of confidence in a trustee or in a committee of inspection as they would in a competent court officer such as the Official Assignee;
- (3) the expenses of an administration by the creditors would be very large: in all cases the trustee, and in many cases the committee of inspection, would have to be remunerated: the former would be paid by commission, but the latter would be paid according to the number of their meetings, and would therefore not be inclined to expedite the winding up of the estates: with an Official Assignee representing the creditors, the legal expenses of the administration are minimised, as the Official Assignee is usually a Barrister of some standing; in the case of administration by the creditors, no step would be taken without legal assistance, which would have to be paid for out of the estate.

For these reasons we would strike out from the Bill, as now drawn, the following sections, namely:—sections 11, 14, 17, 18, 19 (sub-sections (2) and (3)), 20, 21, 22, so much of section 23 as relates to meetings of creditors, sections 63 to 81 (both inclusive), section 103, sub-section (b), and section 118; and the following sections will require alteration, namely:—sections 47, 50, 110 and 132. The first schedule will also become unnecessary.

3. We think it important that the insolvency sections of the Procedure Code should cease to apply to the Presidency towns.

As the law at present stands it is possible for a debtor in Calcutta to seek relief from his debts both under the Civil Procedure Code and under the Insolvent Act. The main advantage to an insolvent of proceeding under the Code is that he can under section 336 be relieved from imprisonment as soon as he is arrested. The main advantage of proceeding under the Act is that if he be a trader he can get his final discharge without paying any portion of his debts. There are also many other points of difference between the two systems of insolvency, that under the Code being very unsuited to the requirements of a commercial city like Calcutta.

The disadvantages of having two different systems of insolvency law and procedure applicable to the same place do not require enumeration. They have been made apparent in two cases, in which recently attempts have been made to work the two systems concurrently (in the matter of Hustie, I. L. R. 11 Calc. 151, and in the matter of Leckie, now pending).

4. We recommend that the expression "vesting order" should take the place of the expression "receiving order" in the Act, and that the court officer to whom the management of the estates of insolvents is to be entrusted should be called the "Official Assignee" and not the "Official Receiver." There is already an Official Receiver of the High Court, and the appointment of another officer with the same official designation but with different powers and duties would lead to confusion.

5. Section 3, sub-section (1) (d), should be altered to meet the case of a man carrying on a business by himself, or by his agent or gunáshta, and closing such business. Under the 9th section of the present Insolvent Act, a trader who with intent to defeat or delay his creditors departs from his usual place of business within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is liable to be adjudicated an insolvent, and it is on this ground that most adjudications are made.

We do not think that paragraphs (e) and (g) of sub-section (1) of section 3 ought to be retained. In their place we would recommend the introduction of provisions similar to those contained in sections 8 and 9 of the present Act, as to persons lying in prison 21 days, and as to fraudulent executions, including not only executions in fraud of creditors generally but also executions in the nature of fraudulent preferences.

6. The effect of the proposed Act would be to limit the insolvency jurisdiction of the High Court. By section 18 of the Charter of the Calcutta High Court (1865) it is provided "that the Court for Relief of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta shall be held before one of the Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal; and the said High Court, and any such Judge thereof, shall have and exercise, within the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, such powers and authorities with respect to original and appellate jurisdiction and otherwise as are constituted by the laws relating to insolvent debtors in India." By section 5 of the Indian Insolvent Act an insolvent debtor who is in prison within the limits of the town of Calcutta, or who resides within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court at Calcutta, can petition for relief. The Supreme Court at Calcutta had a personal jurisdiction over all European British subjects residing in Bengal. Their jurisdiction over persons other than European British subjects was limited to the town of Calcutta. It is settled law that the effect of these provisions is to entitle all European British subjects who reside in Bengal to petition for relief from their debts, but that persons other than European British subjects cannot so petition unless they actually reside within the limits of Calcutta. In the cases of creditors' petitions the only limit of jurisdiction seems to arise from the acts of bankruptcy, some of which are restricted to the areas mentioned in the Insolvent Act. This is not a question of a choice between two jurisdictions, as the insolvency procedure applicable to Courts outside Calcutta cannot pretend to be efficient or to meet in the smallest degree the requirements of the commercial classes. We think therefore that the present insolvency jurisdiction of the High Court in this respect should not be curtailed.

7. We think that in the case of a debtor's petition the vesting order should be made at once, and as a matter of course, on the reception of the petition.

In the case of a creditor's petition we think that, as at present, if a prima facie case be made out on the petition, the debtor should be adjudicated an insolvent and his property vested in the Official Assignee at once. Any delay in making the vesting order would make it impossible in most cases to save any of the debtor's property for his creditors. In order to prevent the risk of an improper adjudication it will be well to provide that the debtor may at any time before his public examination come in and apply to have his adjudication annulled, and that it shall be so annulled unless the creditor satisfies the Court that the debtor has committed an act of bankruptcy. Section 19, sub-sections (2) and (3), might therefore be omitted from the Bill.

8. Section 9 of the proposed Bill does not clearly provide for ad interim protection-orders, and therefore we recommend that power should be given to the Court, in terms similar to the provisions of section 13 of the Indian Insolvent Act, to grant orders for the protection of insolvents for such time as the Court might direct. The granting of such protection should be within the discretion of the Court, and the Court should have power to revoke a protection-order at any time.

9. We think that the mere fact "that a majority of the creditors in number and value are resident in the United Kingdom or in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions beyond the limits of British India" should not give a creditor or other person the right to set aside an adjudication, and we recommend that in section 13 of the Bill the above words in italics should be transposed and placed between the words "the debtor" and the words "other cause" later on in the same section.

10. With reference to section 15, sub-section (1), we think that the statement of affairs should be filed in court, and that a copy should be filed in the office of the Official Assignee. It is necessary that there should be two copies, and it is desirable that of the two the one filed in court should be taken as the original statement with respect to sub-section (4) of section 15. We think that the statement therein mentioned should be in a written application for inspection, to be filed in court.

11. Section 16, sub-section (9), should empower the Court at any subsequent stage to reopen the public examination and to order a fresh examination of the debtor.

12. We do not think that in this country any creditors, however superior in number or value, should be allowed to force a composition upon the other creditors.

13. Section 23 should require the insolvent to attend at the Official Assignee's office or wherever required by the Official Assignee, and to give that officer every assistance in realizing his estate and distributing the proceeds.

14. All references to a bankruptcy-notice should be struck out of section 24.

15. In addition to the powers mentioned in section 26 we think that the Court should have power at any time after a vesting order has been made, upon application by the Official Assignee ex parte, to make an order empowering the Official Assignee to take possession of any property as the property of the insolvent. With regard to such property and also with regard to other property which may be claimed by the Official Assignee or the creditors to belong to the estate, we think that the Court should have the same power as in a regular suit, and with the same right of appeal to determine finally all questions between the insolvent's estate and persons in possession of or claiming such property. The High Court should be empowered to frame rules of procedure for the trial of these questions, and also for the payment of the expenses of witnesses to be examined under section 26.

16. Section 27 of the proposed Bill seems to place upon the opposing creditor the burden of proving that the debtor is unworthy of obtaining his discharge. We think that a debtor should, before any relief is granted to him, satisfy the Court, not only that he has not been guilty of the acts specified in the Bill as disentitling him to his discharge, but also that he has been neither dishonest in his dealings nor culpably imprudent in respect of his personal expenditure or the conduct of his business. This principle has been recognized by the legislature in section 361 of the Civil Procedure Code.

We think that section 27 should be altered so as to permit the debtor, should the Court refuse to grant him a discharge, to renew his application for such discharge at a future date; otherwise it might be held that if the Court had once refused to grant an order of discharge the debtor was for ever thereafter debarred from obtaining such discharge. On the other hand it will be necessary by some limitation to prevent frequent applications to the Court upon the same materials.

17. It will be necessary to provide for the discharge of the debtor in the case of the whole body of his creditors releasing him from the whole or a portion of his debts. Section 58 will also have to be altered to meet this event.

18. With reference to section 29 of the Bill we think it will be as well to give the Court power in discharging an insolvent to exempt him from arrest, either generally, or with the exception of particular debts, or after such period as to the Court may seem fit.

We would also recommend that in this section the words "any person for any offence against an enactment relating to any branch of the public revenue" should be struck out, and that the words "Secretary of State" be substituted therefor.

19. In the case of an adjudication being annulled on the ground that the debt alleged by the petitioning creditor was not a good debt, we think that the Court should have power to allow the bankruptcy to proceed as upon the debt of another creditor.

20. With reference to section 36, we would point out that in Calcutta rents are payable monthly, and that, therefore, the landlord should not be entitled after the bankruptcy to levy for more than three months' rent.

21. With regard to section 37 we think that in the case of a debtor's petition the assignee's title should commence at the date of the vesting order, and not before.

22. We do not think that an attaching creditor should be entitled to any priority over other creditors, unless the proceeds of execution have been paid to him. This alteration might be effected by striking out from section 39 the words "realised in the course of execution by sale or otherwise," and substituting therefor the words "actually received by such person."

As the law at present stands, a creditor who procures an attachment before the vesting order is in a better position by reason of the insolvency of his debtor than he would be without it, as he obtains a title preferable to that of the general body of creditors; and other decree-holders who would, under the Code, on obtaining orders for attachment, be entitled to share pari passu with him, are prevented by the insolvency from effecting attachments.

23. Section 50 should be altered so as to give the Official Assignee, with the leave of the Court, power to do the acts therein mentioned.

24. As to sub-section (1) of section 62, the only part which, having regard to our previous recommendation, need remain, is the part relating to advertisements. The duties, powers and liabilities of the Official Assignee should, however, be clearly defined. We think that his liability should only extend to assets in his hands, unless the Court should find that he had not acted bona fide in the performance of his duties. We also recommend that he should be entitled to at least one month's notice of action in respect of acts done by him in his official capacity.

25. In sub-section (2) of section 62 the words from "but shall" to "claiming to be creditors" should be struck out.

26. Part V of the Bill requires alteration to meet the case of the Official Assignee, who is an officer of the court. The Court should have power to determine the amount of commission or percentage payable to him. We think that if, at the request of a secured creditor, he realizes the security, the Court should have power to sanction the payment to him of a percentage on the amount realised.

27. We do not think it desirable that the extension of the Act to local Courts as contemplated by section 82, clause (c), and section 83, clause (c), should be carried out, except through the action of the supreme legislature.

28. We have already discussed the effect of section 83, clause (a).

29. We think that section 85 should be struck out, and that the Insolvency Court at Calcutta should have power to transfer to itself any insolvency proceedings under the Civil Procedure Code which may at any time be pending in the Civil Courts subject to the High Court.

30. We think that section 89 should be struck out.

31. It should be made clear that the powers proposed to be given to the Court by section 90 extend to persons other than insolvent debtors and their creditors.

32. Having regard to our other recommendations, section 99 requires alteration, and section 103 (b) and the proviso at the end of section 103 should be struck out.

33. If section 109 is intended to apply to compositions under the Act, it should in our opinion be struck out.

34. We presume that it is intended by section 113 to prevent a receiving order being made against a partnership in its firm name. If so, the section should be made clearer.

35. We do not recommend that estates of persons dying insolvent should be administered in the Bankruptcy Court, except in the cases where they die during the pendency of bankruptcy-proceedings.

36. Having regard to our previous recommendations, it will be unnecessary to retain the second paragraph of section 132.

37. We think that the rights of present officers of the Insolvent Court in respect of pension or otherwise should be saved.

In conclusion we wish to remark that in this report we have only called attention to the general principles on which we think the Bill requires alteration.

There are many questions of detail which will have to be considered before a Bankruptcy Bill is passed into law.

From S. E. J. CLARKE, Esq., Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department,—(dated 30th April, 1886).

My Committee have submitted their remarks upon the new Bankruptcy Bill for India to the Government of Bengal, who will doubtless forward them to you in due course, but in order to save time now that the draft Bill is before the Legislative Council I am directed to send you with this letter four extra copies of the Chamber's letter of this date.

From S. E. J. CLARKE, Esq., Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, to Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Bengal,—(dated 30th April, 1886).

I AM directed by my Committee, in reply to your No. 1335 J. D. of 8th July last, to submit the following observations upon the draft Bill to amend the law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India.

Generally, my Committee are of opinion that the Bill makes a much needed improvement in the law at present in force. Should the Bill become law, and if its administration be carried out with close care and attention, it will do much to simplify proceedings in insolvency and, my Committee believe, to check fraudulent bankruptcies. It will thus afford a larger measure of convenience than heretofore to unfortunate persons, whilst at the same time it will extend to creditors some measure of that protection which the mercantile community especially have long desiderated, and the need for which has been pressed upon the Government at various times by the Chamber of Commerce.

Whilst accepting the Bill as an improvement upon the existing law, my Committee think that in some points it does not sufficiently recognise the peculiar circumstances of India, or the difficulties which those circumstances frequently place in the way of creditors, or the facilities which are offered to Native dealers in evading the payment of their debts. This subject has been long before the Government and the public; and, whilst admitting the difficulties which surround it, my Committee still think it is a matter to be kept very closely in mind in framing any new insolvency law for British India. Indeed, in spite of the failure, some years ago, which attended the attempt to frame a Bill to provide for the registration of partnerships, my Committee cannot but consider that it is extremely desirable that a new enquiry should be made with the view to ascertain whether such a registration cannot be secured, or to bring into prominence the existing provisions of the law in India which afford to some extent the protection to be derived from such a measure. Since the failure both in Bombay and Calcutta to draft a satisfactory Bill dealing with this subject some change has come over the views of Native merchants, and the more prominent among them have evinced a desire to have the question re-opened. Those who have transactions directly with English markets and in the natural development of Indian trade, the number of whom is slowly but steadily increasing, evince quite as much anxiety for the passing of a law to compel a registration of partnerships as the European mercantile community. It would be well if, in connection with so large and important a measure as a new Bankruptcy Bill for all India, a careful and exhaustive enquiry were made into the subject of the registration of partnerships.

Another extremely difficult subject to deal with, but one which, when a bankruptcy measure is before the legislature, should not be overlooked, is the practical exemption which a fraudulent Native trader can acquire by taking shelter within the jurisdiction of some Native State. My Committee are aware of instances where Europeans have availed themselves of this shelter to avoid decrees of the High Court, and though in the case of Europeans the shelter might not be so effectual as in the case of Natives, yet the fact ought not to escape the attention of the legislature that under present circumstances for a Native insolvent to cross from British into Native territory is to give him an immunity the certainty of obtaining which is found to encourage reckless speculation and a ready resort to fraudulent practices. The impunity with which a fraudulent Native debtor can set his creditors at defiance, and in especial the smallness of the dividends derivable from the estates of Native insolvents, have been grievances of the mercantile community in this city for very many years. Indeed, so far back as 1853, the latter formed the subject of a reference from the Chamber of Commerce to Mr. John Oochrane, the then Official Assignee. What the Chamber then complained of is still a serious ground of complaint. There seems to be no good reason why, with proper precautions, decrees of the Indian High Courts should not be allowed to run in the jurisdiction of Native States. The matter is one which my Committee feel is most properly within the province of the Foreign Department of the Government of India, but they see no reason why the Legislative Department should not move the Foreign Office to deal effectually with so important a question, nor why the Foreign Department should not undertake this task in close communication with the Legislative Department, and, if need be, with the Judges of the High Courts in India. The greater the improvement in the bankruptcy law of India and the greater the simplicity which may mark the procedure of the Insolvency Courts, the greater will be the anxiety of a Native insolvent who has been guilty of fraud, concealment of property, the setting up of fictitious co-partners or wrongful preference of particular creditors to avoid appearing before an Insolvency Commissioner; and in this way it may well happen that improvements in law and procedure will have a tendency to accentuate and render more acute the grievance alluded to above and which is felt equally in all the great trading centres of India.

One change of great moment effected by the Bill is that which makes a trustee appointed by the creditors the primary authority for administering an insolvent's estate, whilst the Official Receiver is only to act if the creditors fail to appoint a trustee.

Section 14 of the Bill has the support of my Committee. It should, however, in their opinion, be made clear that, if the creditors of an insolvent will not attend a meeting to consider his position, the Official Receiver shall have the powers to act in the premises upon his own responsibility. My Committee do not feel themselves in a position to recommend that the powers now vested in the Official Assignee, which powers they consider all that are reasonably necessary to enable him to take possession of the property of a bankrupt and to realise the same for the benefit of the creditors, should be extended. But with reference to clause (5) of section 26, they can see no objection why a larger measure of protection than he now enjoys should not be given to the Official Receiver. Where it is clear that that officer has acted in good faith, they consider that he should not be held personally responsible in the event of its being shown that he acted under a mistake or upon information wrong in itself but accepted by him as correct. Redress in such cases should, my Committee venture to think, be obtainable not at the expense of the Official Assignee but at the cost of the estate concerned.

It is a frequent subject of complaint that an insolvent's books are not promptly forthcoming, that his accounts are confused and in many cases unintelligible, that there is a want of system in presenting an insolvent's accounts, and that schedules are amended as a matter of form. Reviewing these matters it appears desirable that the office of the Official Receiver should be strengthened by having attached to it an experienced professional accountant. The books of an insolvent should vest in the Official Receiver from the date of the adjudication order. A report should be made at the next sitting of the Court that the books are either in the Official Receiver's hands or under his authority and control. The accounts of the estate could then, as might prove most convenient, be made up either in the office of the Official Receiver, where the insolvent would attend for this purpose, or in the insolvent's office under the inspection of the official accountant. In either case creditors would receive additional and much needed security, time would be saved and a greater interest in the settlement of the estate be exhibited on the part of creditors. It will be seen that this suggestion does not in any way throw obstacles in the way of a bankrupt's access to his books or to his closing of them correctly. It would compel him rather to avoid all unnecessary delays, and to furnish the Court with as correct a statement of his position as possible at the earliest possible moment. The immediate supervision of the preparation of this statement by the official accountant, or his close inspection of the books whilst it was being drawn up, would effectually deprive insolvents of the many common excuses which are now put forward for delaying the making over to the Official Assignee of the records of a business. The provisions of the draft Act as to the delivering up of a bankrupt's books should be thoroughly and carefully enforced, and as a corollary means should be provided to secure that the books shall be properly cared for. There are not a few insolvents who require experienced and capable assistants to enable them to close their books. At the same time the knowledge that upon the occurrence of an act of insolvency the closing of the books would be imperative and prompt would tend to greater strictness in the keeping of accounts, and would in itself cure that carelessness which Insolvency Commissioners in India are constantly reprobating. The suggestion that the office of the Official Receiver should be strengthened in the way above indicated has been put forward by my Committee because of the great importance which cannot but be attached to the speedy closing of an insolvent's books. They would prefer that, so far as possible, this should be done by a professional and experienced officer responsible to the Official Receiver and the Court rather than by some skilled but outside agency. In connection with this particular question, and as pointing to a branch of duty which would devolve upon an official accountant, it is extremely desirable that information as to the position of an insolvent's estate should be more generally and more readily available than it is at present. This end could only be attained with the greatest advantage to all concerned. My Committee would therefore suggest that it should be a direction to the Official Receiver or other trustee in bankruptcy to issue periodical reports duly certified by the official accountant and the progress made in realising the assets of each estate. These reports should be circulated at reasonably brief intervals, and should give creditors all the information needed to enable them to understand the progress made in settling a bankrupt's affairs. It is very desirable that creditors should be encouraged to take a steady and persistent interest in the liquidation of an estate, and nothing seems so likely to produce this result as an assurance that delays will be reduced to a minimum, and that the Official Receiver or Trustee shall as a matter of course keep the creditors informed of that which it most concerns them to know. In this way the reproach which now attaches but too often to the proceedings in the Insolvency Courts, that they are more or less of a purely formal character, would be done away with, and the Courts themselves would be in a better position to judge of the character of an insolvent's dealings and to distinguish between unjustifiable and speculative trading and bad fortune arising from the accidents of trade or of living.

The suggestion for the periodical circulation amongst creditors of statements showing the progress made in liquidating an estate applies equally to a trustee other than the Official Receiver or to a Committee of Inspection. Hitherto one of the main difficulties in working the existing Act has been the apathy shown by creditors; and it is, in the opinion of my Committee, necessary to show creditors that they can with little trouble acquaint themselves with all that concerns them as regards an insolvent estate, to induce them to attend meetings, and to take an active part in the winding up of their debtor's affairs. So long as creditors believe that to attend meetings is to proceed without knowledge, to arrive at no result or practically to waste time, so long will they avoid, unless under necessity, attendance at such meetings. Where the amount involved in a bankruptcy is small, the chances of getting together the creditors are small indeed, and in such cases it may be useful to reserve to the Official Receiver power to call a meeting of creditors at his discretion.

The attention of the Committee, in the course of the discussions on the draft Bill, has been in various ways strongly drawn to the question of protection against béndmi dealings and the fraudulent transfer of property of a trader who might be actually insolvent at the time of the transfer but who might continue to carry on his business and thus secure to the transfer something of a time sanction. Béndmi dealings, especially in cases of insolvency, are somewhat common and ought to be in a special way guarded against. In this connection it would seem that sections 28 and 41 of the draft Bill should be read together. In section 28 it is not as clear as it should be that the property therein indicated, as dealt with in the case of a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or in the case of a covenant made in consideration of a marriage for a future provision of the settlor's wife or children, that the property so disposed of would be regarded by the Court as an asset of the estate. This section is governed by the provisions of section 41, but still the matter is one which should not be left in doubt. So long as there may be a doubt there will be a temptation to endeavour to evade the law.

My Committee accept the limitation of time in section 41 after the lapse of which settlements made by persons who may become bankrupts cannot be impeached as reasonable and proper. Allusion has been made to béndmi cases and to the frequency with which such transactions are resorted to by Natives. The provisions of section 41 should be made sufficiently wide to take in cases of béndmi purchases in the names of the wives and children or other relatives of bankrupts or the transfer of property to them. So far as my Committee can see, such cases are not provided for in the proposed Act. They would commend this question to the attention of the legislature. On the one hand, it has been urged that property standing in the names of wives or children of a Native bankrupt should be presumed to be the property of the bankrupt and dealt with accordingly until the contrary was shown. But it would be unjust to throw upon a wife or children the burden of proving their right to property made over to them in good faith and at a time when the transferor was in a solvent position or in a position which would make the transfer a measure of prudence. In such a case the property so transferred, should the transferor subsequently become bankrupt, would be all that the wife or children could look to for their support. Such cases require protection. Still it is extremely desirable that béndmi transactions should be provided for, and my Committee would commend this subject to the attention of the legislature.

There is another matter which ought to receive attention, and in regard to which it appears desirable that the present opportunity should be taken to provide a much needed remedy. Cases occasionally crop up where, although there may not be an application to the Bankruptcy Court, still one creditor steps suddenly in, closes a business and takes possession of all its assets. In such cases the general body of creditors are shut out altogether from participation in the assets, or find their interests postponed to those of a special creditor of whose rights they have been kept in ignorance. That such a state of things is possible opens a wide door to reckless trading and still more reckless borrowing. As the law in India at present stands, a lender is entirely at the mercy of the representations which may be made to him, and may in perfect good faith advance money for the assistance of a business which is not only actually insolvent but which may be in a condition where for all practical purposes it may be said to be carried on for the benefit of the creditor holding a possessory mortgage. In England this class of cases is dealt with by the Bills of Sales Act. Instruments of the kind alluded to must be registered within twenty-one days, and under certain circumstances are absolutely null and void as against a decree of the Court, a trustee in bankruptcy or in the event of the insolvency of the maker of the mortgage. In India it is very desirable that all instruments of this class should be made to come under the provisions for compulsory registration. The records of the Insolvent Court and the experience of the Official Assignee will amply bear out the necessity for some action such as that just suggested. It seems to convert the Bankruptcy Courts into a shelter for fraudulent dealings when a bankrupt who has deprived the general body of his creditors of security for their claims applies to the Court for protection against any steps they might ordinarily institute against him.

My Committee approve of the provision which retains for India imprisonment for debt. A very great number of Native traders are not subjects of the British Government, and have a means of conveying greater or lesser portions of their assets out of the jurisdiction of British Courts. Another large section of Native traders shelter themselves behind the Hindu custom of a joint family; where such a custom prevails, and where important classes of Native dealers have their domicile beyond the limits of the territories directly administered by the Government of India, it is necessary that imprisonment for debt should be retained even if on general grounds a good case could not be made out in its favour.

Section 31 provides that a limit of Rs. 500 as wages shall be paid, in priority to all other debts, to any clerk or servant who may have rendered services to the bankrupt during four months before the date of the receiving order. My Committee are strongly in favour of a limit in the amount to be paid under this section, but they consider Rs. 500 too low considering the average range of the salaries of assistants. They would make the limit Rs. 1,000, but would require that the amount of wages due to any clerk or servant should be certified by the Official Receiver or Trustee, or the official accountant of the Receiver's office.

Section 36 gives power to a landlord to distrain for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication. This provision would appear to be unnecessary considering the powers already ordinarily enjoyed by landlords.

My Committee are not disposed to cavil at the provision contained in section 46 of the Bill. Where the Crown reserves to itself the right to dismiss its servants as a punishment for insolvency, it seems reasonable that it should retain the alternative of regulating the amount to be retrenched from the pay of an employé.

It would appear to be in consonance with reason and the spirit of the Bill that the lying in prison of a person under a warrant of arrest in execution of a decree of the Courts, as well as the closing of, or departing from, a place of business with intent to defeat or delay creditors, should be declared to be acts of bankruptcy on which a receiving order should be made. The latter is, under the present law, a ground for adjudicating a trader, and the lying in prison under a warrant of arrest in execution of a decree a ground for adjudicating a non-trader, a bankrupt. There seems to my Committee no good reason why they should be omitted from the proposed Act, more especially as cases can readily be conceived in which the omission of these circumstances as acts of bankruptcy might give rise to difficulty. The lying of a debtor in prison is sufficient to give the proposed Bankruptcy Court jurisdiction, and it ought therefore to be declared to be an act of bankruptcy. It does not appear to my Committee that paragraphs 19, 20 and 21 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons give any good reason for excluding the jurisdiction of the Court in cases where persons or personally subject to the jurisdiction otherwise, and by reason of their being imprisoned or having within a twelvemonth ordinarily resided or had a place of business within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction. At present persons who come to Calcutta to sell produce, purchase goods, or to make contracts in this city for such purposes, are in respect of such contracts liable to be sued in the Calcutta High Court.

As the draft Bill is framed a Calcutta merchant who had obtained a decree against a person in the position referred to would be unable to avail himself of the provisions of the proposed Bankruptcy Act for enforcing payment of the amount for which he had obtained a decree. My Committee are decidedly of opinion that it would be a great advantage to the mercantile community if in the proposed Act the bankruptcy jurisdiction were extended so as to include all cases in which the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit.

The order and disposition clause, section 38, sub-section (3), provides for all moveable property in the order and disposition of a bankrupt, with the consent of the true owner, being dealt with as the property of the insolvent. This sub-section (3) is substantially identical with the order and disposition clause in the present Act. Under the section of the existing Act it has been held that property left by the true owner, being a mortgagee, in the possession of a firm the resident member of which becomes an insolvent, is not in the possession, order or disposition of the insolvent within the meaning of the Act, inasmuch as it is not in his sole possession, order or disposition, but in that of himself and his absent partners jointly. It was therefore ruled in ex parte Gubbay in re Morgan (1 L. R. 6 Cal 633) that the clause does not apply. It is very rare indeed to find in any business, whether carried on by Europeans or Natives, that all the partners are resident, and, this being so, the ruling referred to has in a large majority of cases the effect to a great extent of nullifying the possession, order or disposition clause, which is a very useful position to be maintained in the interests of the creditors generally of a bankrupt estate. My Committee would therefore suggest that sub-section (3) of section 38 of the draft Bill should be amended in a way to meet the difficulty which the decision in Gubbay in re Morgan has raised. Possibly section 102 of the Bill, which provides that a creditor of a firm may proceed in bankruptcy against the firm in the name in which it carries on business, may in the case of some of the acts of bankruptcy specified in section 30 of the Bill get over the difficulty which has been pointed out. But the matter is doubtful, and the question is one of such great importance that my Committee consider the doubt should be removed as far as possible.

My Committee cannot accept the suggestion made in section 88 that any of the functions of a Court of Bankruptcy should be delegated to a Small Cause Court Judge. The Small Cause Court is a Court of summary jurisdiction. Its files are overloaded with business, and to transfer to it insolvency business would alter the character of the Court, establish direct insolvency jurisdictions in the Presidency towns, and prove an inconvenience instead of a convenience to the public. The preferable course would be to follow existing precedents and provide for the appointment of a Registrar of the Bankruptcy Court. The work could not be imposed upon the Registrar of the High Court, for the officer is in the Calcutta High Court already overburdened with business. A Registrar of the Bankruptcy Court might have delegated to him duties similar to those performed by Registrars in Bankruptcy at Home. He might also perform the functions which under the English Bankruptcy Act are fulfilled by the Board of Trade.

It would probably be found a convenience if affidavits which have to be made in England and Scotland in cases of Indian bankruptcy should be sworn before the Permanent Commissioners already appointed by the Indian High Courts to take affidavits in those countries, and that affidavits sworn before such Commissioners should be admissible in bankruptcy proceedings in this country.

My Committee consider that a trustee appointed under section 20 should, unless good cause can be shown to the contrary, invariably be a creditor of the insolvent; such a trustee once appointed should only be removable by order of the Court and upon cause shown. My Committee do not think it would further the ends of justice to allow a trustee, so far as his work is concerned, to be at the risk of disputes amongst the creditors. Besides, by making him removable only by an order of Court, a greater directness of responsibility is obtained, and by so much a greater security for the interests of all concerned. Where a trustee is appointed my Committee inclined to think that he should liquidate the bankrupt's estate under the inspection of the Official Receiver, who in such a case would fulfil the functions of a Committee of Inspection.

Section 26 might be amended so as to give the Court power to order, according to the information elicited in the course of proceedings before it, to deliver over any money or property which that information might show to have been received from the insolvent as the result of a fraudulent preference, as also any property vested in him by a fraudulent settlement or which he appeared to hold bénéfici for the bankrupt.

Sub-section (5) of section 27 appears to have taken no account of the possibility of creditors residing out of India. In such a case the notice of 14 days provided by the sub-section would be insufficient. The sub-section might be so amended as to show clearly the distinction between English and Indian creditors as respects the notice.

In section 32 there is an omission. The section provides for accounts to be taken when there have been mutual dealings between a bankrupt and any other person, but does not state to whom the account shall be rendered.

Section 38 gives Rs. 200 as the value of the excepted articles. The existing Act gives Rs. 300 as the value of such articles, and my Committee do not see why this limit should not be maintained in the proposed Act.

My Committee would suggest that the time allowed under section 48 for a trustee to disclaim onerous property should be enlarged from two months to six months. The circumstances of India are in every way so different from those in England, and such great difficulty attaches to a proper ascertainment of the character of properties, that to limit the period of disclaimer under this section to two months only would, my Committee believe, seriously interfere with its working.

My Committee would make the permission vested by section 50 in the Committee of Inspection depend rather upon an order of the Court. The same remark applies to section 57.

Clause (2) of section 52 appears to overlook the radical differences between separate and joint estates. These differences ought to be acknowledged so far that the direction to declare dividends together should be amended and powers given to declare dividends separately.

It would facilitate business if the latter portion of clause (3) of section 64, from the words "The officer shall, &c.," to the words "duly sanctioned," were omitted. If a trustee or manager acts with the permission of the Court under sections 50 and 57, there is no need for him to take further sanction for the details dealt with in this sub-section, more especially as all charges incurred under this sub-section must be taxed.

Referring to section 65, my Committee would not recommend any interference with the existing system, by which bankrupt estates accounts are kept in the name of the Official Assignee and audited by Government officials who submit half-yearly reports on such audit to the High Court. The like remark applies to section 67, clause (1).

In section 91, which gives the Court power to change the carriage of proceedings, my Committee would include besides any other creditors the trustee or the Official Receiver as persons who might be substituted to carry on the proceedings.

In section 103, clause (b), my Committee can see no reason for making the action of the Official Receiver depend upon the "permission of the Court," and would recommend that those words be omitted.

My Committee would add to the offences punishable under section 105 of the Bill the following:—failing to give proper assistance in realising his assets; procuring or assisting to raise a fraudulent claim against the assets of the estate; improperly interfering with the realisation of the assets; fraudulently making away with property; doing that which might result in preventing the disposal of the property at its proper value; showing a fraudulent preference to any creditor or entering into any composition with any creditor; inducing any creditor by an improper preference or otherwise to neglect or delay to proceed with a petition, or to agree to the discharge of the bankrupt.

My Committee cannot approve of the transfer of offences provided for in section 110, and would prefer that the Bankruptcy Court should itself deal with offences under the Bankruptcy Act.

The wording of section 113, providing for the exclusion of partnerships and companies, should be made more clear. As it stands it might be objected that it excludes ordinary business partnerships from the operation of the Act, which is against the present practice as well as against the spirit of the draft Act itself.

My Committee cannot see what utility will result from changing the designation of the "Official Assignee" to that of "Official Receiver". There is already an officer of the High Court known by this latter designation, and to retain the style "Official Receiver" would be to introduce something of confusion and to change a title thoroughly well known and comprehended.

In conclusion my Committee desire me to report their opinion that the draft Bill is an advance upon the existing Act. They would suggest that the legislature should consider the expediency of retaining Chapter XX of the Civil Procedure Code as regards the local limits of the Courts established under the bankruptcy law, and they would again urge that in the consideration of the draft Bill the utmost weight, and the most careful attention should be given to the points of difference between the circumstances of England and India.

EXHIBITION OF SILK COCOONS AT RAMPORE BEAULEAH.

No. 41Mct., dated Darjeeling, the 26th April 1886.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department.

REFERRING to Government letter No. 621—110, Agriculture, dated the 18th February 1886, and the previous correspondence, I have the honour to enclose a copy of a letter No. 2155J, dated 26th February 1886, from the Magistrate of Rajshahye, reporting on the exhibition of silk cocoons held at Rampore Beaulah in January last.

2. Every effort was made to secure the ends in view, and I trust that the exhibition has done good.

No. 2155J., dated Beaulah, the 20—22nd February 1886.

From—E. H. RUDDOCK, Esq., Magistrate of Rajshahye,
To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit a report on the exhibition of silk cocoons held at Rampore Beaulah in compliance with the Bengal Government No. 464T.F. (Agriculture), dated the 28th April 1885, to your address, a copy of which was received with your No. 104Mct., dated the 13th May 1885.

On receipt of the letter cited above, a Committee was formed consisting of the following gentlemen :—

E. H. Ruddock, Esq., c.s.	Chairman.
H. J. Abbot, Esq.	}
E. Gallois, Esq.
Dr. I. Cameron
W. G. Morey, Esq.
Kumar Sashi Shikhareshwar Roy
Baboo Mohendra Nath Bhattacharjea	} Members.
„ Raj Kumar Sarkar
Moulvi Khan Ali Khan
Baboo Rajendra Nath Ghose	Member and Secretary.

The Committee held several meetings and decided to hold the exhibition in one of the godowns in the Borokootee compound on Monday, the 11th January 1886, and the five following days. One thousand copies of the prospectus of the exhibition, setting forth the principal rules and the number and value of the prizes to be awarded, were printed and extensively circulated in this and the neighbouring silk-producing districts. A subscription list was opened, and the Collectors of Moorshedabad, Beerbhoom, Maldah and Nuddea were requested to form sub-committees in their districts, to collect subscriptions, to circulate the prospectus, and to help generally in inducing exhibitors to come forward.

The following subscriptions were realised :—

				Rs.
Messrs. R. Watson and Company	250
Maharani Surnomoyi	200
Kumar Shashi Shikhareshwar Roy	200
Messrs. L. Paycen and Company	100
Maharani Sarat Sundari	100
Kumar Jogendra Nath Roy	100
Raja Hara Nath Roy	100
Smaller subscriptions	498
Total				1,548
Government grant (already received)				1,295
Grand Total				2,843

Government engaged to give a grant equal to the amounts raised by subscriptions up to Rs. 2,000, and the amount over Rs. 1,295 was collected subsequently.

The Committee offered the following prizes to the exhibitors :—

					Rs.
2	Prizes at Rs. 75 each	150
4	„ „ 50 „	200
8	„ „ 30 „	240
16	„ „ 20 „	320
20	„ „ 16 „	320
32	„ „ 10 „	320

It was also decided to award a prize of Rs. 50 for the best Bengali essay on the method of rearing silk cocoons, and advertisements were inserted in the Hindu Ranjika, the Hindu Patriot, and the Bangabasi announcing this prize. Later on hand bills were printed and stuck up in the market-places and other conspicuous parts of silk-producing villages, to remind the people of the forthcoming exhibition, and Messrs. Morey and Gallois and other influential gentlemen were requested to explain the object of the exhibition to their ryots through mandals and headmen of villages. The Committee also invited Mr. A. C. Sen, Assistant to the Director of Agriculture, to attend the exhibition; but unfortunately he could not come owing to pressure of business. Machans in three tiers were provided for the reception of exhibits.

The exhibition was opened on the 11th January 1886, at noon, by Lord H. Ulick Browne, Commissioner of the Division, in the presence of several gentlemen, European and native, a few European ladies, and a large number of the exhibitors. In the course of the week the prize essay was read and explained to the exhibitors, and they were addressed in Bengali by two gentlemen—one of whom was Baboo Roma Nath Sen, the author of the prize essay, and a gentleman of 20 years' experience in silk business. The exhibitors had also an opportunity of seeing how silk was reeled off by machinery in the filature of Messrs. Watson and Company.

The number of exhibits was as under—

					No. of exhibits.

Messrs. Morey and Gallois, assisted by Baboo Roma Nath Sen, decided who were the prize-winners. I regret to observe that, as in Moorshedabad last year, some dishonest persons attempted to palm off as theirs cocoons reared by others; but the judges took care to see that such unscrupulous exhibitors got no prizes. The exhibition was closed on the 16th January 1886, when I distributed the prizes and addressed a few words of encouragement to the exhibitors present. A few copies of "Reshum Tutwa," presented by Kumar Shashi Shikhareshwar Roy, were then distributed among the cocoon-rearers. It is also intended to print the prize essay and distribute copies among the exhibitors.

The following statement shows the prizes obtained by the exhibitors of the different districts :—

Rajshahye	2	2	3	7	7	15	41	947

Nuddea	1	10
Beerbhoom	1	10
Total	2	4	8	16	20	33	64	1,870

The Judges were of opinion that the cocoons exhibited were as good as ever they have seen in Bengal, and above the average obtainable.

The receipts and disbursements were as under—

(a) Receipts—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Sale proceeds of bamboos, &c.	9	13	0

(b) Disbursements—

Total	2,817	3	9

This is the first time that an exhibition of this kind has been held in this district, and though the people here are not very easily induced to move away from their homes, still it is hoped that this effort may, though on a small scale, produce some good. The exhibition has undoubtedly fostered a spirit of emulation among the cocoon-rearers by bringing together the cocoons of the various silk-producing tracts, and open astonishment was expressed by many of the exhibitors at seeing work so much superior to anything they could produce. The exhibitors appeared to appreciate, on the whole, the object of the exhibition; and there are grounds for hoping that similar exhibitions, held in the different silk-producing districts, in different years, may lead to good results.

* A further grant of Rs. 248 was made by Government order No. 621—110Agrl., dated 18th February 1886. The total receipts therefore amount to Rs. 3,100-13.

During the year 1885-86 the assets of the Fine Funds upon the Bengal Provincial Railways were expended as follows :—

Northern Bengal State Railway.—Schools Rs. 1,367, institutes Rs. 100, amusements Rs. 150, sick employes Rs. 69-6-3.

Tirhoot State Railway.—Schools Rs. 149, institutes Rs. 297-7, amusements Rs. 780, sick and miscellaneous Rs. 361-1, and volunteering Rs. 200.

Dacca State Railway.—Institute Rs. 300.

Nalhati State Railway.—Schools Rs. 49, institutes Rs. 90, sick employes Rs. 28-5-10.

Of the balance at credit of the Northern Bengal State Railway Fund, Rs. 500 represented the balance of last year's loan to the Railway Co-operative Stores Association, which was still outstanding at the end of 1885-86.

RESOLUTION.

In the Resolution on the Fine Fund reports last year, attention was drawn to the necessity of avoiding any undue accumulation of balances, and the Lieutenant-Governor observes in the present reports that on the Tirhoot State Railway and Nalhati State Railway the balances have been reduced. On the Northern Bengal State Railway, however, the balance still shows a tendency to increase, and the Manager should take steps to avoid this. A larger proportion of the assets of the fund on this line may with advantage be spent in providing amusements and recreation for the employes.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, and to the Managers of the Bengal Provincial Railways, for information, and that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

S. T. TREVOR, Col., R. E.,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal;

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph. The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

o overcast, g gloomy, t thunder, d drizzling rain, p passing temporary showers, < lightning, ⊕ solar corona.

ALEXANDER PRIDLER,

Offg. Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL SUMMARY OF THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF MAY 1886.

THE normal meteorological conditions in Bengal during May are to a considerable extent similar to those of April. There is the steady and increasing difference of temperature between the land and the sea area, and in this month this difference attains almost its maximum. The area of maximum temperature during May includes the western districts of South Behar, the North-West Provinces, Rajputana and Central India. With the increasing temperature of the land surface, the southerly winds blowing from the Bay of Bengal strengthen considerably, and owing to the physical obstacles of the hill systems to the east and north of Bengal, they appear as south-easterly winds in East Bengal, and as easterly winds in North Bengal. At the same time, however, the usual hot, dry westerly winds are blowing over considerable portions of Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and thus during May, as explained in previous monthly reports, conditions are favourable to the production of the local storms called nor'westers. These, it is probable, are produced by the action of the opposing winds in elevating the moist sea breezes, and by this ascensional motion their water vapour is condensed, and sufficient energy is at the same time liberated to produce the well-known effects of these storms.

The southerly breezes which blow during this month at the head of the Bay are of considerable strength, and in fact, at Saugor Island and False Point, the wind velocities measured in May are generally greater than those during the actual rainy season, but there is reason to believe that during May the current is of comparatively small depth compared to what it is during the actual monsoon period. These winds, however, carry considerable amounts of moisture into East and North Bengal, and in the neighbourhood of the hills ascensional movement takes place, followed frequently by local storms and by heavy rainfall. This action will account for the large rainfall which occurs during this month in the northern and eastern districts of the Province.

During May the distribution of the normal rainfall is simple, and the lines of equal rainfall run nearly north and south through the Province, or rather almost parallel to a line joining the Chittagong Hill Tracts, the Tipperah Hills, the Garo Hills, and the Darjeeling Hills, the largest amounts being received in the eastern and northern districts, and smallest amounts in the western districts. Thus the average rainfall of the month is less than 2 inches in the southern parts of the Sarun and Mozufferpore districts, the Gya and Shahabad districts, and the western parts of Chutia Nagpur. To the east of these districts, up to a line running nearly north from the mouth of the Hooghly, the rainfall increases from 2 up to 5 inches. To the east of this, up to a line passing through Rungpore, Jamalpore, Mymensing, Bramunberiah, Comilla, and Cox's Bazar, the average rainfall increases eastwards from 5 to 10 inches. To the east of that line it exceeds 10 inches, and increases rapidly in amount towards the Garo and Khasia Hills and towards the Dooars, and at Buxa in the Western Dooars the average rainfall in May is no less than 21.58 inches.

The meteorology of May is generally rather important for about the second or third week, the south-west monsoon makes its appearance in the south of the Bay, and gives heavy rain and fairly strong winds at the South Ceylon stations. The monsoon current gradually creeps up the east of the Bay, and rain sets in along the Arakan coast towards the close of the month, and it afterwards spreads into East and North Bengal early in June.

In the front of the advancing monsoon current frequently cyclonic storms arise, which are sometimes small and feeble, and at other times larger and of considerable intensity. When these cyclonic storms are formed quite in the south of the Bay, they usually advance towards the Madras coast; but when the storms originate rather later, that is, when the monsoon current has advanced well into the centre of the Bay, the storms which then form appear usually to advance either towards the Arakan coast or towards the South Bengal coast.

Meteorology of the month.—The principal features of interest in the meteorology of the past month have been—

1. That pressure has been decidedly above the normal for the greater part of the month;
2. That temperature was decidedly above the normal for the first third of the month, and largely below it for the remainder;
3. That there was a period of extremely disturbed atmospheric conditions of about a week in duration from the 12th to the 18th, during which rather heavy and decidedly general rain fell over the province;
4. That there was a rainfall decidedly in excess in all districts;
5. That the commencement of the monsoon in the south of the Bay, i.e. the first and preliminary advance of strong winds at the Ceylon stations, was noticed from about the 8th to the 11th of May, and that a second advance took place about eight or ten days later.

For the first ten days of the month the weather conditions in Bengal do not call for any particular comment; ordinary hot weather conditions obtained, accompanied by a few local storms or nor'westers, which gave a small amount of rainfall to the province, but by no means equal in amount to the normal. At this time the air was very dry over the western parts of the province, and at 10 A.M. on the 10th at Buxar the saturation was only 10 per cent. of the possible amount, at Hazaribagh it was only 11 per cent., and at Dehree and Patna it was 17 and 18 per cent. respectively. This represents an excessive dryness of the atmosphere. From the 10th, however, winds became more easterly at the northern stations, while strong southerly winds set in at the southern stations, and brought up considerable amounts of moisture. At Darjeeling, too, on the 10th, a strong north-easterly wind, averaging 20 miles an hour, was reported, and this northerly current appears to have extended, and on the 11th it embraced the whole of North Bengal and North Behar and parts of South Behar and Chutia Nagpur. As moist southerly winds were blowing over the southern and central parts of the province, and dry northerly and north-easterly winds over the northern parts, the meeting of the opposing wind systems caused a large amount of interaction and interference with the necessary result of ascensional air motion and heavy rain. For a period of about a week these disturbed conditions continued in a more or less pronounced form, and during this time rain was general over the greater part of the province and in many cases it was heavy. A period of ordinary hot weather conditions then succeeded to this disturbed period, and showers became much less numerous.

At about the period when these disturbed conditions were setting in over Bengal, a rather feeble advance of monsoon winds was taking place in the extreme south of the Bay, as shown by the high wind velocity at Galle. The advance did not, however, seem to progress far into the Bay, and shortly afterwards it died away. A second advance was noticed from about the 18th of the month, when strong winds and heavy rain were recorded at the Ceylon stations. At Galle, in particular, on the 18th and 19th of the month, 8 inches of rain were recorded. These monsoon winds continued to blow strongly, and in certain cases to increase in force up to the morning of Sunday, the 23rd instant, when it was clear that a small cyclonic storm had formed off the South Madras coast, and some little distance to the south-east of Madras. By 10 A.M. of the 24th the storm had advanced over the coast line between Negapatam and Madras, and the centre of the storm, which probably passed not very far south of Pondicherry, was almost on the coast at this time. It was a storm of considerable diameter, and it affected a considerable part of the coast, though the actual size of the central hurricane part appears to have been small, and the central calm was only a few miles in diameter, while at the centre the lowest barometric reading, as shown by the log of the S. S. Tibre, was about 29 inches. By the morning of the 25th the small storm had entirely passed inland, and probably had crossed the Peninsula.

The moist southerly current, in front of which the storm just described had formed, apparently continued its advance up the Bay, and more particularly along the east coast, and on the 26th and 27th there were indications that an extremely feeble cyclonic circulation had been set up by the advancing current over the centre of the Bay. At this time a moist southerly and south-easterly wind current advanced over Bengal, giving rise to general rain in almost all districts of the province. This appears to have been a kind of preliminary advance of moist southerly winds, pushed forward by the strong winds blowing in the south and centre of the Bay, and it cannot in any way be considered to have been the commencement of the monsoon in Bengal, notwithstanding that the current gave good general and rather heavy rain to almost the whole province from about the 25th to practically the end of the month.

Pressure—At the commencement of the month was only very slightly in excess of the normal, and for the first week the mean pressure was in excess by only 0.002". At the commencement of the period of disturbance previously mentioned, a rapid increase of pressure took place, which more than neutralized a slightly defective pressure which had previously been recorded, and for the third week of the month pressure became 0.1" above the normal, but during the fourth week the excess had fallen to 0.062". For the whole month, and for the whole Province, the mean pressure has shown an excess of 0.03" above the normal, and this excess is fairly evenly distributed, for the extreme variations in the districts are from an excess of 0.036" in East Bengal to one of 0.024" in Orissa.

Temperature—At the commencement of the month was rather considerably above the normal, the mean excess of 1.5° being recorded for the first week. Temperatures in excess of the normal continued to be recorded, the excess in some cases being as great as 5° to 7°, till the heavy rainfall brought about by the disturbed conditions above described, caused an extremely rapid fall to be registered. Thus at Calcutta from 4 P.M. of the 12th to 4 P.M. of the 13th the fall of temperature was no less than 26°. After the rainfall, temperature became largely below the normal on the 13th, and at such stations as Berhampore and Jessore the mean temperature was 15° below the normal, while at Burdwan, Dacca, Patna, and Gya the defect exceeded 9°. This comparatively large defect slowly decreased, and for the third week over the whole Province the mean temperature was 2.8° below the normal; and in the fourth week it was only 1.7° below it. For the whole month therefore temperature has been 1.1° below the normal for the period, though the largest defects, amounting to 2.7° and 1.5°, have been recorded in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur respectively.

Rainfall.—The periods of the most general rainfall during the month have already been alluded to in the previous summary, and it therefore only remains to describe its distribution over the province. For the month, rainfall has been in excess in all districts. The largest fall has been received in East Bengal, which records 10.30 inches, against the normal fall of 9.45 inches. This division has therefore received a fall equal to 109 per cent. of the normal. North Bengal has received 9·64 inches, against the normal 8·30 inches, and has therefore received a fall equal to 116 per cent. of the normal. South-West Bengal has received the large fall of 7·83 inches, while the normal for the month is 5·11 inches. This represents a percentage fall of 153. Orissa has recorded 4·66 inches, the normal amount being 3·59 inches, and thus the division has received 129 per cent. of its usual fall. North Behar has registered 4·46 inches, while the normal is 2·74 inches, and has thus received no less than 163 per cent. of the usual fall. Chutia Nagpur averages 3·10 inches of rain, the normal being 2·41 inches, which represents a fall of 128 per cent., and finally the smallest amount of rain has been received by South Behar, which registers 2·80 inches against 1·98 inches, and this division has therefore received a fall equal to 141 per cent. of the normal. Taking all the provinces as having an equal value, it may be said that the rainfall of the whole province generally has been about 34 per cent. in excess of the normal.

The rainfall has, however, been decidedly irregularly distributed in various parts of the respective divisions, and instead of the lines of equal rainfall running nearly due north and south as described under the normal rainfall for the month, the lines of actual equal fall during May are very contorted, and it can only be said in a general way that they have the direction north and south. The eastern districts of the province have generally received a fall in excess of ten inches, while the western stations, such as in Shahabad, have received less than one inch. When the actual fall, however, is compared with the normal for the period, the distribution appears rather less irregular. It is then seen that there are two distinct tracts of country which have received a rainfall below the normal for the month. The first is a band running almost east and west and averaging perhaps fifty miles in width, which is situated some little distance from the foot of the Himalayas, but which in the Darjeeling and Julpigoree districts runs into the hills themselves. This band of country starts in the west in the Shahabad district, where it is defined by such stations as Buxar, Arrah, and Sasseram: it then takes in part of the Patna district as shown by the stations Behar and Barh. It includes part of the Monghyr district as shown by the station Bogoosraï, small parts of the Durbhunga, Bhagulpore, Purneah and Maldah districts, and the whole of the Julpigoree and Cooch Behar districts, and Kalimpong in the Darjeeling Hills. The second area of diminished rainfall is to be found in the east of the province, and it includes almost the whole of the Mymensingh district, parts of the Pubna and Bogra districts (Serajgunge and Sherepore), parts of the Dacca, Furreedpore, Noakholly, and Chittagong districts, as shown by the stations of Dacca, Madaripore, Fenny, and Cox's Bazar. The defect is rather large in the Cooch Behar, and probably in parts of the Julpigoree district, where in some cases it amounts to over 4 inches. It also exceeds two inches in parts of the Mymensingh district, but with these exceptions the defective falls are not large.

Except in these districts and at a few isolated stations, the whole of the province has received an excess fall varying generally up to about two inches, but there is one centre of excessive precipitation in Central Bengal, where Chooadanga has received about eight inches in excess of the normal, and Jhenida nine inches in excess, and again Magoorah 13·43 inches in excess. Culna and Cutwa in the Burdwan districts have also received about six inches of excess rainfall during May.

The following small table will show the monthly rainfall over the whole province, from the commencement of the current year, compared with the normal fall for the same period. The numbers which are given are calculated out as percentages of the normal fall; thus 100 will represent a normal fall, a number larger than 100 an excess fall, and so on:—

Meteorological district.	January.	February.	March.	April.	May.	Actual rainfall for first five months expressed as a percentage of the normal fall for the period.

South Behar ...	28	34	237	26	141	108
Chutia Nagpur ...	24	2	196	26	128	103

Up to the present date the whole of the province has received a rainfall slightly in excess of the normal since the commencement of the year, except North Bengal, where the fall has been about 5 per cent. below the normal. Orissa has received the largest excess fall, amounting to 24 per cent., while South-West Bengal has received 17 per cent. in excess. In all other meteorological divisions the variation from the normal does not amount to 10 per cent.; over the whole province for the first five months the general rainfall has been about 8 per cent. in excess of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven Meteorological Divisions of the Province for the month of May 1886 :—

* Means for six days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the same period. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 100. The normal means of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations (i.e.) from the total rainfall at the sub-divisional stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is denoted by 1.

for the week ending Friday, the 11th of June 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 11TH OF JUNE 1886.

In the report for the previous week, it was shown that a feeble cyclonic storm had advanced over South-East Bengal, and that an advance of monsoon winds had followed it, which had given general rain to the southern part of East Bengal, where, at certain stations, the rainfall had been particularly heavy. At the commencement of the present week rainfall suddenly ceased over the province, except for a few local showers which fell during the first three days, but during this time a small barometric depression was formed off the Pegu coast which passed inland on the 7th, probably near Akyab, and the disappearance of the depression on the 8th was followed by another slight advance of humid winds over East Bengal, and on this day again rather heavy rain was reported over the whole of this district. On the 8th Madaripore (Furreedpore district) reported 7.18 inches of rain, and Satkanya (Chittagong district) 5.20 inches, while amounts of between three and five inches were reported from Chittagong, Patuakhally, Noakhally, Raigunge, Dacca, Chaudpore, and Daudkandi. Rainfall then continued fairly general in East Bengal up to the close of the week, while a few showers were reported from North and South-West Bengal and Orissa. The other districts of the province have, however, received practically little or no rain during the week.

The main feature in the meteorology of the week appears to have been the weakness of the monsoon current, which at this time is usually blowing over East and North Bengal with considerable force, but which, during this year, has given comparatively so little rain to these districts, that it would appear probable that the monsoon current is being deflected towards Burma, or that it is very much weaker than usual, or perhaps it may be that the scanty rainfall, particularly of North Bengal, is due to a combination of both causes.

Pressure—Over the greater part of the province has been decidedly above the normal during the past week, and the mean pressure for the province shows an excess of 0.025". At the coast stations, however, the average pressure has been distinctly below the normal, and at Saugor Island there has been a defect of 0.009", at False Point of 0.002", and at Chittagong of 0.001".

Temperature—Has been generally considerably above the normal except in East Bengal and Orissa, where it has been distinctly below it. In North Behar temperature has been no less than 1.1° above the normal; in South-West Bengal, South Behar, and Chutia Nagpur it has been rather more than 1° above it; while in Orissa the defect has been 1.3° and in East Bengal temperature has been 0.4° in defect. For the whole province the mean temperature has been 1° in excess of the normal for the week.

As before stated, the only district in which rainfall has been heavy has been East Bengal, and this district has received 3.43 inches against the normal 3.62 inches; the fall in this district has therefore been heavy, though in slightly smaller quantity than usual. In all other districts the falls have been small and largely in defect; thus South Behar and Orissa have received about half the normal fall; South-West Bengal, North Bengal, and North Behar have received about a quarter of the usual amount; while in Chutia Nagpur the amount received is scarcely more than a ninth of the usual fall for the period.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 11th of June 1886:—

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, INDIA;
Calcutta, the 14th June 1886.

A. PEDLER,
For Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

MEMORANDUM.

THE returns of the principal Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 29th May 1886 yielded the birth and death-rates of 17·4 and 22·1 per 1,000 of population, respectively, as opposed to 15·2 and 20·3 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 22nd May, indicating much advance in the registration of both events.

2. The Municipalities which returned the highest proportions of births and deaths are—

Births.			Deaths.
		Ratio per mille.			Ratio per mille.
Beaulcah	Mozufferpore	...	38·9
Chittagong	...	37·6	Purneah	...	38·1
			Jessore	...	36·7
			Puri	...	33·6
			Gya	...	32·8
			Beaulcah	...	31·5

3. The following table denotes that, as compared with the results of the preceding week, there was an enhancement of mortality from all diseases excepting cholera, particularly from fever and bowel-complaints:—

						Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
						29th May 1886.	22nd May 1886.
Cholera	1·1	1·6
Small-pox	·2	·03
Fever	10·3	9·4
Bowel-complaints	3·6	2·9
Injury	·5	·4
Other causes	6·4	6·0

4. Of the abovementioned diseases, while bowel-complaints proved noticeably fatal only in the Mozufferpore town, viz. at the rate of 10·9 per 1,000 of population, and the casualties from small-pox and injury were nowhere conspicuously large, cholera, fever and the maladies classed under the head of "Other causes" proved most fatal to life in the following Municipalities:—

Cholera.			Fever.			Other causes.

ALLEN MEARS,
Dy. Traffic Manager.

JAMALPORE, the 10th June 1886.

General Remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during month ended 24th April 1886.

INCREASES.

Coal and Coke.—The increase in the upward coal was due to demands for the Oudh and Rohilkund and Tirhoot State Railways, and that in the downward coal for the Eastern Bengal State Railway and for brick-burning purposes.

Cotton.—Good crops and favourable prices in Calcutta led to increased despatches to Howrah for export.

Piece-goods (European).—The traffic in this staple at this period last year fell off considerably owing to the rumours of a war on the frontier; this year there has been a brisk demand for piece-goods, chiefly from the North-Western Provinces, Behar and Tirhoot, hence this increase.

Turmeric.—This increase was chiefly in the despatches from Patna to Punjab and the North-Western Provinces owing to good demand by the natives.

Fruits.—This includes chiefly betel-nuts and myrabolams, and the increase in the former is due to native marriage ceremonies and the generally improved condition of the country; the increase in myrabolams is attributable to demands in the Bombay and Calcutta markets.

Gram and Pulses.—A brisk demand in Calcutta accounts for this increase.

Rice (husked and unhusked).—Due to a plentiful harvest and a favourable market.

Other rain and spring crops.—Low prices and a brisk demand account for the increase under this head.

Oil.—This increase was chiefly in kerosine oil from Howrah to the mofussil, where the demand for the oil is daily spreading.

Sugar and Jaggree.—Due to large despatches from the Shahabad district to Agra and Cawnpore where the demand was brisk.

DECREASES.

Wheat.—Due to small arrivals consequent on the season having closed early and the new wheat not being in the market.

Lac.—A dull market at Calcutta accounts for this decrease at Mirzapur.

Iron.—The decrease was in 1st and 2nd class iron from Howrah owing to a want of demand and also to the river steamers taking 1st class iron at very low rates of freight.

Railway material (Foreign).—This is assignable to large despatches of material last year for the construction of the Bolan Pass railway; this year there has been no demand.

Salt.—This staple shows an increase in the weight carried attended with a decrease in freight, the increase in weight was in the despatches from Howrah and from via Agra and Delhi, and the very low competitive rates quoted by us account for the decrease in earnings.

Seeds.—In this staple also there has been an increase in the weight carried and a decrease in receipts. Short leads and low rates of freight account for this result.

Tobacco.—A dull market is assigned as the cause for the decrease in this commodity.

Government Stores. Heavy despatches were made for the North-Western frontier at this period last year, but there have been no despatches this year.

MR. G. MACKERNES, Commanding the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamship Kilwa, whilst on his voyage from Calcutta to Bombay, via Coast ports, discovered the British barque Sir Henry Havelock, which had been burnt on the 1st June 1886, sunk, in a position dangerous to shipping, in the Narrakel roadstead.

The wreck lies in about 5 fathoms, portions of the spars showing just above water sufficient to mark the spot, and he gives the following bearings:—

Narrakel flag-staff	E. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.
Cochin light-house	S. E $\frac{1}{4}$ S.
The Cruz Milagre gap	S. E. by E.

The bearings are magnetic.

A buoy painted green has been placed two cables to westward of the wreck.

The Master-Attendant, Narrakel, directs vessels approaching the anchorage at night to bring the light to bear about E. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. in 6 to 7 fathoms, and run in on that bearing and anchor in $4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 fathoms of water.

By direction of the Government of Bengal,

ARTHUR W. STIFFE, Captain, I.M.,
Port Officer of Calcutta.

PORT OFFICE, Calcutta, the 14th June 1886.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, MUNICIPAL (MARINE) DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO MARINERS—(No 35.)
BAY OF BENGAL—BURMA COAST.
COAST OF TENASSERIM.
MERGUI ARCHIPELAGO.

(1) Shoals in Fells' Passage.

THE Officer in charge of the Marine Survey of India has reported that a rock, with a the of only 6 feet at low-water, spring tides, lies $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. E. by E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of the South point of Cantor's Island.

The rock or islet marked on the latest corrected charts, two miles E. by N. of Bound island, does not exist.

The Medina Patches with a depth of $1\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms, lie one mile E. by S. of Bound island, and join the $2\frac{1}{2}$ and 3 fathoms marked to the South Eastward.

Directions.—By keeping the whole of Passage Island open West of Fell's Island, a vessel will pass over the tail of the bank in 3 fathoms at low-water, smooth bottom. The least water in Fell's Passage is 9 feet at low-water between Payee Kyun and the Small islet. The rise of tide at neaps is 12 feet above this.

(2) Reef South-Eastward of Tanoy Island.

Also, that information has been received of the existence of a rocky patch lying to the South-East of Tavoy Island:—

This reef (Bowers Reef) is half a cable in extent, and dries at low-water; it lies $9\frac{1}{2}$ miles S. S. E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. of Canister Bank (Eastward of Tavoy Island), and $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. $\frac{3}{4}$ E. of Long Island.

The bearings are magnetic—Variation 3° Easterly in 1886.

ARABIA—EAST COAST.
PERSIAN GULF.

(1) Non-existence of Oribe Shoal.

THE British Admiralty have given notice, with reference to the reported existence by the master of the British barque Oribe in 1878, of a sunken danger lying in latitude $27^{\circ} 27' N.$, longitude $50^{\circ} 39' E.$ —about midway between Rás-al-Mutaf and Renuic shoal—in the fairway of the Persian Gulf, that, consequent on the unsuccessful search made by H.M.S. Arab in 1879 and H.M.S. Reindeer in January 1886 the Oribe shoal has been expunged from the Admiralty Charts.

(2) Non-existence of reported shoal North-West of Larak Island.

Also, that, consequent on an unsuccessful search having been made by H.M.S. Reindeer in January 1886 for the shoal on which the British India Steam Navigation Company's steam-ship Oriental was stated to have grounded in 1884, and reported as lying on the North-West side of Larak Island, at the distance of about one mile from the shore, this shoal has been expunged from the Admiralty Charts.

By direction of the Government of Bengal,

ARTHUR W. STIFFE, Captain, I.M.,
Port Officer of Calcutta.

Inspector of Schools, Rajshahye Circle.

The 4th June 1886.

NOTICE.

ANNADA CHARAN GUPTA, of the Dacca College, has passed in the Honours Division the Matriculation Examination of the London University held in 1886.

CHARLES H. TAWNEY,

Offg. Director of Public Instruction.

DARJEELING, the 3rd June 1886.

Educational Prospectus.

THE Calcutta Medical College Session, 1886-87, will commence on the 23rd June next. Students who may be desirous of commencing their studies are requested to apply to the Principal between the hours of 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. on or before that date.

2. Ten (10) free presentations will then be awarded. These are given to students according to their relative position in the University, B.A., B.L. and F.A. Examinations, preference being given to those who have passed the highest examination.

3. No person shall be enrolled as a matriculated student of the College who has not previously passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University, or some one of the preliminary Arts Examination of the United Kingdom recognised by the British General Medical Council.

4. All matriculated students of the College are required to pay Rs. 15 on entrance, Rs. 30 for the summer session on the 23rd June, and Rs. 30 for the winter session on 1st November of each year.

5. Students who have failed to pass their final examination, and who, under the regulations of the University, are required to attend a further course of lectures and of hospital practice before being allowed to present themselves again for examination, will pay for such further course an annual fee of Rs. 45 in two instalments of Rs. 30 and Rs. 15, payable at the beginning of the summer and winter sessions respectively.

6. Any matriculated student of the College may, with the permission of the Principal and the Professors of the subject, attend courses of lectures or departments of hospital practice in addition to the full curriculum for the year, and shall be entitled to certificates of attendance at such extra lectures, if the Professor is satisfied that he or she has really studied the subject. The fees payable in advance for such additional courses are the following:—

	Rs.
For a single course of lectures on each subject	40
For six months' attendance in each department of hospital practice	60

7. Any matriculated student who leaves the College before completing his University course, with the object of continuing his studies at a Medical School in Europe, may receive certificates of attendance at lectures on payment of fees at the rate fixed in the foregoing rule. But in calculating the sum to be so paid, the amount of the fees already paid by him as a regular student, or in the case of a free student, the amount which would have been paid by him had he been a paying student shall be deducted.

8. Any person not being a matriculated student of the College, who may be desirous of attending any course of lectures, or any department of hospital practice, may do so with the permission of the Principal and Professor of the subject, on payment, in advance, of fees at the rates fixed in rule 6.

If such student has passed the Entrance Examination of the University, he may receive certificates of attendance at lectures, provided the Professors are satisfied that he has attended the full course of lectures, and has mastered the subjects taught.

A student who has not passed the Entrance Examination will be entitled to no certificates of any kind.

9. College scholarships, prizes, and certificates of honour are open for competition only to matriculated students of the College, Hospital Apprentice and Female Certificate class.

A gold medal and certificates of honour are awarded to the best students in each subject.

Goodeve and Macnamara silver medals are given to 1st-year student in Anatomy and Chemistry.

10. College scholars, who receive less than Rs. 20 per mensem, are not required to pay Rs. 30 per session.

The holders of the Doorga Charan Laha and all other scholarships will be required to pay fees as a matriculated student. These scholars may pay their fees in advance, or have their scholarship money deducted till the full amount is received.

11. Any student holding a Medical College scholarship will be permitted to draw the stipend of the said scholarship at any recognized Medical School in the United Kingdom provided he furnishes from the head of such school a certificate of good conduct and diligent prosecution of his studies.

12. The class assistants of Pathology, Physiology and Comparative Anatomy can be held only by matriculated students of the College.

STOCK CERTIFICATES.

As it does not appear to be generally known that Government Promissory Notes can be readily converted into Stock Certificates and re-converted into Promissory Notes at the option of the holders, and that Stock Certificate-holders enjoy certain special advantages, the attention of holders of Government Securities is drawn to the following particulars:—

1. Government Promissory Notes can be converted into Stock Certificates and re-converted into Promissory Notes at any time at the option of the holder.

2. The holders of Stock Certificates are not required to present them in person or by agent when the interest becomes due. On application made, interest will be paid to Stock Certificate-holders by warrants on any Government Treasury, which warrants will be sent by post, on the day the interest falls due, to the Stock Certificate-holders direct, or through the Treasury Officer, as they may desire.

3. Stock Certificates are not negotiable by endorsement, and are consequently of no value in the hands of a wrongful holder, and the risks arising from the possession of, or repeated transmission of, negotiable Securities, are thereby avoided.

4. In the event of the loss of a Stock Certificate by theft, fire, &c., a fresh Certificate will issue on satisfactory evidence of loss.

NOTE.—Further particulars can be obtained on reference to the Public Debt Offices, Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT,—BENGAL.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 234.

The 21st June 1886.

THE following annual accounts and reports of the Road Committees of the districts of Dinagepore, Rajshahye, Rungpore, Bogra, Pubna, Darjeeling, and Julpigoree for the cess year 1884-85, together with the remarks thereon of the Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division, are published for general information.

D. B. HORN,

Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. Dept.

No. 127R.W., dated Dinagepore, the 18th December 1885.

From—H. S. BEADON, Esq., Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Dinagepore,

To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the report of the District Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85.

2. The brief report was submitted on the 26th June last.

3. Working of the Committee.—The Committee held 14 meetings within the year.

* *. * Business laid before the several meetings was disposed of after full discussion.

4. Working of the Cess Act.—The collection of the cess was very successful during the year, being 94·8 per cent. as regards collections on the current demand, against 85·6 of the preceding year. This subject has been separately noted in the Collector's No. 49C. dated 3rd November 1885, to your address. It is now ten years since the road cess first came into force, and never within the period have such good collections been secured in this district. This shows, we may hope, that the Act is better understood by the people, who see that the roads and bridges about their villages, and the means of communication to the different markets and other centres of trade, are attended to.

5. The tax cannot be said to be popular, as the payment of any money for the purposes of a tax is always distasteful to the people; but, unlike other direct taxes, the payers of the cesses see direct advantages immediately resulting to themselves therefrom.

6. Inspection of offices—The office of the Committee and that of the District Engineer were inspected twice within the year—once by Mr. Dobbie, the Examiner of Local Accounts, Bengal, and in the second instance by the local auditor. The reports on both occasions were satisfactory. Mr. Dobbie made certain suggestions which have been adopted.

7. Original works.—Under this head were constructed three timber bridges :—

One of 4 spans of	20 feet.

and 360 running feet of pipe culverts on the feeder road from Mohadebpore to the Sultanpore station of the Northern Bengal State Railway. In connection with this about 400,000 cubic feet of earthwork and 50,000 superficial feet of turfing were also executed. It is in contemplation to build another bridge and insert two pipe culverts during the current year, whereby the portion of this road lying within this district will be continuous from Mohadebpore to Hapina, where the road enters the Rajshahye district.

8. Surveys for two roads—one from Ruhia to Chakla in Julpigoree and the other from Thakurgaon to Joygunge—were undertaken, and the first road has been partially provided for in the present year's budget. Its construction, however, depends upon the co-operation of the people, who offered to surrender the land free of cost, but it is still a matter of doubt if the zemindars will agree to this. I hope to receive a definite answer to this question before long, as the District Engineer has been directed to place himself in communication with the parties concerned.

9. On the Gungarampore road a bridge 12 miles to the south of Dinagepore is to be renewed within this year.

10. Repairs.—As far as funds have permitted, attention has been directed to the maintenance of all the roads within the district, with the exception of three on which expenditure was considered to be useless. Besides ordinary surface repairs several old timber and bamboo bridges, viz. :—

2 on the Bogra road	1 on the Maldah road

have been entirely renewed. The work on them has been substantial, as old iron rails have been used in every case in the place of beams, while first class sāl and teak timber have been employed for the rest of the structure.

11. Another work of some importance has been the clearance on the Darjeeling road of the jungle at Prannuggar, so ill-famed for its tigers. The road is now being freely used without fear, and it will be the Committee's aim to keep down this jungle, as arrangements have been made for the cultivation of the land, from which all growth has been up-rooted on each side of the road.

12. Although much is being done to the roads, still the money spent on them is far from sufficient to keep them in anything like good order, except for bullock cart traffic, and riding traffic, whether local or through, is increasing every year, and with the opening of the railway now under construction the wear and tear on the western roads will be far greater than it has been, though of course the money available for expenditure on repairs will undergo no increase. The road cess is an inelastic tax, and unless substantial grants from Government can be obtained, the maintenance of the heavy mileage of district roads, such as we have in Dinagepore, will become of greater difficulty year by year.

13. Village roads.—A great deal of useful work was done in the construction of village roads, for which 16 applications were received and 11 attended to. It is worth noticing that in some instances the villagers supplemented our grants by local contributions. Thirty-five and a half miles were made during the year, and three bridges or culverts, at a total cost of Rs. 3,568, of which Rs. 360 were borne by the villagers themselves, either in cash or in materials. This plan has not been tried here before, but a small beginning has been made, and I hope, by steadily refusing grants except where the applicants are willing to do something for themselves, to eke out the Committee's funds and to teach them the necessity of self-help. In this way we shall check applications for roads for which there is not absolute need. The Committee will make a grant of three-fourths or two-thirds of the amount required, and the remainder (first deposited by the villagers) will be the guarantee of the necessity of the road.

14. The establishment of the District Engineer was employed in the construction of these works. Owing to the comparative cessation of original works in consequence of the financial pressure, the district staff was able to look after these petty works.

15. Removal of obstructions to drainage.—Several petitions were received from the different parts of the district for the opening out of roads where obstructed drainage proved injurious either to health or cultivation. The petitions were enquired into and pipe culverts put in at those places where the grievances complained of appeared reasonable.

Number of petitions received 5.
Ditto complied with 4.

16. Arboriculture.—Besides keeping up the old system of planting and maintaining trees by paid malees, I have introduced a plan of getting this work done by village agency on a system of contract, by which small advances are made in the first instance, and final payment deferred till the trees have grown sufficiently high to be out of the reach of cattle.

17. I shall not be able to write confidently in praise of this system till the work of one full year has been observed. The plan has succeeded elsewhere, and I have every hope that nothing will militate against its success here too. Nothing could be less effectual than the system of paid gardeners.

18. Establishment.—The several establishments under the Committee—engineering, upper and lower subordinates, offices of collection and accounts, and that of the District Engineer—have worked well during the year. The District Engineer has given the Committee complete satisfaction in his own legitimate duties. He has also been utilized by me for work as Magistrate; but I find from the orders of Government forwarded with your No. 287 Wct., dated 9th November 1885, that this is not approved of, and henceforth for such work I shall call upon the Executive Engineer (who unfortunately resides at Julpigoree), and shall relieve the District Engineer of the miscellaneous work which he has hitherto willingly undertaken for Government in addition to his own work. The District Engineer speaks well of his executive subordinates, and the Committee desires me to express its satisfaction with the manner in which Gopal Chundra Boral, the Accountant, and his subordinates, have executed their duties.

19. Accounts.—The annual accounts were audited by the Standing Sub-Committee on the 15th December 1885, and laid before the special meeting of the Committee held on the 18th instant.

Explanatory Memorandum to accompany the Annual Account for the cess year 1884-85.

(1.) Receipts.—The last kist of the cess year 1883-84 was due in October 1884: the Doorga Poojah holidays having intervened, almost all the demand for that quarter was collected during October 1884; hence the collection was larger than the amount estimated for.

(2.) Under instructions contained in paragraph 2 of the report, dated 5th February 1885, of the Examiner of Local Accounts, forwarded with the Accountant-General's No. 1327LA, dated 16th February 1885, all payments made to the Cess Deputy Collector from 1st April 1885 for service of processes have been charged to "Advances" and credited to this head ("Advances") when any recoveries have been effected and paid into the treasury; hence the amount collected up to March 1885 was shown under the heading "Fees, Fines and Forfeitures" as before and after that period. Such receipts have been shown under the sub-head "Advances," subordinate to Suspense Accounts.

(3.) The Government contributions (Rs. 600) towards the cost of the joint establishment for the collection of Road and Public Works cesses have been transferred from this head to that of "Grant from Government,"—vide paragraph 4 of Government Resolution No. 1469R.C., dated 24th April 1885, forwarded with Commissioner's circular No. 37P.Wct., dated 27th May 1885.

(4.) The cause of the amount realised as interest on the arrear cess being in excess of the amount budgetted for is due to the fact that a larger amount of arrears was outstanding at the close of each quarter than what had been calculated at the time of the submission of the budget estimate. The arrears were collected in full, and consequently a larger amount of interest was realised.

(5.) Expenditure.—During the cess year 1883-84 salary for the month of September 1884 was paid on 23rd September 1884 on account of the Doorga Poojah holidays; hence during this year 11 months' pay has been charged.

(6.) As the demand for the last quarter of cess year 1883-84 was realised in October 1884, Doorga Poojah holidays having intervened, the collection of this year was larger than the estimated amount; hence the percentage cost of establishment had to be paid in excess than the amount provided for in the budget.

(7.) Nothing was spent on this road during this year. It is shown in this statement only because the value of materials lying at the site of this road has been transferred to other works.

(8.) Surveying and taking levels of the country between Thakurgaon-Joygung and Ruhia-Chakla Boda, amounting to Rs. 150 and Rs. 1,067, entered in antique in the column "Amount as per budget estimate" against road No 24 (repairs), were not provided in the original budget estimate, but subsequently they have been sanctioned by the Commissioner—vide his No. 2P.W., dated 4th April 1885.

(9.) As the amounts provided for roads Nos. 10, 42 and 45 were not sufficient for their maintenance, nothing was expended on them.

(10.) This is a road within the village of Gangarampore: it has no connection with the district road No. 7, Gangarampore road.

(11.) Besides this, Rs. 300 worth of materials have been used on this road which have been supplied by the villagers.

(12.) The Sub-Overseer and Draftsman was on privilege leave: his leave allowance was drawn during this year; hence 13 months pay was drawn.

D. D. CHOWDHURY,
Vice-Chairman.

No 109, dated Beaulah, the 21st December 1885.

From—E. H. RUDDOCK, Esq., Magistrate and Chairman of the Road Cess Committee, Rajshahye,

To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to forward the accounts of income and expenditure of the District Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85, and to make the following remarks on the administration of the fund.

These accounts were examined by the Sub-Committee of Audit, and certified by them as correct. They were then laid before the special meeting held on the 10th December 1885, and passed by them under section 179 of the Bengal Cess Act.

The road cess was levied at the full rate of half anna in the rupee.

The cess collection during the year fell short of the estimated amount, and the reason has been explained by the Collector in his annual report of the collection branch.

	Rs.
The year commenced with an opening balance of ...	17,432
The revenue collected during the year, including contribution from Government and private parties, was ...	78,307
The receipts under the suspense heads were ...	34,304
These made up a total of ...	1,30,043
The expenditure on works, including dāk bungalow and drains, was ...	54,958
That on several establishments and stationery	21,176
And under suspense ...	26,699
Leaving a balance of ...	27,210

available for the current year.

Meetings held.—There were five road cess meetings held in the year, and they were fairly attended.

District roads.—The feeder road from Nowgong to Hupaniah Hât, for which an estimate for Rs. 42,575 was sanctioned by Government, is gradually approaching completion. During the year under report two more large iron and timber bridges were constructed on the road.

A timber-topped bridge on timber piles and iron girders, 81 feet in length, was constructed over the Abhoya khal on the road to Maldah.

Two bridges on the Bogra road, of masonry piers and timber top, were thoroughly repaired.

No new metalling was laid this year. The proposal to extend the metalling of the Nattore road was given up in the expectation of connecting the sudder station with Nattore by a railway.

Great improvements were made on the Maldah, Dinagepore, Bogra, Madarigunge, Tannore, and Damkoora roads.

The other roads were repaired and maintained in as good condition as possible, considering the limited funds at the disposal of the Committee.

But the unusually high flood of the year, increased in some cases by the wilful mischief of the villagers who cut the roads, has breached the Pubna road in several places, and washed away two timber bridges on the Nattore road.

A few of these men were arrested and punished.

Village roads.—The village roads received the usual attention of the Committee, and the applications received for their improvements have invariably been considered.

Earthwork repairs were frequently undertaken by others than the official staff, and the Committee are particularly indebted to Messrs. Money, Lang, and Mr. Bamber, late District Superintendent of Police, for their labours in this respect.

The total expenditure on these roads was Rs. 3,681, including cost on certain works undertaken to relieve the distress felt, though only for a short time, at Bagmara thana and about Doorgapore outpost.

Drains.—The condition of the drains in connection with the Department Public Works sluice gates at Rampore Beaulah was improved, and some culverts on the Nattore and Bya roads had in connection with the municipal drainage scheme to be renewed with increased waterway for the purpose.

The cutting mentioned in last year's report near the Nandangarhee embankment was not found to bring in quite as much water as was required, and the Putiya zemindars again subscribed, and under the superintendence of the District Engineer a second cutting was made west of the first one. This, helped by the flood of the season, carried into the country an enormous stream of water, and is said to have done great good. The health about Durgapore and Bagmara is certainly improved.

Arboriculture.—Good care was taken of trees planted in previous years on the sides of the Nattore road. Some date trees were planted in the year under report on the Nattore and Bya roads.

Cost of establishment.—The cost of establishment during the year was :—

	Rs.
Collection establishment, including cost of serving processes ...	4,031
Administration... ..	1,167
Percentage cost of establishment for offices of account and control	1,159
Public Works establishment	11,027
Total cost	17,384

The revenue for the year being Rs. 78,307, the ratio of establishment to revenue is 22·2 : 100, and is therefore within the limit allowed in section 135 of the Act.

Working of the establishment.—The District Engineer, Mr. N. W. Mackenzie, continued to give satisfaction to the Committee, and the greater part of the establishment have worked well.

K. K. SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

Dated Beaulah, the 8th December 1885.

From—BARBOO KARI KINKER SEN and others,
To—The Chairman of the Road Cess Committee, Rajshahye.

WE, the undersigned, members of the Road Cess Sub-Committee appointed under sections 174 and 179 of the Act to audit the accounts of the Road Fund for the cess year 1884-85, have the honor to report that a meeting for the purpose was held on the 8th December 1885, and that the accounts were examined and passed by us as they were found correct.

Report of the works done and in progress during the cess year 1884-85, drawn up by the Vice-Chairman of the Road Cess Committee, Rungpore, under Section 178 of the Bengal Cess Act, IX (B.C.) of 1880.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith in duplicate a detailed account of receipts and expenditure of the District Road Fund for the past cess year ending on the 30th September 1885, prepared under section 178 of the Bengal Cess Act, together with the following brief report on the works of local improvement that were undertaken during that year, and those proposed to be carried out during the current year 1885-86.

2. Audit of accounts.—The annual accounts were examined by the Sub-Committee of audit and certified by them as correct. They were then laid before the special meeting of the Committee held on the 30th November 1885, and passed by them under section 179 of the Bengal Cess Act, IX (B.C.) of 1880.

3. Assessments and collections.—The current demand on account of the cess on lands for the year was Rs. 1,26,940, and the arrear demand from last year Rs. 13,575, making a gross demand of Rs. 1,40,515 for realization. A sum of Rs. 1,30,438 was realized during the year, leaving a balance of Rs. 10,077 uncollected at end of the year.

4. Working of the Cess Act.—The Road Cess Act has been in force in this district since October 1876, and this is the ninth report of its working. The people in general appreciate the working of the road cess system on account of improvements that have been made in the district and village communications during the last few years. Unlike other taxes, the cess is paid without any hostile feeling towards it. As reported last year, the provisions of section 99 of the Cess Act had to be enforced in many cases for the recovery of arrears from habitual defaulters, as the Certificate Act is in practice dilatory, and does not facilitate the recovery of arrears. On the whole, the Cess Act worked efficiently during the year, as the gross collections have been 102·7 per cent. on the demand for the year. The district is under revaluation, which work has been taken in hand two years since. It is expected that the work of revaluation will be finished in the current year, and there is every probability of the cess being on the increase to a certain extent.

5. Working of the District and Branch Committees.—The number of meetings held by the District Committee was seven, and the members attended in sufficient number to form a quorum and evinced great interest in all matters brought before them for discussion. There are three Branch Committees, i.e., one at Gaibanda, one at Kurigram, and the other at Nilphamari. The Committee at Gaibanda met seven times, that at Kurigram four times, and that at Nilphamari nine times during the year. The non-official members at Kurigram took no interest whatever in their work. Steps will be taken to make this Committee more efficient.

6. Working of the Audit Committee.—The Audit Committee appointed under section 174 of the Cess Act to audit the monthly and the annual accounts did not work well during the year, as the monthly accounts had to be examined in many cases by the Vice-Chairman and only one member, and in one case by the Vice-Chairman alone. The reason is that it was invariably found difficult in procuring the attendance of two other members to examine them. Every endeavour will, however, be made to act strictly in accordance with the provisions of the law in matter of auditing accounts in future. The difficulty is that the accounts are all in English, and only two of the non-official members are acquainted with that language.

7. Inspection of accounts.—The accounts of the Committee's office were examined by Baboo Jogendra Nath Banerjee, Local Auditor, in March last, and the result was satisfactory.

8. How the different establishments worked during the year.—The different establishments on the collection of cess, on the administration of the funds, and on the execution of works have on the whole worked satisfactorily during the year. I would particularly mention Baboo Kartic Chundra Chatterjee, Accountant, who from his intimate knowledge of the Public Works system of accounts and businesslike habits, gave me satisfaction in the discharge of his duties.

Baboo Asutosh Lahiree, B.C.E., continues to serve as District Engineer, and has given me as usual satisfaction in the performance of his duties. He has a good knowledge of his work, and works hard to get good work done and to see that those under him work properly.

9. Original works.—No original works could be taken in hand, as the estimates were not sanctioned by Government in time to commence them. A sum of Rs. 57,000 was originally budgetted for original works in the construction of bridges on 11 important lines of communication, the estimates for which were only sanctioned by Government in the middle of August last, when the working season had far advanced. Four projects, however, were sanctioned by the Commissioner in the middle of May last, but owing to heavy rains the bridge works could not be taken in hand, the bridge sites being under water; consequently the budget estimates had to be revised in July last, in which a sum of Rs. 5,490 was allotted for "original works," against which only Rs. 1,125-11-3 have been spent. The revised budget estimates were sanctioned by the Commissioner in his letter No. 64P.W., dated 28th September last. All the materials for the original works that were originally budgetted for have, however, been collected, and the works will be taken in hand as soon as the water subsides. Nearly 21 lakhs of bricks have departmentally been manufactured at an expense of a little over Rs. 20,000, or at an average rate of Rs. 10 per thousand bricks, against Rs. 15 per thousand selling at the local markets. The outturn of the brick manufacturing operations is therefore satisfactory—a result due to the zeal and supervision of the District Engineer. Some 4,500 maunds of lime have also been purchased. Out of the quantity 3,855 maunds were brought from the Government manufactory at Chuttuck through the Superintendent of Works, Assam Division. Arrangements are now being made to get the required quantity of lime for the current year's works from the same manufactory.

10. Repairs.—A sum of Rs. 41,417 was spent on repairs, against Rs. 68,956 of the previous year. With this sum all the roads and tracks in the district were repaired and kept in order as far as funds at the disposal of the Committee permitted. Out of the amount spent on repairs a sum upwards of Rs. 10,000 was spent in putting down stoneware pipes of 21 inch diameter, aggregating 2,000 r. ft. on all minor openings for village drainage and for irrigation purposes. The roads received great attention and are improving every year.

11. Village roads.—A sum of Rs. 5,886 was spent on the village roads, against Rs. 6,000 budgetted for. Part of this sum was entrusted to private gentlemen for the repairs of village roads within their jurisdiction, and the balance distributed amongst the sub-divisional officers of Gaibanda, Kurigram, and Nelphamari for proper management. The money appears to have advantageously been spent, and the working agencies, both officials and non-officials, have shown great interest in the matter of village communications. The thanks of the Committee are due to Rai Romoni Mohan Rai Chowdhury Bahadoor, zemindar of Tooshphander, and Baboo Trailucco Nath Lahiree, Manager of Burdhoukote, wards estates, for undertaking repairs of certain roads and satisfactorily carrying them out.

12. Arboriculture.—A sum of Rs. 693 was spent on tree-planting. The trees that were hitherto planted on the sides of some of the important district roads have been kept in fair order. The nursery started for young plants during the years 1883-84 was maintained in fair order. A large number of mahogany and sissoo trees will be fit for transplanting during the next rains.

SYAMAKUMUD MUKERJI,

Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Rungpore.

Chairman's Report on Roads.

THE best praise that I can give the roads is that in each cold weather tour I can drive a spring conveyance over more and more of the principal and even some of the village roads. We are pushing on now with bridges, and hope by the end of the present year to have abolished all those unsatisfactory bamboo bridges which cost so much, and even never safe, and to have in their places substantial masonry or timber bridges constructed to last for many years.

S. K. MUKERJI,
Vice-Chairman.

EXPLANATORY NOTE ON THE ANNUAL ACCOUNTS FOR 1884-85.

Repairs.

THE repairs of certain roads have exceeded the budget allotments on account of repairs done to the damages caused to the roads and bridges by heavy rains. The excess expenditures have, however, been met from the total savings on the allotment under the head "Repairs."

Tools and Plant.

THE expenditure under this head has exceeded the budget allotment by Rs. 77-3-3. The excess is owing to the purchase of office boxes for the use of Vice-Chairman and District Engineer. The one hitherto used by the latter officer was taken by the Divisional Superintendent of District Road Works, Rajshahye Division, during his last inspection. The excess expenditure has, however, been met from the general savings on the budget.

S. K. MUKERJI,

Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Rungpore.

No. , dated Bogra, the
From—The Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Bogra,
To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the annual account and report of the District Road Fund operations for the cess year ending 30th September 1885.

2. The Cess Act has worked smoothly. The total cess collections amounted to 101·8 per cent. on the amount entered in last year's budget as the year's demand.

* * * *

4. The District Road Fund and the District Engineer's offices were inspected by the Assistant Examiner of Accounts during the year, and the suggestions made by him were generally carried out.

5. The different establishments under the committee worked on the whole fairly well. This is subject to the explanations contained in paragraph 10.

6. As stated in my reports of previous years, the principal roads in the district are above high flood level and bridged. None of the roads are metalled, but most of them were easily drivable throughout the year, and many of them in a really good condition. All other minor roads were maintained during the year, and some were considerably improved.

The Doobchachia Burigunge and Khetlal Shirhutti roads, which existed only in parts, are now complete.

The two feeder roads—Joypore to Joypore Hât, and Sonamookhee to Nowabgunge—constructed by the Public Works Department, were taken over to be maintained on the District Road Cess Fund. The former has been included in the list as No. 37. The latter road, viz, Sonamookhee to Nowabgunge, is not separately entered in the list, as it is already included in the Doobchachia Nowabgunge road, which is borne on the list as No. 13. The part from Sonamookhee to Nowabgunge of this road having been realigned, embanked, and bridged by the Public Works Department.

7. Rupees 1,802-15 were spent from the village road allotment on the following works:—

	Rs.	A.	P.
1. Bhanderpore to Nowabgunge ...	70	0	0
2. Gybanda ...	50	0	0
3. Madla ...	60	0	0
4. Narhatta ...	150	0	0
5. Doobchachia Dhup ...	89	5	5
6. Hilli Ghoraghat ...	339	0	11
7. Dhunot road ...	50	0	0
8. Khas mehal ...	930	0	0
9. Hilli Town road ...	14	3	11
10. Baniadighi hât ...	50	4	9
Total ...	1,802	15	0

8. Arboriculture.—During the last year young jack and mangoe trees were planted on the sides of the Doobchachia Burigunge and parts of the Serajgunge, Rungpore, Dinagepore, and Sultanpore roads. The following is a statement of trees planted up to date on roads of the district :—

NAME OF ROAD.	Length of road planted.	Number planted last year.	Number of trees planted.	Total.
Doobchachia Burigunge	... Whole way ...	880	880
Matidally cross	... Ditto	136
Rungpore	... Up to 6 mile ...	400	941
Dinagepore	... " 11½ " ...	100	1,434
Sharyakandy	... " 8 "	744
Serajgunge	... " 13½ " ...	1,000	2,392
Nattore	... " 4 "	700
Sultanpore	... " 26 "	3,146
		2,380		10,373

The whole of this large number of trees are growing vigorously and excellently, with few or no failures. It is confidently expected that in a few years these trees will form a source of a very considerable income to the Road Cess Fund.

9. In the current year's budget provisions have been made for repairing, maintaining, and improving all the existing roads of the district as far as the funds allow, as also for the completion of the remaining work of the Gohaile to Durgapore relief road.

10. The District Engineer has given satisfaction in the discharge of his duties, and the good state of the Bogra roads generally is a tangible proof of his being a good, efficient officer. The cases of the late accountant and head clerk and of the estimator were specially reported to you, and have all been disposed of otherwise, and since the road cess establishment has worked fairly well.

FORM OF AUDIT CERTIFICATE.

I HEREBY certify that books and accounts specified below prescribed for the Road Cess office and for the office of the District Engineer are duly kept up, and that they have been posted for the month of _____ and have been duly scrutinized by the Sub-Committee.

Also that the treasury officer's abstract of the accounts of the Committee for the year have been duly received, checked with the cash and pass books and found to agree therewith (except in respect of uncashed cheques, which are above enumerated, and have been duly noted in cash book).

That the vouchers for the payments of the months have been cancelled.

That all necessary steps have been taken for the recovery or adjustment of outstanding advances.

That none but duly sanctioned expenditure has been incurred, and that in case of original works the register of monthly expenditure shows clearly the amount of sanctioned estimate, the grant for the year, and the expenditure of each work to end of the month, and generally that the work of the office has been performed with carefulness and regularity and with due observance of the rules prescribed by Government.

MOHES CHANDRA SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

Explanatory Note to accompany the Annual Accounts.

RECEIPTS.

Cess on Lands.—The arrear outstanding at the close of the preceding year was collected during this year; hence the collection was larger than the amount budgeted for.

Rent of Road Cess Bungalow.—The decrease under the above head is caused owing to the road cess bungalow having been burnt down by the fire taking place on the 21st April last, and it has not been reconstructed; hence the amount realized under this head during the year was less than that estimated for.

EXPENDITURE.

Percentage Cost of Establishment for the Offices of Account and Control.—The excess expenditure under this heading is owing to the payment of a part of demand for the previous year having been made during the year under report.

Original Works.—Compensation for land acquired for the Joypore-Khetlal, Hilli-Pattiram, and Gohail-Durgapore roads have not yet been paid, and hence the savings under this head.

Kancha Godown in the Road Cess Office Compound.—This work was completed during 1883-84, but owing to the contractor's absence the part of his demand was paid during the year under review.

Repairs.—The excess expenditure on road No. 3 was incurred for keeping the road drivable during the rains. A larger quantity of sand being thrown on this road for the purpose than was estimated for.

Nothing was spent on road No. 20 by the Committee. This road was transferred to the Department Public Works for reconstruction.

The increase of Rs. 249, Rs. 748, Rs. 43, Rs. 438, Rs. 826.6, and Rs. 110 for repairs to the roads Nos. 1, 4, 10, 14, 23, and Mokamtollah bungalow, respectively, as shown in the column "Amount as per budget estimate," over the amount shown under those heads in the Road Fund budget estimate is due to subsequent appropriations sanctioned by the Committee from the savings of other roads.

MAHES CHANDRA SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

No. 45D.R., dated Pubna, the 19th December 1885.

From—C. VOWELL, Esq., Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Pubna,
To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

UNDER section 179 of the Cess Act, I have the honour to submit the Road Fund annual account and report for the cess year 1884-85.

2. The working of the Cess Act.—The Cess Act worked smoothly as in previous years. People now complain, not of having to pay the cess, but of having so little in return for it in the shape of new and embanked roads.

3. Working of the District Committee.—Such of the committee as attended evinced a lively and intelligent interest in their work, but as usual mofussil members were seldom present at meetings.

4. The working of the Branch Committee.—The Chairman of the Branch Road Cess Committee of Serajgunge reports that it was rather difficult to induce the members to take any very lively interest in their work, having but little to do on account of the limited funds at their disposal. The allotment for tracks and village roads for the Serajgunge sub-division was at the disposal of the Branch Committee, and they have performed the work satisfactorily.

5. Original Works.—Under the head of "Original Works" very little was done, and nothing that deserves specific mention. Some of the works provided for were not undertaken, the estimates having been prepared and sanctioned late in the year, and owing also to the paucity of the supervising staff.

6. Repairs.—All the roads and tracks in the district were repaired and maintained in fair order. It should be stated here that towards the close of the year the unusually high flood did very heavy damages to the roads, especially to those of the Pubna sub-division. This liability to damage by flood is a great drawback to roads in this district, as almost every year the work of the previous years is to a great extent undone during the rains.

7. State of the Roads as a whole, whether improved or deteriorated.—I have not myself seen many of the roads yet, but despite the damage done by the floods, those that I have seen are somewhat improved in appearance.

8. Village Roads.—The expenditure on village roads was Rs. 678-1-9 in the Pubna sub-division, and Rs. 737-12 in Serajgunge, out of an allotment of Rs. 2,000. In some cases the work was done by departmental agency, and in others the grant was made over to the villagers to be spent by them as best suited their convenience. The people of the villages of Taras and Gudhibari in Serajgunge, and Saruria and Koladi in Pubna, contributed Rs. 150, Rs. 50, Rs. 20 and Rs. 10 to supplement the grant sanctioned for their respective villages.

9. Planting of Trees.—Almost nothing was done during the year on planting of new trees on roadsides. The trees planted in previous years were well tended.

10. Audit and Inspection of Accounts.—The accounts of the Road Cess Committee's and the District Engineer's offices were regularly audited by a standing sub-committee. In a few cases the audit, instead of being monthly, was taken up a month after being due, in consequence of the inability of the members to meet at the proper time. The result of the audit was satisfactory. The accounts were inspected in January last by the Inspector of Local Accounts, and his report does not point to any material defects in the accounts.

WORKING OF THE ESTABLISHMENTS.

11. Establishment for collection of Cess.—The collections are good, despite heavy work thrown on the staff by the revaluation of lakhiraj properties.

Establishment on Works.—I have not yet seen enough of the work to be able to pass a decided opinion, but there seems to have been some delay in starting preliminary repairs necessary to make roads at once passable.

PROTAP CHANDRA ROY,
Vice-Chairman,
for Chairman.

No. 6.—Part II.

PROTAP CHANDRA ROY,
Vice-Chairman.

Explanatory Memoranda on the Road Fund Annual Account for 1884-85.

THE increase of Rs. 370, Rs. 67, and Rs. 375 in the allotments for original works and repairs and public works establishment, respectively, as shown in the column "Amount as per budget estimate" of the annual account for 1884-85 over the amounts shown under the same heads in Government, Public Works Department, Resolution No. 1469R.C., dated the 24th April 1885, is due to subsequent appropriations sanctioned in Commissioner's letter No. 14P.W., dated 14th May 1885, No. 27P.W., dated 18th May 1885, No. 73P.Wct., dated 28th July 1885, and No. 62P.W., dated 12th September 1885.

2. The decrease of Rs. 863-12-6 and Rs. 1,200 in the amounts shown in the annual account against "Fees, fines, and forfeitures" and "Miscellaneous," respectively, as compared with the corresponding figures shown under the same sub heads in the column for progressive totals in the schedule of receipts for September 1885, is due to the amounts having been transferred to the sub-heads "Advances" and "Grant from Government" in accordance with the instructions contained in paragraphs 4 and 5 of the Government Resolution quoted above.

3. The decrease and increase of Rs. 1,166-14-6 in the amounts shown in the annual account against provincial rates and advances, respectively, as compared with the corresponding figures in the schedule of disbursements for September 1885, are to be accounted for as above.

PROTAP CHANDRA ROY,

Vice-Chairman, District Road Committee, Pubna.

PUBNA,

The 4th December 1885.

No 223, dated Darjeeling, the 7th January 1886.

From—W. B. OLDHAM, Esq., C.S.; Deputy Commissioner and Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Darjeeling,

To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to forward the annual report and accounts of the District Road Fund, Darjeeling, for the cess year ending 30th September 1885.

2. The balance at credit of the fund on 1st October 1884 was Rs. 11,508-13-3: the revenue collected under the several heads made up a total of Rs. 42,638-15-2. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 26,617-5-1, leaving a balance of 16,015-10-1 available for the current year.

3. During the year under review, out of the current demand, sums of Rs. 17,841 and on account of the arrears Rs. 585 were collected, making in all a total of Rs. 18,426. This includes Rs. 460 collected in advance during the previous years. Rupees 17,561 were realized during this year, leaving Rs. 463 unrealized at its close.

There was also a remission of Rs. 2 only.

4. The number of meetings of the District Committee held during the year was three. The average attendance was four out of eight officials, and six out of 13 non-officials. There was only one meeting of the Terai Branch Committee held at Silliguri.

5. As in former years, the planter members took a very lively interest in the proceedings of the Committee, and rendered considerable assistance in supervising the expenditure of grants made to them for repairs to roads in their neighbourhood.

6. The list of district roads contains 21 hill roads and 11 terai roads, same as last year.

7. The Government grant for the execution of original works not being available during the year, the Committee resolved to undertake the same from their own savings, and make the necessary appropriations. The plans and estimates for bridging the hill streams were prepared, but are now pending before the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, for sanction; consequently nothing further could be done.

8. Rupees 4,756-5-10 were spent on hill roads, Rs. 6,723-0-6 on the terai roads, making a total expenditure of Rs. 11,479-6-4. Besides the above, a sum of Rs. 614-11-6 was spent on village roads in the Terai. As reported last year, no expenditure was incurred on arboriculture.

9. The Cess Act worked smoothly during the year, the total collection being 100.5 per cent. on the current demand.

10. The establishment worked on the whole satisfactorily. An incompetent overseer has been replaced by a qualified District Engineer.

11. The Road Fund Office was not inspected by the Examiner of Local Accounts during the year under report.

*Explanatory Memorandum to accompany the Annual Accounts for the cess year 1884-85.RECEIPTS.

(1.) The arrear outstanding at the close of the preceding year was fully collected during this year; hence the collection was larger than the amount budgetted for.

(2.) The increase is due to an additional grant of Rs. 1,000 made from the one-anna cess fund during the current financial year, i.e., after the budget estimates were framed.

EXPENDITURE.

(3.) The excess over allotment under this heading is owing to the payment of a part of the demand for the previous year having been made during the year under report.

(4.) The following original works have not been taken up, the Government grant for their execution not being available during the year—vide Government order No. 46TB, dated 30th April 1885, communicated with the Commissioner's No. 20PWct, dated 2nd May 1885:—

1. Bridge over Little Rungeet at Pulbazar on road No. 2.
2. Ditto Mohanudi on road No. 14.
3. Ditto Rungbong on road No. 13.
4. Ditto Balasun at Namsog on road No. 15.

(5.) The allotment for the original work on road No. 18 was transferred under the head "repairs" to that road—vide Commissioner's No. 200PWct, dated 19th March 1885. This also accounts for the increase of allotment for repairs to that road.

(6.) The expenditure on some of the works under the head "repairs" exceeded the budget grants, but the extra cost was met from the savings under other items of repairs. In other cases in which excess expenditure is shown it occurred in the following way. The expenditures on works executed in the previous year were adjusted during the current year, and thus the expenditure appears to be in excess over the allotments provided in the budget of the year under report.

(7.) Rupees 230-3-8 were actually expended on the road No. 15, but as the detailed account was not received during the year, the necessary adjustments have not been made.

(8.) The following bridges were repaired during the year at a cost of Rs. 810-2 sanctioned by the Committee, after the preparation of the budget estimates in order to keep the traffic open during the rains:—

1. Bridge over the Little Rungeet at Pulbazar.
2. Numsog cane bridge.
3. Cane bridge over Great Rungeet.
4. Rungbong bridge (temporary).

(9.) The expenditure incurred on account of pay of overseer and his peon was met from the provision of Rs. 4,800 made for the District Engineer and his establishment. The Committee thought it necessary to retain the services of the overseer till the District Engineer could join his appointment.

A. RATTRAJ,

Vice-Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Darjeeling.

No. 51, dated Julpiguri, the 19th December 1885.

From—G. J. B. T. DALTON, Esq., Deputy Commissioner and Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Julpiguri,

To—The Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith, in duplicate, the annual accounts of income and expenditure of the Julpiguri District Road Fund for the cess year ending 30th September 1885, and to report as follows.

* * * * *

3. Branch Committees.—There are no Branch Committees in this district.

4. Feeling of people towards Road Cess.—Nothing has transpired during the year to throw any fresh light on the real feelings with which the people regard the tax.

It is paid willingly enough, and probably by the poorer classes looked on as an addition to their rent, much the same as any other enhancement. The better classes, however, appreciate the benefit to be derived from improved communications, and petitions are frequent asking that more may be done for particular tract.

The tea-planters, as a body, although they pay little road cess, seem to think that it is the Committee's duty to find money for their roads somehow. They would, I think, readily pay far more than they do. The next valuation will bring a large number of gardens on the list of cess-paying estates, which at present pay nothing.

5. State of Roads.—All the important roads in the district, except portions of the Dalimkat and the Nagrakuta roads, were in traffic order all the year round. Petty repairs to the principal roads, when required, were executed as promptly as possible. For execution of petty repairs to the roads gangs of Dhangar coolies were entertained throughout the year. All the roads under the Committee, as per the printed list, were repaired and maintained in order so far as the limited funds at the disposal of the Committee admitted. Owing to the retention of Rs. 10,000 as a working balance, no important original works, except the reconstruction of few bridges on the Julpiguri to Alipur road, were undertaken during the year under report.

6. Village Roads.—A sum of Rs. 1,580 was allotted in the budget estimate for the repairs of village roads. Of this allotment Rs. 1,431-2-9 was expended during the year. All the village roads provided for in the estimate were repaired.

7. Tree-planting.—Rupees 200 was allotted in the budget under this head, and Rs. 200-4-6 was expended during the year. Some sissoo, jack, and mangoe trees were planted on the side of the Damdim, Alipur, and Nagrakuta roads. They are thriving well, and strong bamboo fences have been provided for their protection. The Indian rubber trees planted on the side of the Julpiguri to Damdim road are also thriving well.

8. Work Establishment.—The establishment on work consists of one District Engineer, one overseer, and two sub-overseers.

The District Engineer, Baboo Gagen Chunder Biswas, proved himself a zealous and effective officer throughout the year. He is very active and hardworking, and gave me general satisfaction. He reports well of his subordinates, whose qualifications do not come much under my personal observation.

9. Committee's Establishment.—The establishment of the Committee consists of one head clerk and accountant, and one assistant clerk. The head clerk and accountant keeps the accounts and books prescribed by Government of the offices of the Committee and the District Engineer, as the latter has no separate accountant for his own office. The head clerk and accountant, Baboo Chandra Mohun Dass, continued throughout the year, and deserves credit for the efficient discharge of his duties. He is a very intelligent young officer.

His subordinates on the whole worked well.

10. Inspection of Office.—The office was inspected by W. H. Dobbie, Esq., Examiner of Local Accounts, Bengal, on the 28th and 29th January 1885. He found that the accounts in the office of the Vice-Chairman were neatly and accurately kept. He suggested that the talabana accounts of the collection department should be treated and accounted for as advances, and that the District Engineer should keep in his office a challan book for money remitted by him, such as sale proceeds, &c., and a register of works.

11. Audit of Accounts.—The accounts of the Committee were audited and passed monthly by a standing sub-committee, consisting of the Vice-Chairman and two other members of the Committee. The annual accounts were passed by the Sub-Committee on the 25th November 1885, and by the General Committee held on the 30th November 1885.

* * * * *

13. Explanations of Excess Expenditure over Budget Allotments.—Budget allotment to the Julpiguri to Alipore road original work (old estimate) has been exceeded by nearly Rs. 300. This is owing to reconstruction of bridge No. 11 in the 9th mile of the road, which was not provided for in the budget. Budget allotments for original and repair works have nowhere else been so far exceeded as to call for an explanation.

PREO NATH BANERJEE,
Vice-Chairman, District Road Committee.

No. 5P.Wct., dated Darjeeling, the 14th April 1886.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to forward in original the District Road Fund annual accounts and reports of the several districts of this division for the cess year 1884-85.

2. The reports and the accounts of the districts were received in my office in proper time, but most of them had to be returned for revision, and the revised account of one district was not received till March 29th, 1886.

3. Under the instructions in paragraph 6 of Government circular No. 973A., dated 14th September 1880, my report will be brief.

4. Receipts and Expenditure.—The year opened with a balance of Rs. 1,15,596 in the hands of the several committees in the division, and the total revenue of the year was Rs. 4,71,620 against Rs. 5,28,681 of previous year. The falling off of Rs. 57,061 is on account of the contribution of Government being less by Rs. 56,208 than in the previous year.

The net disbursements of the year amounted to Rs. 3,74,666, against a budget allotment of Rs. 4,73,812. This short expenditure is partly due to contemplated original works in the Pubna and Darjeeling districts not being carried out for want of sanction, and to others in the Bogra district being unavoidably postponed, and partly owing to Government circular No. 2121R.C., dated 17th June 1885.

Ninety-one per cent. of the estimated expenditure on repairs was incurred.

5. Original Works.—The only original work of importance carried out in this division was the further progress made towards the completion of the Mahadebpore to Sultanpore feeder road, both by the Rajshahye and Dinagapore Road Cess Committees, and this year will see the completion of this important feeder road to the Northern Bengal State Railway.

Fair progress was made in Rungpore in the manufacture and collection of materials for bridge works, the estimates for which were received back too late to enable the works to be completed during the year.

6. Repairs.—All the roads in the lists of the Committees were repaired so far as the funds at their disposal permitted, and the general condition of the roads in this division continues to improve. I may say that during the dry season vehicles on springs can be driven with comfort over most of the roads in the division.

7. Establishments.—The expenditure on different establishments, exclusive of the Divisional Superintendent's charges, was 20 per cent. of the net aggregate income of the committees in this division, and the expenditure on account of the pay, travelling allowance, and contingent charges of the Divisional Superintendent of Works during the year amounted to Rs. 15,065, or 3.35 per cent. of the aggregate income of all the committees in the division, excepting Darjeeling, which does not contribute towards the cost of the Divisional Superintendent of Works.

8. Mr. Beatty has continued his efficient supervision over works and estimates and the movements of the District Engineers, and given the committees and myself much valuable advice and assistance.

Burdwan Collectorate, the May 1886.

D. N. ADDEY, Deputy Collector in charge.

NOTICE is hereby given that the proprietary right of Government to the undermentioned lands, known as Government Lottery Committee lands, situated in the Town of Calcutta, will be put up to sale by public auction at the Calcutta Collectorate at 12 A.M. on the 12th July 1886, corresponding with 29th of Assar 1293 B.S.

The purchase will be subject to the following conditions of sale:—

Conditions of Sale.

1st.—The lands to be sold to the highest bidder above the upset price. The purchaser of the lands will be considered as the proprietor of the lands, and the entire proprietary right of Government in such lands will be transferred to him subject to the payment of Government revenue of 3 annas per kottah.

2nd.—The sale to be subject to existing leases.

3rd.—If the amount of purchase-money do not exceed Rs. 100 (rupees one hundred), the whole amount to be paid at once.

4th.—If the amount of purchase-money exceeds Rs. 100 (rupees one hundred), one-fourth the amount bid to be immediately deposited. If the balance be not paid by noon of the 15th day after the sale, reckoning the day of sale as one, or if that be a close holiday, then by the noon of the first succeeding office day, the sale to be cancelled (the sum deposited being forfeited to Government), and the land to be again put up to sale at the risk of the defaulting purchaser after issue of advertisement as in the case of original sale.

Act of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

THE following Act, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, received the assent of His Honour on the 29th March 1886, and having received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 28th May 1886, is hereby published for general information:—

of ACT No. II OF 1886.

An Act to amend Act II (B.C.) of 1866, and the Calcutta Police Act, 1866.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Bengal Act II of 1866 and the Calcutta Police Act, 1866: It is enacted as follows:—

1. This Act shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. For section 41 of Bengal Act II of 1866, and for section 68 of the Calcutta Police Act, 1866, the following shall be substituted:—

New section substituted for section 41, Act II (B.C.) of 1866, and section 68, Act IV (B.C.) of 1866.

“Whoever is found drunk and is incapable of taking care of himself, or is guilty of any riotous or indecent behaviour, in any public street or thoroughfare, or in any place of public amusement or resort, shall be liable, on summary conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding eight days.”

New section to follow section 68 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1866.

3. After section 68 of the said Calcutta Police Act the following shall be added:—

Amendment of section 72 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1866.

4. After section 72 of the said Calcutta Police Act the following words shall be added:—

“if the name and address of such person be unknown to such police officer, and cannot be ascertained by him then and there.”

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LÉGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th June, 1886, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

NO. 8 OF 1886.

A Bill to alter the constitution of the body corporate known as the Trustees of the Indian Museum, and to confer certain additional powers on that body.

WHEREAS it is expedient to alter the constitution of the body corporate known as the Trustees of the Indian Museum, and to amend the law relating to the powers of the said Trustees; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1)* This Act may be called the Indian Museum Act, 1886; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the Indian Museum Act, 1876, are repealed.

3. For those sections the following shall be substituted, namely:—

Constitution and incorporation of the Trustees of the Indian Museum. "3. The Trustees of the said Indian Museum shall be—

- (a) the person for the time being holding the office of Accountant General of Bengal;
- (b) five other persons to be appointed by the Governor General in Council;
- (c) five other persons to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal;
- (d) five other persons to be appointed by the Council of the Asiatic Society of Bengal; and
- (e) five other persons to be appointed by the Trustees; and the said Trustees shall be a body corporate, by the name of the Trustees of the Indian Museum, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal.

"4. All the powers of the said body corporate may be exercised so long and so often as there are nine members thereof.

"5. If a trustee appointed under section 3 dies, or is absent from India for more than twelve consecutive months, or desires to be discharged, or refuses or becomes incapable to act, or becomes Accountant General of Bengal, then the authority which appointed the trustee may appoint a new trustee in his place."

4. (1) For the purposes of the Indian Museum Act, 1876, as amended by XXII of 1876 this Act—

- (a) the persons nominated by the Governor General in Council under the Indian Museum Act, 1876, and now holding office as Trustees, shall be deemed to be persons appointed by the Governor General in Council under section 3 of that Act as amended by this Act; XXII of 1876.
- (b) the President of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, and the other members of the Council of that Society nominated by that Council under the Indian Museum Act, 1876, and now holding office as Trustees, shall be deemed to be persons appointed by the Council of the Asiatic Society of Bengal under the said section; and XXII of 1876.
- (c) the persons elected and appointed by the Trustees under the said Act, and now holding office as Trustees, shall be deemed to have been appointed by the Trustees under the said section.

(2) The Secretary to the Government of India and the Superintendent of the Geological Survey of India shall cease to be ex officio members of the said body corporate.

Power to Trustees to keep collections not belonging to them. 5. Notwithstanding anything in the Indian Museum Act, 1876,—

XXII of 1876.

- (a) the Trustees of the Indian Museum, if they think fit, may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and subject in each case to such conditions as he may approve and to such rules as he may from time to time prescribe, assume the custody and administration of collections which are not the property of the Trustees for the purposes of their trusts in that Act mentioned, and keep and preserve the collections either in the Indian Museum or elsewhere; and
- (b) in the event of the trust constituted by that Act being determined, collections of which the Trustees have assumed the custody and administration under the foregoing part of this section shall not, by reason of their then being in the Indian Museum, become the property of the Government of India.

And whereas it is provided in the Indian Museum Act, 1876, that the Trustees of the Indian Museum shall have the exclusive possession, occupation and control, for the purposes of their trusts in that

XXII of 1876.

Act mentioned, of the whole of the building called the Indian Museum, except certain portions thereof set apart for other purposes; and whereas the Trustees are by virtue of that provision in possession of the property described in the schedule to this Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

6. The Trustees may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and subject to such conditions as he may approve, deliver possession of that property to such person as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may appoint in that behalf.

THE SCHEDULE.

Land bounded on the north by a straight line drawn between the east and the west boundaries parallel to the main south wall of the Museum at a distance of twenty-five feet from the said wall, on the west and south-west by the Chowringhee Road and the walls of the premises known as No. 29 Chowringhee Road, on the south by Kyd Street, and on the east by the walls of the premises known as No. 15 Kyd Street and No. 4 Chowringhee Lane, measuring in all four acres, three roods and sixteen perches, together with all buildings, roads and tanks existing or erected thereon, and all easements appertaining thereto.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to give effect to an arrangement, made with the approval of the Government of India, whereby—

- (a) the Bengal Government is to be represented among the Trustees of the Indian Museum;
- (b) the Bengal Government is to entrust the Trustees with the custody and administration of the economic, ethnological, Indian Art-ware and Fine Art collections belonging to that Government; and
- (c) the Trustees, in consideration of the provision by the Bengal Government of additional accommodation required by them, are to surrender certain land adjacent to the Museum on which that Government may build a School of Art and Art Gallery.

Sections 3 and 4 provide for the representation of the Bengal Government among the Trustees, and sections 5 and 6 empower the Trustees to assume the custody of the collections belonging to the Bengal Government, and to make over to that Government the land on which the School of Art and Art Gallery are to be built.

A. Bill to amend the law relating to Imprisonment for Debt.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to imprisonment for debt; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Debtors Act, Short title and com- 1886; and it shall come into pence- ment. force on the first day of January, 1888.

2. (1) This Act shall extend, in the first instance, only to the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Chief Commissioner of Oudh.

(2) But any other Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the official Gazette, extend this Act, with effect on and from a day not less remote than one year from the date of the notification, to the whole or any specified part of the territories under its administration or to any class of debtors within the whole or any specified part of those territories.

3. In this Act the expression "Revenue Court" means a Court having jurisdiction in suits for the rent, revenue or profits of land.

4. Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Civil Procedure or any other enactment, a person shall not be liable to arrest or imprisonment for default in compliance with a decree or order of a Civil or Revenue Court for payment of money except in the following cases:—

(a) where the order is for payment of a fine; [Act X, 1882, s. 480; Act XIV, 1882, ss. 170, 174 & 412.]

(b) where the defaulter is a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity, and the decree or order requires him, as such, to pay any money which is in his possession or under his control, or any money for which he is accountable and of which he has not discharged himself; [32 & 33 Vic., c. 62, s. 4; Guardians and Wards Bill, 1856, s. 38.]

(c) where the Court is satisfied that, since incurring the liability in respect of which the decree or order was made, the defaulter has fraudulently transferred, concealed or removed any part of his property, or committed any other act of bad faith in relation thereto, with the object or effect of impeding the enforcement of the decree or order by the attachment and sale of his property; [L. R. 4 Ch. 156—159.]

(d) where the Court is satisfied that the defaulter either has, or has had since the date of the decree or order, the means to pay the money, and has refused or without reasonable cause neglected, or refuses or neglects, to pay the same. [32 & 33 Vic., c. 62, s. 5.]

5. In any case coming within the exception specified in clause (b) of section 4 the Court may, after inquiry into the case, Discretionary powers of Courts in some excepted cases.

grant or refuse, either absolutely or on terms, any application for the arrest or imprisonment of the defaulter, or for his release from arrest or discharge from imprisonment.

[Act XIV,
1882, s. 287;
32 & 33 Vic.,
c. 62, s. 5.]

6. (1) The High Court, with respect to Courts subordinate to it, and the Chief Controlling Revenue authority, with respect to Courts subordinate to it, may, with the approval of the Local Government and the sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules for regulating the procedure to be observed in inquiries for determining whether the case of a defaulter for whose arrest or imprisonment application has been made is a case coming within the exceptions specified in clauses (c) and (d) of section 4, or within either of those exceptions.

(2) Rules may be made under this section—

(a) for the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Chief Commissioner of Oudh, at any time after the passing of this Act, and

(b) for territories under the administration of any other Local Government, at any time after the publication of the notification extending this Act to those territories or to any class of debtors therein;

but rules so made shall not take effect until the Act comes into force in the territories for which they have been made.

(3) An authority making rules under this section shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules in such manner as the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribes.

(4) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(5) The authority making the rules shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(6) A rule made under this section shall not take effect until it has been published in the local official Gazette.

(7) The publication in that Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this section shall be conclusive proof that it has been duly made.

7. The operation of the enactment under which the defaulter is liable to

Provisions as to imprisonment under Act. arrest or imprisonment in any case coming within the exceptions specified in clauses (b), (c) and (d) of section 4, or within any of those exceptions, or is entitled to release from the arrest or discharge from the imprisonment, shall be subject to the following provisions, namely:—

(a) the defaulter may be imprisoned for such term, not exceeding six months, as the Court directs;

(b) no allowance for the subsistence of the defaulter, or for supplying him with clothing or bedding, shall be payable by the person on whose application the order for the imprisonment of the defaulter is made;

(c) during the term of his imprisonment the defaulter shall be maintained at the expense of the Government, and be subject, as nearly as circumstances admit, to the discipline prescribed in the case of a criminal prisoner undergoing simple imprisonment; [L. R. 13 Ch. D. 348.]

(d) notwithstanding the payment of the money in respect of which the decree or order was made, or any arrangement for the payment thereof or proof of present inability to pay it, or any expression of intention to apply for a declaration of insolvency, or any declaration of insolvency, or any request by the person on whose application the order for the arrest or imprisonment was made, the defaulter shall not be released from arrest, or, if he is in prison and the term of his imprisonment is not fulfilled, be discharged from prison, without the order of the Court; [Act XIV, 1882, s. 336 & 311; & Act XII, 1881, s. 163.]

(e) an appeal from the order for the imprisonment of the defaulter, and from an order refusing his release or discharge under clause (d) of this section, shall lie— [Act XIV, 1882, s. 588 (29).]

(i) if the Court making the order is a Civil Court subordinate for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure to the District Court, then to the District Court,

(ii) if the Court making the order is any other Civil Court, then to the High Court, and

(iii) if the Court making the order is a Revenue Court, then to the authority to which appeals lie from orders of the Court relating to the execution of decrees, or, where those orders of the Court are final, to such authority as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf; [Act XII, 1881, s. 196.]

and the order passed on the appeal shall be final. [Act XIV, 1882, s. 622; Act XII, 1881, s. 199.]

8. Where the Court is of opinion that the defaulter has been guilty of any offence under the Indian Penal Code or under any enactment for the time being in force for the punishment of fraudulent debtors, it may, if it thinks fit, instead of ordering his imprisonment under this Act, send him to a Magistrate to be dealt with according to law. [Act XIV, 1882, s. 359.]

9. Notwithstanding anything in Chapter XXXIV of the Code of Civil Procedure, or any other enactment, a defendant in a suit for money only who has been arrested before judgment shall not, as such, either be required to give security for his appearance at any time after the day on which judgment is given, or, if he has been committed to prison, be detained in prison after that day: [32 & 33 Vic. c. 62, s. 6.] XIV of 1882.

Provided that, if judgment is given against the defendant, and the decree-holder applies, on the day on which judgment is given, for the enforcement of the decree by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, the Court may require the judgment-debtor to give such security as it thinks Powers exercisable from time to time.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Imprisonment for Debt in India.

A decree or order for the payment of money may be enforced in India by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor (Act XIV of 1882, s. 251). The Court has a discretionary power to refuse execution at the same time against the person and property of the judgment-debtor (s. 230), but has no discretionary power to refuse execution either against person or against property at the option of the creditor. When an application for execution of a decree is presented, it must, if it is not barred by efflux of time and is otherwise in order, be admitted, and then the Court must order execution of the decree according to the nature of the application (s. 245). The Court cannot refuse to issue its warrant for the execution of the decree unless it sees cause to the contrary (s. 250), and "cause to the contrary," as interpreted by the Courts, means some cause which deprives the decree-holder of the right to execute, or to execute against the party against whom execution is sought, or to execute in the mode prayed for.

2. A judgment-debtor may, when arrested, obtain immediate release by payment of the debt; but if he does not, he must be brought at once before the Court (ss. 336-337).

3. The Local Government may by notification* direct that whenever a judgment-debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for money, and brought before the Court, the Court shall inform him that he may apply, under Chapter XX of the Code, to be declared an insolvent, and that he will be discharged if he has not committed any act of bad faith regarding the subject of his application, and if he places all his property in possession of a receiver appointed by the Court (s. 336).

* Notifications have been issued under this section by all Local Governments except Hyderabad and Coorg.

4. If the judgment-debtor expresses his intention so to apply, and furnishes sufficient security that he will appear when called on, and that he will, within one month, apply to be declared an insolvent, the Court is to release him from arrest. But if he fails so to apply, the Court may either direct the security to be realised, or commit him to prison in execution of the decree (s. 336).

5. A person is not to be imprisoned in execution of a decree for more than six months, or, if the debt does not exceed fifty rupees, for more than six weeks (s. 342).

6. Whilst he is in prison, a monthly allowance must be paid for his subsistence according to scales fixed by the Local Government. The allowance is to be supplied by the decree-holder, and is to be deemed costs in the suit (ss. 338 to 340).

7. He is to be discharged from prison—

- (a) on the amount mentioned in the warrant of committal being paid to the officer in charge of the prison, or
- (b) on the decree being otherwise fully satisfied, or
- (c) at the request of the person on whose application he has been imprisoned, or
- (d) on default in the payment of the allowance for his subsistence, or
- (e) on his being declared an insolvent, or
- (f) on the expiration of the term of his imprisonment (s. 341).

His discharge from prison does not discharge him from his debt, but he cannot be re-arrested under the same decree (s. 341).

8. By the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure are applied, with modifications and exceptions, to the procedure in the Small Cause Courts at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. Among the provisions not so applied are those which relate to the release of an arrested judgment-debtor on his expressing an intention to apply for a declaration of insolvency. Chapter XX of the Code, relating to insolvent judgment-debtors, is also not applied to these Courts. (Sec s. 23 and sched. II.)

9. The Act, however, contains certain special provisions with respect to an arrested judgment-debtor. Under section 29 the Court may release him from arrest on his giving security for payment. And under section 30, if it appears to the Court that a judgment-debtor under its decree is unable, from sickness, poverty or other sufficient cause, to pay the amount of the decree, or of any instalment under the decree, the Court may, from time to time, for such time and on such terms as it thinks fit, suspend the execution of the decree, and release the debtor, or make such order as it thinks fit.

10. In the four districts of the Dekkhan to which the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Acts apply arrest and imprisonment for debt have been abolished in the case of agriculturists.* And certain special Acts for the relief of embarrassed landholders contain provisions protecting the debtor from arrest or imprisonment in respect of the debts to which the Acts apply.

* "No agriculturist shall be arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree for money passed whether before or after this Act comes into force."—(Act XVII of 1879, s. 21, as amended by Act XXII of 1882, s. 8.)

Imprisonment for Debt in England.

11. Imprisonment for debt was abolished in England by the Debtors Act of 1869 (32 & 33 Vic., c. 62), except in the following cases:—

- (1) default in payment of a penalty, or sum in the nature of a penalty, other than a penalty in respect of a contract;
- (2) default in payment of a sum recoverable summarily before a Justice or Justices of the Peace;
- (3) default by a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity and ordered to pay by a Court of Equity any sum in his possession or under his control;
- (4) default by a solicitor in payment of costs, when ordered to pay costs for misconduct as such, or in payment of a sum of money, when ordered to pay the same in his character of an officer of the Court;
- (5) default in payment for the benefit of creditors of any portion of a salary or other income, in respect of the payment of which any Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy is authorized to make an order;
- (6) default in payment of sums in respect of the payment of which orders may be made under the Act (that is, cases of contumacious refusal under section 5 of the Act, see para. 14).

12. The term of imprisonment in these excepted cases must not exceed one year (s. 4).

13. In cases (3) and (4) the Court has power to enquire into the case, and at discretion to grant or refuse an order for arrest or imprisonment (41 & 42 Vic., c. 54, s. 1).

14. Under section 5 of the Act of 1869, a Court may commit to prison for a term not exceeding six weeks, or until payment of the sum due, any person who makes default in payment of any debt, or instalment of any debt, due from him in pursuance of any order or judgment of that or any other competent Court. But the power is not to be exercised unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the person making default has, or has had, since the date of the order or judgment, the means to pay the sum in respect of which he has made default, and has refused or neglected to pay it. "Proof of the means of the person making default may be given in such manner as the Court thinks just, and for the purposes of such proof the debtor and witnesses may be summoned and examined on oath, according to the prescribed rules." A summons under this section is usually called a judgment summons.

15. It will be observed that all the cases in which a debtor is liable to imprisonment under the Act of 1869 involve some degree of delinquency.† And it has been held by high authority‡ that the Act was distinctly intended for the purpose of punishing fraudulent or dishonest debtors.

16. Sums recoverable summarily before Justices, or, as they are called in modern statutory language, Courts of summary jurisdiction, are usually fines. But as ordinary civil debts are in some cases so recoverable, it has been provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vic., c. 49, section 35) that an order of a Court of summary jurisdiction for the payment of a civil debt is not to be enforced by imprisonment, unless the case is such as would make the debtor liable to imprisonment under section 5 of the Debtors Act, 1869.

Imprisonment for Debt in Scotland.

17. In Scotland imprisonment for debt for sums under £8-6-8 was abolished in 1835 by 5 & 6 Wm. IV, c. 70, but alimentary debts (that is, debts for the support of the debtor's wife or children) were excepted from the operation of that Statute. In 1830 was passed the Debtors (Scotland) Act, 1830 (43 & 44 Vic., c. 34), which enacts, by section 4, that,

"with the exceptions hereinafter mentioned, no person shall, after the commencement of this Act, be apprehended or imprisoned on account of any civil debt.

"There shall be excepted from the operation of the above enactment—

(1) taxes, fines or penalties due to Her Majesty, and rates and assessments lawfully imposed or to be imposed;

(2) sums decreed for aliment:

"Provided that no person shall be imprisoned in any case excepted from the operation of this section for a longer period than twelve months."

The same Act contains provisions for the relief of insolvent debtors and for the punishment of fraudulent debtors.

18. By the Civil Imprisonment (Scotland) Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vic., c. 12), imprisonment for alimentary debts was abolished, except in cases where there is a wilful failure to obey the decree for the debt (ss. 3 and 4), and the maximum term of imprisonment for failure to pay rates or assessments was reduced to six weeks (s. 5).

Imprisonment for Debt in Ireland.

19. In Ireland the law as to imprisonment for debt is regulated by the Debtors Act (Ireland), 1872 (35 & 36 Vic., c. 57), as amended by 41 & 42 Vic., c. 54, and is practically identical with the English law.

Proposals for amendment of Indian Law.

20. On the 17th November, 1881, a circular was addressed by the Government of India to all Local Governments and Administrations, stating that the Government of India had under consideration the question of amending the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure bearing upon the question of the arrest of pardaushin women in execution of the decrees of Civil Courts, but that before coming to any final conclusion on the subject the Governor General in Council thought it desirable to deal with the larger question of abolishing imprisonment for debt, and for this purpose to enquire whether sufficient reasons exist for the continued maintenance in India of the present system. Local Governments and Administrations were accordingly requested to favour the Government of India with a full expression of their opinion on the matter.

21. The replies to the circular disclosed much difference of opinion as regards the advisability of maintaining in India the present system of imprisonment for debt.

22. In favour of the maintenance under existing circumstances of the present system of imprisonment for debt were the Madras Government, the Madras High Court, the Bombay Government, the Bombay High Court, the Calcutta High Court, the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce and the Trades Association, Calcutta (unless a change were accompanied by the enactment of a stringent bankruptcy law), the British Indian Association, Calcutta, the Board of Revenue, North-Western Provinces, the Punjab Chief Court, the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, the Chief Commissioner of Assam (provided the law were so altered as to permit the issue of process against the person only after all means of realising the decree by process against property have been exhausted), and the Chief Commissioner and the Judicial Commissioner of Coorg. The arguments which they advanced appear to be in the main the following:—

(a) that the total abolition of imprisonment for debt in India would be premature, and would remove from the Statute Book the only check upon the fraudulent alienation of property by solvent but dishonest debtors;

(b) that legislation has proceeded quite far enough in relief of the judgment-debtor,

• Sir C. Sargent, of the Bombay High Court, wrote:—

• "The legal incidents of the undivided Hindu family, the minute distribution of property caused by the Muhammadan law of descent, and, though last not least, the practice of creating benami titles so common in this country, afford the dishonest debtor endless opportunities of baffling the efforts of the judgment-creditor to attach his property."

while there are in India special difficulties in executing a decree by attachment of property when the judgment-creditor is a member of an undivided family. Creditors are not, it is said, in the habit of proceeding to extremities unless the debtor has the means of liquidating a portion at least of the debt. The men who go to prison are for the most part those who obstinately refuse to pay their debts, and cases of imprisonment for debt are not numerous;

(c) that the abolition of imprisonment for debt would deprive lenders of personal security, would thereby depreciate credit, and would involve an increase in the rate of interest, already very high. In the case of agriculturists this might seriously impair their ability to pay the land-revenue;

(d) that abolition of imprisonment for debt should only be attempted when the habits of secrecy, engendered by centuries of oppression, have partly worn away, and when transactions are open and the registration of deeds and bonds has become habitual. When the debtor's property can be easily traced and seized in execution of a decree, then it will be reasonable and right to withhold execution on the body of a pauper debtor except as a distinctly exceptional and penal measure in the case of fraud.

23. In support of the abolition of imprisonment for debt were the following authorities :—

- (a) the Advocate General of Bengal, who advocated the introduction of the English system, because there is no reason why the matter should not be regulated in India as in England, if proper exceptions and limitations, as contained in the English Debtors Act of 1869, are prescribed, and because the abolition of imprisonment for debt would not cause any public injury, while, on the other hand, the present system in most instances operates only as a means of oppression, to the total ruin of the party imprisoned and of his family ;
- (b) the Bengal Government, which, while not prepared to resist the opinions of the local officers that abolition would at present be premature, thought that, if an alteration of the bankruptcy law were at any time undertaken, measures might then be adopted for the abolition of imprisonment for debt in cases where fraud is not established against the judgment-debtor ;
- (c) the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Government, which regarded the existing practice of placing in the creditor's hands the power of selecting his own method of coercion as a relic of the old semi-barbarous debt laws which has now been eliminated from almost every civilized code of judicial procedure. The present system operates with severity against all debtors, honest and dishonest, indiscriminately. The power of subjecting a debtor to arrest and imprisonment should be entrusted not to the decree-holder, but to the Courts, and its exercise should be limited to cases where clear proof exists of fraudulent and contumacious attempts on the part of the judgment-debtor to defeat the operation of a decree. Imprisonment is especially hard on the cultivator and working-man, whom it deprives of their means of subsistence and of providing for their families ;
- (d) the North-Western Provinces High Court, which advocated the abolition of imprisonment for debt, as it is doubtful whether "any useful purpose is served by the perpetuation in this country of that remnant of barbarism" ;
- (e) the Punjab Government, which believed that there is some reason to fear that, under the present system, creditors occasionally make use of the law to gratify vindictive feelings or personal spite, and to coerce debtors to sell their land and property at a price below its proper value or to relinquish their just rights. Discretionary power ought to be expressly allowed to the Civil Courts, imprisonment not being resorted to as an ordinary process of execution of a decree, unless the Court is satisfied that there has been fraud or wilful concealment of property ;
- (f) the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, who pointed out that the imprisonment of debtors who are paupers, but who are not fraudulent, does no real good to any class, works directly and indirectly great harm to the poorer classes, and causes a distinct loss to the community at large. The practice of permitting such imprisonment has been gradually circumscribed among other civilized nations ; among some nations it has absolutely ceased ; and there is no reason why the way should not be paved for the disappearance of the system in India. Civil Courts should be allowed to grant execution against the body of judgment-debtors against whom there might be prima facie ground for presuming fraud or bad conduct, unless the presumption were rebutted by the judgment-debtor ;
- (g) the Judicial Commissioner of British Burma and the Recorder of Rangoon, who were of opinion that imprisonment for debt should be abolished, except in case of fraud, which should be punished criminally. The Recorder recommended that the law as it now obtains in England should be applied to India ;
- (h) the Resident at Hyderabad, who considered that the present system of imprisonment for debt is not wanted to compel payment, while it may be used to bring undue pressure to bear upon a debtor, especially in an agricultural country where interest in land is generally given as security for debts. He recommended that imprisonment for debt should be retained only to meet cases in which debtors abscond or endeavour to fraudulently evade meeting their obligations.

24. Thus, the preponderance of opinion was on the whole in favour of the maintenance of imprisonment for debt under the present condition of India, but a considerable and influential minority were in favour of its abolition.

25. The arguments on which the upholders of the present system rely fall into two classes : first, arguments which, if valid at all, are valid for England as well as for India ; and, secondly, arguments based on the special circumstances and conditions of India.

26. To arguments of the first class belongs the assertion that "to remove from the Statute Book the penalty of arrest and imprisonment in execution of a decree for money would be to paralyze the commerce and trade of the country." The same objection was made in

* See Lord Cottonham's speech in 1814 on the Creditors and Debtors Bill; Hansard, 74, page 453.

England, first to the abolition of arrest on mesne process,* and afterwards to the abolition of arrest on final process. The power of arrest was removed, and neither commerce nor trade shewed any symptoms of paralysis.

27. Those who uphold imprisonment for debt, not as being generally expedient, but as being specially required for India, do so mainly on two grounds: first, the complexity and obscurity of Indian titles to property; and, secondly, the exceptional prevalence of fraud in India, and the exceptional difficulties of detecting it.

As to the first ground, it has been remarked that if it is wrong to allow a debtor to pledge his person as security for his debts, it is not the less wrong because, owing to the defect of Indian property law, he finds difficulty in giving a satisfactory security over his property.

In the argument based on the prevalence of, and difficulty of detecting fraud, there is undoubtedly much force, though it may be doubted whether the obstacles which can be placed in the way of a creditor realizing his debts are not as great in England as in India. But, however this may be, to make an honest, though needy, debtor liable to imprisonment, simply because fraudulent debtors are numerous and difficult to detect, appears to be as unjust as it would be to make homicide by misadventure punishable by death, simply because the crime of murder was rife and hard to prove.

28. There are in the opinion of the Government of India two principles which ought to be observed in every law of debtor and creditor. The Courts ought not to give effect to any pledge by a debtor either of his person or of the bare necessities of life. The debtor ought not to be allowed, by his own action, supplemented by the action of the Courts, either to deprive himself of his personal liberty, or to reduce himself to starvation. If he cannot obtain credit except on one or other of these securities, it is better that he should not obtain credit at all. Experience acquired in the Dekkhan goes to show that these principles are as applicable to India as to England. The Code of Civil Procedure recognises one of these principles by exempting from seizure for debt the debtor's bare means of subsistence. But this recognition is nullified by the refusal to adopt the principle of exempting the debtor's person from seizure. Of what use is it to reserve by law to the debtor the bare necessities of life, when he can be compelled to give them up by the threat of imprisonment? By those who advocate the retention of the present system, much reliance is placed on the very small proportion of actual imprisonments to warrants of arrest; and the inference drawn from this proportion is that the law, though harsh in theory, produces no hardships in practice. But there is reason to believe that, in the great majority of cases, exemption from arrest is purchased either by renewal of bonds on extortionate terms, or by surrender of property which the law has exempted from seizure, or by surrender of property which does not belong to the debtor at all, but to his relations or friends. In other words, the law enables a creditor to do indirectly what it forbids him to do directly.

29. It is said that the honest debtor has an easy way out of prison through the door of insolvency. But in the first place, the honest debtor ought not to be sent to prison at all; and in the next place, the door which is provided for his release is, for some reason or other, very rarely used. There is, or was until recently, a strong concurrence of opinion to the effect that the Insolvency Chapter of the Code of Civil Procedure is practically a dead letter. As to the causes of its failure,—whether it is to be accounted for by the preliminary proceedings being unnecessarily cumbrous or expensive, or by the difficulty of satisfying the Court under section 351 that the debtor has not been guilty of any kind of misconduct, or by ignorance of the law and of the modes of relief available to debtors,—opinions differ; but about the fact of failure there appears to be no difference.

30. Since 1883 the Government of India has received and published reports obtained from Her Majesty's representatives abroad on the systems of imprisonment for debt in force in the various countries to which they are accredited. Those reports showed that imprisonment for debt has been abolished in nearly all civilized countries.

31. Having regard to the state of the law in the United Kingdom, to those reports, to the success which has attended the abolition of imprisonment for debt in the case of agriculturists to whom the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Acts apply, to some expressions to be found in the opinions of the authorities who considered the draft Bankruptcy Bill of 1885, and to the advocacy by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Chief Commissioner of Oudh, and by the Chief Justice and Judges of the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces, of the entire abolition of the process of arrest for debt, so far as it is a process that can be set in motion at the discretion of the creditor, and of the enforcement of the process being restricted to cases in which the Courts are satisfied that there have been fraudulent and contumacious attempts to defeat the operation of decrees, the Government of India has decided to introduce a Bill giving effect tentatively and, in the first instance, within a limited area to the policy which dictated the English Act of 1869, and is believed by several authorities of weight to be applicable to India.

Provisions of Bill.

32. Sections 1 and 2.—It is proposed that the measure shall apply in the first instance to the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and be extendible to other Provinces, or to particular classes of debtors in other Provinces, by Local Governments with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

From the opinions recorded by the Chief Commissioner and by Mr. MacEwen, the Officiating Recorder of Rangoon, on the draft Bankruptcy Bill of 1885, and by the Recorder, Judicial Commissioner and other authorities, European and Native, on the circular of 1881, there appears to be a strong feeling in Burma in favour of abolishing imprisonment for debt where the debtor has not been guilty of fraud. But it is considered desirable that the proposed Act should apply in the first instance to the territories under one Local Government, and that its effect there should be ascertained before the Act is extended to other parts of the country.

The date on which the Act is to come into force in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is the 1st of January, 1888. If therefore the Bill is passed during the present year, decree-holders will have more than twelve months within which they may proceed against their judgment-debtors under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. In England the period which elapsed between the passing and the coming into force of the Debtors Act 1869, was less than five months.

33. Section 4.—This section is based on section 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869, but applies only to arrest and imprisonment for default in compliance with decrees and orders of Civil and Revenue Courts. Clause (c) is specially designed to check those fraudulent alienations of property by solvent but dishonest debtors which are relied on by the opponents of any mitigation of the existing law as the main justification of imprisonment for debt.

34. Section 5.—This section, following the 41 & 42 Vic., c. 54, permits the Court to refuse, either absolutely or on terms, an application for the arrest or imprisonment, or for the release or discharge from arrest or imprisonment, of a defaulter who is a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity and is required, as such, to pay any money which is in his possession or under his control, or any money for which he is accountable and of which he has not discharged himself.

The origin and object of this clause are stated as follows by Jessel, M. R., in Marris v. Ingram (L. R. 13 Ch. D. 343):—

"Then we come to the Amendment Act of 1878, which was passed to meet a special class of cases, and the history of that Act was this: An application was made before me for the imprisonment of a trustee who had been ordered to pay a sum of money. It was a very hard case, one of an unintentional breach of trust; and though the man was actually dying, I had no alternative but to make an order. Then I had various other cases before me which led me to regret that the Court had no discretion, for it not unfrequently happened that a person who came in strictness under the first class of offences * was not guilty of any moral offence. Under these circumstances I thought it would be wise and prudent that a discretion should be given to the Courts to deal with exceptional cases, but not with the intention of repealing the existing Act. Mr. Marten, being a member of the Legislature, then adopted my suggestion, and procured this Amendment Act to be passed."

* That is to say, the defaults specified in 32 & 34 Vic., c. 62, s. 1.

35. Section 6.—This section empowers the High Court and the Chief Controlling Revenue-authority to make rules for regulating the procedure to be followed in the Courts subordinate to them respectively in inquiries as to the liability of persons to arrest and imprisonment on the ground of fraud or contumacy.

36. Section 7.—This section modifies the operation of enactments authorising arrest and imprisonment for default in compliance with decrees and orders of Civil and Revenue Courts for payment of money.

Clause (a), following the Code of Civil Procedure, limits the term of imprisonment to six months, notwithstanding that section 163 of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1881, authorises imprisonment in certain cases for so long a period as two years.

Clause (b) relieves the decree-holder of the liability to maintain his judgment-debtor while in prison. If imprisonment is retained, not as a mode of enforcing payment but simply as a punishment, it will hardly be possible to continue the liability. This liability existed under the old Insolvency Law in England, and the Act which imposed it was once described as giving the creditor "the power of imprisoning and tormenting his debtor at the expense of 3s. 6d. per week."* If it is abolished, great care should be taken that imprisonment is not inflicted except in cases of misconduct which deserve punishment.

Clause (c) requires that the defaulter, though in the civil jail, shall nevertheless be subject, as nearly as circumstances admit, to the discipline prescribed in the case of a criminal prisoner undergoing simple imprisonment. Where a person is ordered to pay a fine, the nature and term of his imprisonment will be regulated by the general law. This clause relates to the other cases in which a debtor is liable to imprisonment. Those cases, as before observed, all involve some degree of delinquency (L. R. 6 Ch. 157); and the imprisonment contemplated by the Bill, as by the English Act (L. R. 13 Ch. D. 343), is simple, that is, without hard labour. The effect of this clause will be to deprive the defaulter, as a civil prisoner, of the privilege of maintaining himself, and purchasing or receiving from private sources food, clothing, bedding, and other necessaries (Act XXVI of 1870, s. 34).

Clause (d) provides that, except where the arrest or imprisonment is for default in payment of a fine, the defaulter, when once arrested or imprisoned, shall not be released from arrest, or discharged from prison, without the order of the Court. The Court may grant the order or refuse it. If it refuses the order, the defaulter may appeal.

Clause (c) so far modifies clause (29) of section 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure as to admit of an appeal being preferred from an order for imprisonment in execution of a decree.

37. Section 8.—This section follows section 359 of the Code of Civil Procedure in providing that where the Court is of opinion that the defaulter has been guilty of an offence against the Indian Penal Code or any special enactment for the punishment of fraudulent debtors, it may, instead of ordering his imprisonment in the civil jail, send him to a Magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

38. Sections 9 and 10.—These sections contain special provisions with respect to arrest before judgment, and save proceedings taken before the Act comes into force.

39. Section 11.—It has been decided In re Heavens Smith (L. R. 2 Ex. D. 47) that the English Debtors Act of 1869 does not apply to a case in which the defaulter is a debtor to the Crown. It is proposed that the Indian Act shall have the like effect as against the Crown where a decree or order for payment of money is made in its favour by a Civil or Revenue Court, as it will have against a subject.

40. The question of giving the Courts a discretionary power to refuse an order for the arrest and imprisonment of a judgment-debtor, or at least of a female judgment-debtor, will be considered when next the Code of Civil Procedure comes under revision.

LIBERALITY OF BABOO HURIHUR INDUR SAHAI.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—EDUCATION.

Darjeeling, the 18th June 1886.

READ—

A letter from the Commissioner of the Patna Division, No. 341G, dated the 28th May 1886, reporting, for the information of Government, that Baboo Hurihur Indur Sahai, a resident of Manjha, in the district of Sarun, has contributed Rs. 5,000 towards the cost of construction of the "Thompson Goutama Patshala" building in the Revelgunge Municipality, and has also made a free gift to the school of his share of the land on which it is built.

The Lieutenant-Governor tenders his thanks to Baboo Hurihur Indur Sahai for his liberal donation in the cause of education.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and that copies of it be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Patna Division for information and for communication to Baboo Hurihur Indur Sahai, and to the Director of Public Instruction, for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

TRANSFER OF THE MANAGEMENT OF CERTAIN GOVERNMENT COLLEGES TO LOCAL BODIES.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Darjeeling, the 18th June 1886.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

Letter No. 7102, dated 7th November 1885, from the Officiating Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

Letter No. 2877, dated 29th April 1886, from the Officiating Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

Re-read—

Paragraph 10 of the Resolution of the Government of India, in the Home Department, No. 1—60, dated the 3rd February 1882 (under which Resolution the Education Commission of 1882-83 was appointed). Recommendations on the subject of the transfer of the management of certain Government Colleges to the local bodies, contained in Chapter VIII, section 10 of the Report of the Education Commission, and the Resolution of the Government of India, Home Department, thereon. No. 10—309, dated the 23rd October 1884.

Paragraphs 16 and 17 of letter No. 2285T—G, dated 25th September 1884, from the Government of Bengal, addressed to the Government of India, on the subject of the Report of the Education Commission.

Paragraphs 13 and 33 of Resolution No. 10—309, dated 23rd October 1884, by the Government of India, in the Home Department, on the above-named Report.

Paragraph 4 of letter from the Government of India, in the Home Department, No. 323C, dated 28th October 1884.

Paragraph 2 of letter No. 9427, dated 30th December 1884, from Mr. C. B. Clarke, Officiating Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

Paragraph 7 of letter No. 229, dated 15th June 1885, from the Government of Bengal, addressed to the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

The Government of India, in the Resolution appointing the Education Commission of 1882, expressed a desire to offer every encouragement to native gentlemen interested in the subject to come forward and assist even more extensively than they had done previously in the cause of public instruction, considered necessary to secure that freedom and variety which are essential conditions in any sound and complete educational system. The Resolution continues :—

“The Government is ready therefore to do all that it can to foster such a spirit of independence and self-help. It is willing to hand over any of its own colleges or schools in suitable cases to bodies of native gentlemen who will undertake to manage them satisfactorily as aided institutions; all that the Government will insist upon being that due provision is made for efficient management and extended usefulness. It will be for the Commission to consider in what mode effect can most fully be given to these views, and how the grant-in-aid system may best be shaped so as to stimulate such independent effort, and make the largest use of the available Government funds.”

2. The Education Commissioners, in discussing the subject, observed that if, as had been shown, private enterprise even now produces results which are found by ordinary tests to be by no means unsatisfactory, and produces them at an average cost in colleges of one-eighth, and in secondary schools of one-fourth the amount spent on each pupil in departmental institutions, it does not seem unreasonable to hope that it will at some future period meet all, or all except the very highest, educational wants of the community at an expense to public funds that will be little more than nominal. They were in favour of a gradual and cautious withdrawal of the State from the immediate management, as distinguished from the control, of colleges, and their specific recommendations were as follows :—

“That in dealing with the question of the withdrawal of Government from the management of existing colleges, these colleges be regarded as divided into three classes, viz. :—

- (1) Those from which it is premature for Government to consider the propriety of withdrawal on the ground that they are, and will long continue to be, the institutions on which the higher education of the country mainly depends.
- (2) Those that might be transferred with advantage, as a measure promising useful political results, to bodies of native gentlemen, provided the new managers give satisfactory guarantees that the colleges will be maintained (a) permanently, (b) in full efficiency, (c) in such a way as to make it adequate for all the wants of the locality.

- (3) Those which have been shown to be unsuccessful, or of which the cost is not of proportion to the utility, and from which Government might advantageously withdraw even with less stringent guarantees for permanent efficiency. Such colleges should be closed if, after due notice, no local body be formed to carry them on with such a grant-in-aid as the rules provide."

* * * We have therefore no hesitation in recommending that the Government of Bengal be requested to consider the propriety of dealing with the Rajshahye and Krishnagur Government colleges on the principle applicable to the second class, and with the colleges at Berhampore, Midnapore, and Chittagong on the principles applicable to the third class, as suggested by the Bengal Provincial Committee.

3. In the Resolution recorded by the Government of India in the Home Department, under date the 23rd October 1884, on the report of the Commission, it stated that—

"The Government of India accepts the cautious and well considered proposals of the Commission on the subject of the gradual withdrawal of the Government from the charge of institutions of a high order, and especially from colleges. These recommendations are quite in accordance with the policy of Government as explained in paragraph 10 of the Resolution appointing the Commission. It is left to the Local Governments to give effect to the recommendations on this subject gradually and as local circumstances permit. It is, as has been repeatedly declared, in no degree the wish of the Government of India to discourage high education in any way whatever. On the contrary, it believes it to be one of its most important duties to spread and foster it. What it specially, however, desires is to secure assistance to the limited funds of the State by calling forth every available private agency in connection with every branch of public instruction. It is in connection with high education, and in view of the direct pecuniary advantages which it holds out to those who follow it, that the Government thinks it can most properly insist on the fullest development of the principle of self-help."

4. The Lieutenant-Governor took an early opportunity of intimating his agreement with the views expressed upon this subject by the Commission, and of instituting enquiries with a view to give practical effect to their recommendations. An application recently received from Narail, in the district of Jessore, for the establishment at that place of a college on the grant-in-aid system, is receiving the favourable consideration of Government, and it is hoped that such an institution upon an independent basis will be opened before the end of the current year. The colleges of Rajshahye and Krishnagur will be transferred only in case any body of native gentlemen can give adequate guarantees for permanent and efficient management, and as yet no arrangement under such conditions has been possible. It has been represented, with regard to Chittagong, that the town is so isolated and cut off from other centres of education that there are good reasons for maintaining a college in it, whether a local body comes forward to undertake the management or not. In all these cases, while inviting offers from residents of position, it is necessary to wait until public opinion has matured, and the change recommended can be effected with the cordial co-operation of all concerned. In the meantime attention of public officers is drawn to the following passage in the report of the Commission as indicating the attitude they should at present adopt:—

"Of course a Director has no means of compelling private parties to come forward, and in ordinary cases we are not prepared to recommend the closing of departmental institutions which local effort is not willing to provide for. But a Director, and still more a Government, can do much to influence public opinion, and patient persistence in carrying out the policy of withdrawal whenever a suitable opportunity occurs will doubtless make it generally felt in course of time that all should co-operate in such measures who are capable of taking broad and comprehensive views of popular education and its true necessities."

5. The Midnapore College dates its existence from January 1873, when the people of the district, with much public spirit, subscribed a sum of Rs. 60,000 for the purpose of improving the status of the zillah school; and in consideration of this fact Sir George Campbell, in sanctioning the establishment of the college and law classes, fixed the Government grant at Rs. 3,000 a year for the following five years. These classes were to be maintained from a sum of Rs. 3,000 representing interest on endowments, and fees estimated at Rs. 1,200, the Government grant of Rs. 3,000 being devoted to defraying the expenses of the school department alone. The charges properly debitable to the college largely exceeded the estimated Rs. 4,200; and on a redistribution of the expenditure between the two departments in 1878, it was ascertained that, while the College Department was working at a loss of Rs. 1,600 a year, there was an annual profit in the School Department of over Rs. 3,000. The Government grant was then redistributed, Rs. 2,000 being assigned to the college and Rs. 1,000 to the school. The limit of Rs. 2,000 for the college, however, was not very strictly observed, and the Government contribution to the College Department increased, with increase of expenditure, from Rs. 2,077-1-4 in 1880-81 to Rs. 2,850-2-8 in 1883-84. In 1884-85 large reductions were effected, and the Government grant dropped to Rs. 623-8-6 in that year, and to Rs. 406-15-7 in 1885-86. The receipts from interest on endowments and from fees in 1885-86 were Rs. 2,912-10 and Rs. 1,649-11 respectively, or Rs. 4,562-5 together; and as the total expenditure was only Rs. 4,969-4, it appears that the income from these two sources is almost sufficient to meet all the current expenses of this college, the amount contributed by Government during the past year having amounted to little more than 8 per cent. of the whole receipts.

6. The School Department of this institution, known as the Midnapore Collegiate School, has hitherto received a fixed annual grant of Rs. 1,000; and its total income, including the grant, in 1885-86 was Rs. 7,282-1, while the expenditure amounted to Rs. 6,813-14-3. The Municipal Commissioners of Midnapore have now offered to take over the management of the Midnapore College without making any reference to the school; but it has been strongly urged by the District School Committee, whose arguments are emphatically endorsed by the Inspector of Schools and the Director of Public Instruction, that the collegiate school should go with the college. It is represented that they are in fact two departments of one institution, sharing the expenses of a common establishment, viz. the head pundit, the clerk, the librarian, and menial servants; sharing also the same library, and working on the same premises. It is clear to the Lieutenant-Governor that, under these circumstances, division of management would only lead to grave inconveniences; and there appears to be no objection to transferring the school, as well as the college, to local management. The Education Commission recommended that all Directors of Public Instruction should aim at the gradual transfer to native management of Government schools of secondary instruction (including schools attached to first or second grade colleges), whenever the transfer could be effected without lowering the standard or diminishing the supply of education, and without endangering the permanence of the institution transferred. The Commission further advised that the experiment should begin with schools which had already won a high position, and laid down the following test:—"The fact that any school raises more than 60 per cent. of its entire expenditure from fees to be taken as affording a presumption that the transfer of such school to local management can be safely effected." This test, which was accepted as reasonable by the Lieutenant-Governor, has been fully satisfied in the case of the Midnapore Collegiate School.

7. The average sum required from Government by the college during the last two years has been Rs. 514; but the Lieutenant-Governor recognises the fact that the expenditure, especially on contingencies, must vary from year to year, and to provide for possible increases he is willing to allow a net grant of Rs. 600 to the College Department. He is also prepared to continue the present grant of Rs. 1,000 to the School Department. Both grants will be made for three years, after which period they will, if necessary, be revised.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor is assured that the Midnapore Municipality, or a body constituted under section 64 of the Local Self-Government Act, 1885, will be willing to assume the management of both the college and school on the terms above indicated. The Lieutenant-Governor therefore will be glad if the Director of Public Instruction will take the earliest opportunity of giving effect to the transfer of the double institution on the conditions stated in the present Resolution.

9. The Berhampore College was first opened in 1853. It was raised in 1865 to the status of a full college teaching the B.A. course, but in 1872 it was reduced to a lower class, teaching only up to the F.A. standard, on the ground that the Calcutta and Hooghly Colleges would suffice for such of the Berhampore students as might desire a more complete education. In 1879 it was noticed, in the Government Resolution on the Educational Report for 1878-79, that the number of students had fallen to 32, and that each of these cost the Government

Rs. 605 a year—about twice the average expense at a Government college. The question of the abolition of the institution was then taken into consideration; but although it appeared that this step would set free funds which might probably have been employed elsewhere with greater benefit to the educational needs of the province, the Government was unwilling, having regard to the past history of the college, and the feeling of the people of Moorshedabad on the subject, to adopt the extreme measure of final closure. The opportunity was, however, taken to make certain changes in the establishment with the view of at once increasing efficiency and diminishing expenditure. The effect of these reforms was to reduce the cost of education to a nearer approximation to the provincial average, and in 1884-85 the average total cost of educating each scholar was Rs. 376, the cost to Government being Rs. 253.

10. The number of students at the Berhampore College continues to be much the same as in 1878-79, and the proportion of the expense of their education borne by the State is still excessive. The monthly cost of maintaining the institution is Rs. 1,185, and the income derived exclusively from fees is only Rs. 167. In this case no direct offer has as yet been received from any local body to take over the charge of the institution, but it is understood that proposals for that purpose may soon be made. Government will be prepared to give to any responsible and suitable managers the maximum grant-in-aid allowed by the rules, and to make over considerable endowment funds for a hostel, as well as for buildings and for scholarships in connection with the college. There is a school attached to the college, the management of which should be transferred at the same time and on the same conditions.

11. In pursuance of the policy indicated by the Education Commission, and affirmed by the Government of India, it will be necessary, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, to close the Midnapore and Berhampore Colleges if no arrangement can be made before the 1st of May 1887 for the transfer of their charge. It is thus left to those interested to determine for themselves whether these institutions shall continue to exist, and the Lieutenant-Governor confidently anticipates that the public spirit and interest in high education, for which both the important districts immediately affected are remarkable, will be found equal to the occasion.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

The 22nd June 1886.—The following is published for general information.

P. NOLAN,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

CYCLONE OF SEPTEMBER 1885 IN THE ORISSA DIVISION.

No. 840, dated Cuttack, the 7th of May 1886.

From—C. T. METCALFE, Esq., C.S.I., Commissioner of the Orissa Division,
To—The Offg. Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Dept.

WITH reference to your No. 21391—R, dated 3rd November 1885, and subsequent reminders, I have the honour to submit a further report on the cyclone of September 1885, confining my narrative as to the extent of damage done in the districts of this Division.

2. Mr. Grant's report No. 982, dated 25th September, which had been forwarded direct to you, gave details of the injury caused on the northern twenty miles of the coast of his district. He promised a further report about the condition of the rest of his district, and directed the Sub-Divisional Officer of Bhadruck to make enquiries. Since then petitions were received from the tenants of the Government estate Birso, praying for relief on account of loss of their crops. These petitions were enquired into both by the khas tehsildar of Balasore and the sub-divisional officer. As the results of the first enquiries were too speculative in their character to be reported, it was thought best to wait till the loss actually suffered could be estimated by the outturn of the harvest.

3. From the Collector's report it is clear that, of all the other parts of the district of Balasore, the tenants of the Government estate Birso had lost most in crops and cattle. In speaking of the state of the crops on this estate in his letter No. 1096, Mr. Grant then observed:—"What I do know is that half the crop is certainly lost, that about half the rest (one-fourth of the whole) seems safe, and that the other half is doubtful. I say that one-fourth seems safe, because credible persons affirm that even that is not safe. It looks well and flourishing now, but I am assured that, when the moisture around the roots dries up, the small amount of salt it holds will become fatal because of its being then left undiluted."

4. The Government estate (Birso) is situated on the sea-face of the district; a small sketch map of the part of the country in which it lies is herewith annexed. At the northern portion of this tract, the Goomai river crosses the coast canal and falls into the sea. The banks of the canal have been cut away for a length of 1,000 feet to allow the river to pass over it. Immediately to the south of Goomai a sea embankment runs southward along the coast in a direction parallel to the coast for some 12 or 14 miles. To the west of this embankment runs the coast canal embankment, and the Government estate of Birso lies between these two embankments. The bulk of the sea-wave flowed southward between the canal embankment and the sea embankments. These latter prevented the prompt return of the salt water to the sea, and consequently the area between the double banks suffered more than any other part by the wave.

5. After the crops had been harvested, it appeared that most of the tenants in this estate had lost either their whole crop, or at least three-fourths of it. In the way of relief they asked for—

- (1) a remission of the entire rent for the year 1293 F. S.;
- (2) a postponement of the unpaid 3 annas kist for the year 1292 till the beginning of 1294;
- (3) a tuccavi advance of Rs. 1,000 at the time of the harvest.

Of these proposals Mr. Grant refused to admit the second, and I agreed with him that it would be inexpedient to grant remissions of past arrears on account of unforeseen present calamities, which at best are only temporary in their effects. The first and third proposals were recommended to the Board in my letter No. 432, dated 16th February, and sanctioned in their No. 76A, dated 18th March last. Copies of this correspondence are herewith submitted for the information of Government.

6. The report of the khas tehsildar showed that Nuanand also suffered from the effects of the cyclone; but there was very little loss of paddy crops in the estate. Here, as in other parts of the Balasore district over which the cyclone passed, there had been a large number of huts and trees blown down by the wind. In some places the sugarcane plants were uprooted, but the loss caused thereby is reported to have been very slight, and no notice has therefore been taken of it.

7. In addition to the damage done in Government estates as above described, I have received no authentic reports of any other parts of the district having been injured in any appreciable extent by the late sea-wave and cyclone. Happily the greater portion of the sea coast is covered with jungle and is uninhabited, otherwise the loss of life would have been much greater. Happily also the centre of the storm travelled in a narrow track, thus limiting the injury. Some of the tenants of pergunnahs Ankura and Bhera submitted two memorials to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor during his recent visit to Orissa. These were forwarded to me with your memorandum No. 3700—350Fam., dated 28th December last. The tenants complained of loss of other crops and scarcity of fresh water for drinking purposes, &c.

8. The properties situated in these pergunnahs are private properties of zemindars, and although their crops suffered from the violence of the wind, they were not affected by the sea-wave, which was stopped by the embankment of the sea coast canal. Whatever may be the financial result of this canal, it has at least proved of great service in protecting life and property. But for its embankment, hundreds of square miles would have been submerged, with much loss of life and absolute destruction of crops. During my visit to this part of the division after the cyclone, it was remarkable how all the land to the south of the canal looked black and charred, and wherever the salt water had reached, the vegetation was burnt up. The effect of this canal bank shows the advisability of constructing an embankment in Kuldeep and Kurara.

9. In the interior of the Cuttack district, about Jajpur, there was great destruction of trees and houses. Three hundred lives were lost by falling trees, walls and homesteads. The Executive Engineer's house at Aquapada was entirely wrecked, the roof bodily carried away, and some of the masonry pillars destroyed; the Europeans (one a lady) at the time in the house were driven outside, and were for some hours exposed to the violence of the wind and rain. At times they were unable to stand and lay on the ground, moving forward when the wind lulled, and again throwing themselves down when the terrific gusts came.

10. The storm also passed into the Gurjats, the centre travelling into Keonjhar. At Nilgiri, a little to the east of the centre, the storm was a strong gale only; but where the centre passed the destruction of trees in the forest was very great; the roads were completely blocked by fallen timber and rendered impassable even for elephants.

11. It is marvellous how quickly the villages have recovered from the effects of the storm. Trade was for a time suspended, whilst the inhabitants set to work to repair their homesteads, but within a short time few vestiges of the destructive character of the storm remained. Enquiries have shown that nowhere was there such complete wreckage of house property with total destruction of crops as in Kuldeep and Kurara and in part of Koojung.

12. The Government is already in possession of the steps taken to relieve the people by systematic distribution of grain to the survivors, of whom lists were immediately made, and later by advances of money, which are now being given under the orders of the Board and Government. Work was commenced very shortly after the storm-wave in cutting channels from the drinking tanks to draw off the salt water, and in digging out the salt impregnated soil. It was ascertained that amongst cattle, buffaloes suffered more than cows and oxen from want of fresh water; that whilst the latter could, in common with deer, quench their thirst by standing in brackish water, buffaloes could obtain no such relief, and wildly strayed for miles in spite of the efforts of the herdsmen in search of fresh water.

13. No trace of the remains of the houses which stood at Hookeytollah has been found, nor of the treasure chest of the Port and Customs Department. I cannot conceive that the chest could have been washed away. Possibly it may have been stolen. One chest was found with its lid broken in, the work of wreckers immediately after the storm; but it was not the one in which cash was kept, as it stood in a small unused masonry cesspool, which probably accounted for its being left standing. The cesspool had disappeared together with the surrounding soil, of which a depth of five feet was washed away. A new coil of hose was found twisted and deeply buried in the soil. It has also been found that the set of the tide to the northward along the coast deposited hundreds of dead bodies along the sea-face, and amongst them, seven months after the disaster, the body of Mrs. Douglas has been identified by her clothing. It was found some 40 miles away from Hookeytollah.

14. Reference to former correspondence show that Orissa has frequently been visited by storm-waves, and that every ninth year the sea-coast has suffered from the effects of a cyclone.

15. I believe all that could reasonably be done has been done to relieve those who survived. The ready and generous aid given by the Government, by one of the English newspaper presses of Calcutta, and by the Inundation Fund, enabled the district officers to render immediate assistance, while the fortunate circumstance of the Kanika estate being under the Court of Wards has enabled the Board to give continued assistance from funded savings to the royts who had lost everything, which they could not have received if the estate had been in the hands of the proprietor.

During the year 1885-86 the assets of the Fine Funds upon the Bengal Provincial Railways were expended as follows:—

Northern Bengal State Railway.—Schools Rs. 1,367, institutes Rs. 100, amusements Rs. 150, sick employes Rs. 69-6-3.

Tirhoot State Railway.—Schools Rs. 149, institutes Rs. 297-7, amusements Rs. 780, sick and miscellaneous Rs. 361-1, and volunteering Rs. 200.

Dacca State Railway.—Institute Rs. 300.

Nalhati State Railway.—Schools Rs. 49, institutes Rs. 90, sick employes Rs. 23-5-10.

Of the balance at credit of the Northern Bengal State Railway Fund, Rs. 500 represented the balance of last year's loan to the Railway Co-operative Stores Association, which was still outstanding at the end of 1885-86.

RESOLUTION.

In the Resolution on the Fine Fund reports last year, attention was drawn to the necessity of avoiding any undue accumulation of balances, and the Lieutenant-Governor observes in the present reports that on the Tirhoot State Railway and Nalhati State Railway the balances have been reduced. On the Northern Bengal State Railway, however, the balance still shows a tendency to increase, and the Manager should take steps to avoid this. A larger proportion of the assets of the fund on this line may with advantage be spent in providing amusements and recreation for the employes.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, and to the Managers of the Bengal Provincial Railways, for information, and that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

CHITTA, the 21st June 1886.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 18TH OF JUNE 1886.

THE most important feature of the meteorology of the past week has been the formation of a cyclonic storm of considerable intensity at the head of the Bay, and its passage in a north-westerly direction, as far certainly as the Bikaner desert, where the storm was situated on Sunday, the 20th, though at this time it had become very feeble and had almost broken up. By the advance of this storm over the country, the monsoon rains have been brought up to the whole of Bengal, and thus the storm will probably form an important feature in the meteorological history of the year.

From the observations received on Saturday, the 12th June, there were no indications of the existence of the storm; pressure was, however, falling rapidly, particularly at the head of the Bay, and while very light winds were blowing in South Bengal, in the centre and south of the Bay a fairly strong monsoon current was reported. The observations, however, which were received on Sunday, the 13th, showed very distinctly that a feeble cyclonic storm was in process of formation at the head of the Bay. The storm continued to develop, remaining almost stationary on the 14th, and on this day very strong monsoon winds were reported from the whole of the centre and south of the Bay, showing clearly that the storm had intensified. On Tuesday, the 15th, the storm had again intensified still further, and was evidently advancing in a northerly or north-westerly direction, and storm signal No. 6, denoting that a small cyclonic storm was advancing towards the head of the Bay, was hoisted at the signal stations in the river Hughli at 2-30 A.M. of the 15th. On this day the centre of the storm was probably to the east or south-east of False Point, though a considerable distance from land. During the whole of this day it was evident that the storm was intensifying and slowly, but steadily, advancing, and as it progressed it became evident that it would reach the coast not very far from Saugor Island, so at 6-30 P.M. orders were issued to hoist a further signal indicating the advance of the storm towards Saugor Island. The storm centre continued to approach nearer and nearer to Saugor Island during the night of the 15th and the morning of the 16th, and as the storm was evidently of considerable size and intensity, it was thought desirable to hoist the first or warning signal in the Calcutta Port, indicating the existence of a cyclone near Saugor Island, and its probable approach towards Calcutta. This signal is the only one available for the Port of Calcutta to indicate the existence of a storm which is near Saugor and approaching northward, whether the storm be of the most intense kind or of comparatively small intensity.

The storm centre reached the coast to the east of Saugor Island at 7 A.M. on the morning of the 16th, and travelling in a north-westerly direction its centre was a little to the north of that station at 10 A.M. of this day, where the excessively low pressure of 29.106" at 9 A.M. was reported. So far as observations have been received up to the present time, it would appear that the centre of the storm was accompanied by winds which were of very considerable violence, though comparatively little damage was done; but at Mud Point it may be mentioned the violence of the wind was such that it broke the signal flagstaff on which the storm signals are hoisted, so that for the present storm signals cannot be hoisted at that station. From the light-vessel at the mouth of the Mutlah it has been since reported that they were visited by a cyclone on the 16th, so it is probable that the storm centre passed either over this place or close to it, and then advancing in a north-westerly direction to the north of Saugor Island, it passed through the Midnapore district. At 10 A.M. on the 17th the centre of the cyclonic storm was in the south or south-west of Chutia Nagpur, probably to the south-west of Ranchi, while at 10 A.M. on the morning of the 18th the storm was passing from South Behar into the North-West Provinces, the centre being probably to the south-west of Dehree, and on the morning of the 19th the telegraphic report from the Meteorological Reporter of the Government of India at Simla showed that the storm had advanced to Jhansi, and on the morning of the 20th it had advanced to the Bikaner desert, where it finally broke up. The storm therefore travelled over a course of about 1,200 miles, and after it passed over the land, it advanced in a north-westerly direction at the rate of about 200 miles a day.

When the storm centre had advanced well inland, the storm signals which had been hoisted in the Port and in the river were lowered at 4 A.M. of the 17th instant.

The advance of the storm over the land was accompanied by very heavy rain, and in the rear of the storm a very strong advance of monsoon winds took place over the whole Bay, which, following the storm, have caused the rainy season to set in over the whole province. The rainfall has of course been heaviest in the line of the advance of the storm, and some extremely heavy falls of rain are thus reported in South-West Bengal, Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and South Behar, while the rainfall has been lighter in other districts.

The pressure variations during the week have been exceptionally large, for, as before pointed out, the pressure accompanying the storm was exceptionally low, and it is probable that, when detailed information of the storm is received, it will be found that pressure was decidedly below 29 inches at its centre, which is of course exceptionally low. Pressure has consequently been much below the normal, the greatest defects occurring in the path of the storm. Thus at Saugor Island the mean pressure for the week has been 0.159" below the normal, at False Point the defect has been 0.156", and so on. The mean pressure for the whole province has been 0.072" below the normal for the week.

With the heavy rainfall which has attended and followed the advance of the storm, temperature fell with great rapidity from Wednesday, the 16th, but previous to this temperature was largely above the normal in all districts. The mean temperature of the province for the week is thus 1·2° in excess of the normal, while in North Behar the excess has been no less than 4·7° and in South Behar 2·7°.

Rainfall, as stated previously, has been particularly heavy in South-West Bengal, Chutia Nagpur, Orissa and South Behar, while comparatively small quantities have fallen in other districts. In South-West Bengal the average fall for the week is 5·14 inches, which is nearly double the normal fall; in Orissa the fall has been 6·00 inches, the normal amount being 1·86 inches, and thus this district has received three times the normal fall. In Chutia Nagpur the actual fall has been 3·82 inches the normal being 2·47 inches, so that this division has received about one and a half times the usual amount. South Behar reports 3·12 inches against the normal 2·13 inches, or an inch in excess. The other districts have received falls in defect of the normal—thus East Bengal has received 3·90 inches against 5·74 inches, North Bengal 1·90 inches against the normal 4·47 inches, and North Behar 1·31 inches against 2·93 inches, so in each case the fall is considerably below the normal. The heavy rainfall accompanying the advance of the storm is shown by the fact that on the 16th the following stations reported falls exceeding 4 inches:—Balasore, Howrah, Jehanabad; and Cox's Bazar, while ten stations reported amounts between 3 and 4 inches and seventeen stations between 2 and 3 inches. On the 17th 29 stations reported amounts over three inches and 38 stations over two inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 18th of June 1886:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDUM.

DURING the week ending 5th June 1886, the returns of the principal Municipalities in Bengal disclosed the following particulars.

1. That births and deaths were registered in these Municipalities at the rates, respectively, of 14·8 and 20·2 per 1,000 of population as opposed to 17·4 and 22·1 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 29th May, indicating a considerable reduction in the registration of both events.

2. That these events were returned at the highest rates by the following Municipalities :—

Births.			Deaths.
		Ratio per mille.			Ratio per mille.
Gya	...	21·9	Beauleah	...	60·4
Serampore	...	21·6	Patna	...	37·6
Howrah	...	21·2	Comillah	...	34·7
			Bhagulporo	...	29·9

3. That the mortality from the specific death-causes mentioned in the table appended to this memorandum, compared with similar information for the preceding week, stood as follows :—

						Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
						5th June 1886.	29th May 1886.
Cholera	1·4	1·1
Small-pox	·1	·2
Fever	9·4	10·3
Bowel-complaints	3·5	3·6
Injury	·5	·5
Other causes	5·3	6·4

The only noticeable fact revealed by the above figures is that the death-rates from fever and the maladies classed under the head of “ Other causes ” had diminished sensibly.

4. That referring to the diseases mentioned above, excluding small-pox and injury, the mortality from which was nowhere high, and fever and “ other causes ” which proved fatal only in Beauleah and Puri towns at the rates of 55·2 and 16·8 per 1,000 of their populations, respectively, cholera and bowel-complaints caused the highest mortality in the following Municipalities :—

Cholera.			Bowel-complaints.
		Ratio per mille.			Ratio per mille.
Patna	...	4·2	Comillah	...	15·4
Howrah	...	2·8	Patna	...	10·7

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

The total weight of traffic carried during the month under review was 25,652.93 tons against 16,476.45 tons lifted during the corresponding period last year; the net result being an increase of 9,176.48 tons or 55.69 per cent. The increases are principally made up under the heads of Food-grains, Miscellaneous, Piece-goods, Railway material, Salt and Tea, while the decreases have been caused by a falling off in Ginger, Jute, Seed and Tobacco.

INCREASES.

Alc ... 58 tons.
The increase, though small, shows that the demand for Sonada beer is increasing.
Food-grain ... 10,316.09 tons.
A brisk traffic in paddy and rice as usual accounts for this satisfactory result.
Miscellaneous ... 127.26 tons.
This is principally due to large consignments of garden machinery having been despatched to Tea districts.
Piece-goods ... 30.54 tons.
Markets in the interior are being stocked against the rains, and a corresponding falling off later on is expected.
Railway material ... 1,930.25 tons.
Increase is due to larger quantities of material for the Assam-Bihar State Railway and Loco. coal having been carried this month than in the corresponding period last year.
Salt ... 24.40 tons.
The explanation given against piece-goods applies to salt also.
Sugar ... 4.12 tons.
The month's working represents an increase of 4.78 per cent.
Tea ... 57.07 tons.
Crop due to early rainfall.

DECREASES.

Ginger ... 352.08 tons.
There was little doing in the Calcutta market in this staple during the month.
Jute ... 1,899.04 tons.
Calcutta market dull and transactions limited.
Seed ... 666.68 tons.
The market for all descriptions of seeds seems to be more or less dull.
Tobacco ... 396.69 tons.
1,067.42 tons of tobacco were carried during the month under notice against 1,463.91 in the corresponding period last year, showing a decrease of 27.08 per cent.

H 1453.

BOARD OF TRADE (Harbour Department),

March 1886.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

CAUTION TO SHIP-OWNERS AND SHIP-MASTERS.

Failure to give notice or to deliver up certificate of registry when a ship is actually or constructively lost or ceases to be British.

The attention of Masters and Owners is called to the provisions of section 53 of "The Merchant Shipping Act, 1854," which are as follows:—

"If any registered ship is either actually or constructively lost, taken by the enemy, burnt, or broken up, or if by reason of a transfer to any persons not qualified to be owners of British ships, or of any other matter or thing, any such ship as aforesaid ceases to be a British ship, every person who at the time of the occurrence of any of the aforesaid events own such ship or any share therein, shall, immediately upon obtaining knowledge of any such occurrence, if no notice thereof has already been given to the Registrar at the Port of Registry of such ship, give such notice to him, and he shall make an entry thereof in his register book; and except in cases where the certificate of registry is lost or destroyed, the Master of every such ship so circumstanced as aforesaid shall immediately, if such event occurs in port, but if the same occurs elsewhere, then within ten days after his arrival in port, deliver the certificate of registry of such ship to the Registrar, or, if there be no Registrar, to the British Consular Officer at such port, and such Registrar if he is not himself the Registrar of her Port of Registry, or such British Consular Officer, shall forthwith forward the certificate so delivered to him to the Registrar of the Port of Registry of the Ship, and every Owner and Master who, without reasonable cause, makes default in obeying the provisions of this section, shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds."

And notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Board of Trade to institute proceedings for the recovery of the prescribed against any owner or part owner who fails to give the required notice to the Registrar of the Port of Registry of his ship, and against any Master who makes default in delivering up the certificate of registry to the Registrar or Consular Officer, as the case may be, in contravention of this Statutory requirement.

By order of the Board of Trade, this 25th day of March 1886.

T. H. FARRER,
Secretary.

C. GECIL TREVOR,
Asst. Secretary, Harbour Department.

[First Publication.]

NOTIFICATION.

The 24th June 1886.—In supersession of the notifications of the Government of Bengal, dated the 18th August 1879 and 29th November 1881, it is hereby notified for general information that the limits of the Port of Calcutta, and of the navigable river and channels leading thereto, as fixed with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, shall, with effect from the 10th July 1886, be severally as described below.

Port boundaries.

The limits of the port shall be—

On the north.—A line drawn from the boundary pillar at the Cossipore Gun Foundry Ghât to a point on the opposite side at Ghosery.

On the south.—A line drawn from a masonry pillar placed at the mouth of the Budge-Budge khal to a pillar on the Howrah side of the river Hooghly bearing north-west of the first-named pillar.

So much of Tolly's Nullah as lies to the west of a line drawn across the Nullah, 25 feet to the west of Hastings' bridge.

The limits of the port include to the east and west so much of the river Hooghly and the shores thereof as are within 50 yards of high-water mark at spring-tides.

Port approaches. The limits of the navigable river and channels leading to the port shall be—

On the north.—The Port of Calcutta as above defined.

On the south.—A line drawn east and west from the Eastern Channel Floating Light-vessel. All parts of the navigable channels, called the Eastern and Western Channels, and of the river Hooghly, between the said limits and below high-water line at spring-tides.

N. B.—Within the above limits the port and the navigable river and channels leading to the port are subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioners for making Improvements in the Port of Calcutta, under the powers conferred upon them by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 5th April 1875, which vested them with the powers of Conservator of the Port, and by an order, dated the 29th November 1881, which vested them with the powers of Conservator of the navigable river and channels leading to the port.

2. Under the provisions of section 96 of Act V (B.C.) of 1870, all the port dues and fees payable under the provisions of Chapter VI of Act XII of 1875 (the Indian Ports Act) shall, with the exception of hospital port dues and pilotage fees, be received by the said Commissioners with effect from the 1st November 1881.

PORT RULES.

(For the Port of Calcutta within the jurisdiction of the Port Commissioners.)

Under the provisions of Act XII of 1875, the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to sanction the following revised rules to be observed within the Port of Calcutta with effect from the 10th July 1886:—

1. In these rules the word "daybreak" shall be held to mean half an hour before sunrise, and the word "dark" to mean half an hour after sunset.

2. No vessel of the burthen of 200 tons or upwards coming into the port shall proceed above the house of the Superintendent of the Government Botanical Gardens (hereinafter called Garden House), or move from one place to another within the port above ^{the Pillar at Panchmarah} Garden House between sunset and day-break without the special permission of the Commissioners: provided that a vessel which has arrived above Garden House before sunset may at once proceed to a safe anchorage at any part of the port between Tolly's Nullah and Prinsep's Ghât.

3. Steam-tugs having no vessel in tow shall be permitted to enter the port after sunset at their own risk, but they shall not proceed above Chandpal Ghât. Steam-tugs shall be held liable for any damage which they may cause by moving at night.

4. No vessel of the burthen of 200 tons or upwards shall steam, sail, or be towed up on the flood or down on the ebb, within the port above Garden House, without the special permission of the Commissioners; and in cases where such permission is granted, the officers in charge shall be held strictly responsible for accidents which may occur in consequence of their taking the vessels up or down at a greater speed than is absolutely necessary in order to keep them under command; and in every case where such permission is granted, the speed of the vessel shall not exceed four miles an hour through the water.

5. No vessel shall steam, sail, or be towed up on the ebb or down on the flood, within the port above Garden House, at a speed greater than four miles an hour over the ground.

6. Vessels may at all times drop up or down the port above Garden House with their anchors on the ground. Vessels using their own steam power when dropping with the tide shall in no case proceed at a greater speed than is absolutely necessary in order to keep them under command.

* With reference to Port Rule No. 4, the following instruction for the guidance of Assistant Harbour Masters is published for general information:—Assistant Harbour Masters are forbidden, without a special order from the Harbour Master's office, to tow outward-bound vessels until they are below the Lower College Sand Buoy.

7. Vessels entering the port at neap tides during the freshets are permitted to proceed above Garden House at slack-water at a speed not exceeding four miles an hour over the ground.

8. River steamers and tug-steamers having no vessels in tow are permitted to move up on the flood or down on the ebb at their own risk, and at a speed sufficient to keep them under command; but in no case shall the speed within the port above Garden House exceed four miles an hour through the water.

9. All steam-launches, steam cargo boats, steam ferry-boats, and all other small vessels propelled by steam, plying within the limits of the port, shall have their steering gear so placed that the man steering can have a clear look-out ahead.

10. No steam-vessel of the character described in the preceding rule shall proceed at a greater rate of speed than four miles an hour when inside the moorings, and no such steam-vessel shall proceed at a greater rate of speed than four miles an hour anywhere within the port above Garden House after dark. Without the special permission of the Commissioners, no steamers carrying passengers shall be under weigh after dark between the limits of the landing-stages at Hastings on the south and Ahacretolah on the north.

11. Special permission may be given by the Commissioners to ferry-steamers to move in the port otherwise than is prescribed in these rules, due limitation being laid down as to place and hours of plying and speed in each case.

12. No vessel shall have on board, within the limits of the port, more than 25lb of gunpowder as defined in the Act, of which not more than 15lb shall be common gunpowder, with 12 rockets and 12 blue-lights. All powder and combustible ammunition which vessels are by this rule permitted to keep on board shall be stored in a copper magazine out of risk of fire and explosion.

NOTE.—In these rules—

"Petroleum declared dangerous" means petroleum which the master of a ship has declared under rule 12 to be dangerous petroleum.

"Certificated petroleum" means petroleum covered by a certificate granted at the port of shipment, of such description as the Local Government may, from time to time, by written order prescribe, and to the effect that the petroleum is not dangerous petroleum.

"Uncertificated petroleum" means petroleum which the master of the ship has not declared under rule 12 to be dangerous petroleum, and which is not covered by certificate as aforesaid.

"Petroleum reported dangerous" means petroleum stated in a report, signed by the Chemical Examiner to Government and deposited in the office of the Port Commissioners, to be dangerous petroleum.

"Petroleum reported not dangerous" means petroleum stated in a report as aforesaid not to be dangerous petroleum.

13. The master of every ship bound for Calcutta and carrying petroleum shall, before reaching Budge-Budge, declare in writing to the pilot*—

- (a) what quantity of petroleum the ship is carrying;
- (b) whether any, and if so what, part of it is dangerous petroleum; and
- (c) whether any, and if so what, part of it is certificated petroleum.

When the master declares that any petroleum is certificated petroleum, he shall produce to the pilot the certificates covering the same.

14. A ship having on board more than 40 gallons of petroleum declared dangerous shall not proceed upwards beyond Budge-Budge; but such petroleum shall be landed at the petroleum wharf and shall be detained there pending the grant of an import license under section 4 of the Petroleum Act, or the orders of the Local Government for the disposal of the same.

15. A ship having on board more than 500 gallons of certificated petroleum, or more than 40 gallons of uncertificated petroleum, shall not proceed upwards beyond Budge-Budge; but such petroleum shall be landed at the petroleum wharf and detained there till the Chemical Examiner reports that it is not dangerous. This rule shall not apply to petroleum which is ordinarily used for lubricating or jute-batching purposes, and which has a flashing-point above 150° by Abel's test. On the master of a vessel producing a certificate that the petroleum which he has on board is all of this description, the ship may be brought up to the jetties and her cargo discharged in the ordinary manner, but the Commissioner of Police shall be entitled at any time to obtain samples of such petroleum for the purpose of having them tested.

16. A ship having on board only certificated petroleum, not exceeding 500 gallons, may proceed to any moorings in the Port of Calcutta, and there discharge the petroleum.

17. (1) When, under the provisions of rules 14 and 15, any petroleum has been landed at Budge-Budge, the Superintendent of the petroleum wharf shall, within as short a time as possible, not exceeding 48 hours from the time of the petroleum being landed, obtain samples of the petroleum so landed.

* The pilot should deliver this declaration to the Harbour Master or his assistant when the latter comes on board.

(2). Every different quality of petroleum shall be separately sampled, and when petroleum is certified to be of uniform quality, a sample shall be taken from not less than one case in every 10,000 cases.

(3). The Superintendent shall forthwith seal the receptacles containing the samples, and having labelled them with the name of the ship, the name of the consignee, and such other distinguishing marks as he shall deem necessary, shall forward them to the Chemical Examiner to Government.

(4). The Chemical Examiner having tested them shall, within 24 hours after the receipt of the samples, sign a report declaring that they are or are not dangerous petroleum (as the case may be), and shall forward that report to the office of the Port Commissioners, sending a copy of it at the same time to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta.

18. Petroleum which has not been reported under the last proceeding rule not to be dangerous petroleum shall not be removed from the wharf except in accordance with a license granted under section 4 of the Act, or under an order of the Local Government.

19. When the petroleum declared dangerous on board a ship amounts to more than 40 gallons, and is not covered by an import license granted under section 4 of the Act, and the master desires to proceed above Budge-Budge, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, grant to any person a license to possess that petroleum at such place for such time and subject to such undertaking by such person for the re-exportation of that petroleum at the expiration of that time as it thinks fit; and may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, permit that petroleum to be landed and delivered to that person in such manner and subject to such conditions as it thinks fit.

20. Nothing in the foregoing rules applies to petroleum imported from the United Kingdom in iron drums, as part of a general cargo when the certified flashing point of such petroleum by Abel's test is above 80° Fahrenheit, provided that the quantity imported in any one ship does not exceed 2,000 gallons. A ship carrying only petroleum of this description may enter the port without any restriction, so far as the above rules are concerned, and discharge its cargo in the ordinary manner. The Commissioner of Police shall, however, be entitled at any time to obtain a sample of such petroleum for the purpose of having it tested.

21. Nothing in the foregoing rules applies to petroleum comprised in a ship's stores and manifested as such, provided it is not of unreasonably large amount. If any question arises as to whether any petroleum manifested as ship's stores is of an unreasonably large amount, the decision thereon of the Port Commissioners shall be final.

Transportation by boat.

22. When petroleum reported not dangerous is transported by boat within the port—

(1) it shall be transported only after sunrise and before sunset, and in quantities not exceeding 5,000 gallons in one boat;

(2) no smoking, fire, or light of any description shall be allowed in any boat during the time the petroleum is on board the boat.

23. The Harbour Master and his assistants shall not be interfered with in the execution of their duty. After a vessel is moored, she shall not be moved without the permission of the Harbour Master.

24. All vessels within the port shall take up such berths as may be appointed for them by the Commissioners or the Harbour Master, and shall move from one berth to another when ordered to do so; but this rule shall not apply to vessels when moving within the port between Budge-Budge and Garden House in charge of a pilot.

25. Vessels arriving in port with coal or other cargo likely to cause nuisance shall not proceed above Garden Reach moorings without special orders, and shall discharge their cargo from whichever side the Harbour Master may direct, and shall also adopt such measures as he may order for the abatement of the nuisance arising from the discharge.

Vessels in the stream to keep a clear hawse.

26. All vessels moored in the stream shall keep a clear hawse.

Moorings not to be occupied without Commissioners' permission.

27. No vessel shall use any of the moorings, whether fixed or swinging, without the permission of the Commissioners.

28. All vessels lying at swinging moorings shall during the freshets (15th June to 31st October.) in addition to their bower chain, have the end of a good hawser also fast to the ring of the moorings.

29. All applications to be hauled into or cast off from the moorings, or for any other assistance, shall be made either personally or by letter to the Harbour Master. Applications will, as far as possible, be complied with in order according to date of receipt.

30. All vessels on arrival in the port shall rig in their jib and driver booms, and shall keep them so rigged in until the pilot takes charge of the vessel for the purpose of taking her to sea. They shall also strike their yards and masts when ordered by the Commissioners. Vessels proceeding to the jetties shall remove all boats and other projections likely to damage the jetties and cranes.

31. From the 1st day of May until the 30th day of June, and from the 1st day of October to the 15th day of November, all vessels in the port shall have their royal and top-gallant yards on deck, and mast-ropes rove in readiness to send the top-gallant masts down at short notice when required, that is, when the storm warning signal (ball) is displayed; and shall send down their top-sail yards and house top-masts when the storm signal (drum) is hoisted, or when ordered to do so by the Commissioners. Vessels about to leave the port may send their top-gallant yards aloft 24 hours before leaving the moorings. Vessels entering the port between the above dates, having top-gallant masts and yards aloft, may be placed in moorings, and the top-gallant yards of such vessels shall be sent down within 24 hours after they are moored.

32. On the occurrence of signs of an approaching cyclone, a black drum will be hoisted during daylight from the flagstaff on the roof of the Port Commissioners' Office, Koilah Ghât, another from the flagstaff opposite the Government Dockyard, Kidderpore, and another at the petroleum wharf at Budge-Budge. During the night, under similar circumstances, two bright lights in a vertical line will be exhibited from the same flagstaffs. When these signals are displayed, masters of vessels shall immediately take every additional precaution in their power to make the vessels snug and secure; they shall stow their top-gallant masts on deck below the rails, and shall have awnings furled, and the lower and topsail yards counterbraced or pointed to the wind, if not struck. The cables shall be bent to both lower anchors when possible.

STORM SIGNALS.

	Day.	Night.
This signal means cyclone probable, look out, send down royal and top-gallant yards, rove mast ropes, furl awnings.	A black ball ...	Three lights in a vertical line.
This signal means cyclone approaching, carry out the instructions laid down in Port Rule No. 31.	A black drum ...	Two lights in a vertical line.

33. A free channel of not less than 200 yards in width shall be kept for ships moving up or down the river in the port, and also free passages to piers, jetties, landing places, wharves, quays, dock, and moorings; and all vessels shall move when ordered to clear such channels or passages.

34. The river between the lower buoy of the College Sand and Metteabrooj Ghât shall be kept clear for turning inward or outward-bound vessels, and no vessels shall anchor within these limits. Between the College Sand and Tolly's Nullah vessels cannot anchor without infringing Port Rule 33. All vessels intending to anchor in Garden Reach shall be moored below Metteabrooj Ghât moorings in a clear swinging berth, as close to the south bank as the length and draught of the vessels will admit. Inward-bound vessels proceeding above Metteabrooj Ghât shall moor in the stream between Prinsep's Ghât and Tolly's Nullah, leaving the clear channel of 200 yards prescribed by Port Rule 33.

35. From Garden House to Fultah Reach on the river Hooghly a deep navigable channel, not less than 200 yards in width, shall always be left clear for the passage of sea-going vessels, and between the hours from daylight to dark no fisherman shall obstruct the same by mooring or casting a stake-net therein. At Sankrail, Peer Sarang, and below Budge-Budge, where the deep water channel lies close to the shore, land marks have been erected to define the channel to be left clear, and no fishing boats shall be moored, nor nets of any description cast, between the line indicated by these marks and the shore. Between the hours from daylight to dark no stake-net nor drift-net shall be cast by fishermen in any part of Garden Reach within port limits.

36. Vessels lying in the stream, or at the moorings, shall at all times have at least one anchor at the bow, with a cable bent and ranged ready to let go.

37. All vessels placed in the moorings on the ebb-tide shall during spring-tides, when bores are expected, have their best hawsers passed from each quarter pipe abaft the main-mast, and made fast to the stern moorings if possible; otherwise to their own chains close to the moorings, and have taut with sufficient strain to relieve the jerk on the chains and bitts when the bore comes up.

38. No vessel within the port above Garden House shall have any anchor or spar, or other substance likely to cause damage, projecting from her side.

39. All vessels anchored in the stream within the port shall exhibit between sunset and sunrise, when it can best be seen, but at a height not exceeding 20 feet above the hull of the vessel, a white light in a globular lantern of eight inches in diameter, and so constructed as to show a clear, uniform, and unbroken light visible all round the horizon and at a distance of at least one mile. Vessels under weigh at night shall show the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade's Regulations.

10. All coasting vessels, cargo-boats, bhurs, budgerows, up-country boats, and passenger boats, when under weigh on the river after dark within the limits of the port, shall carry a white light in a lantern in the forepart of the vessel, where it can be distinctly seen; and all steam-vessels shall show, when under weigh, the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade's Regulations.

41. Steam-vessels occupying moorings shall not turn their screws or paddles without giving sufficient warning of their intention to do so to boats in the vicinity; they shall not put full power on when trying their engines in the moorings, nor shall any trial under steam be permitted so long as a vessel is lying at the jetties.

42. No person shall smoke or use naked lights of any description in the hold or between-decks of any vessel lying in the port, or in any dock within the port. Closed lanterns, burning candles or vegetable oil lights, secured by lock and key, and in charge of an officer of the vessel, shall alone be taken between-decks or into the hold.

43. Fires shall be permitted only in galleys or fire-places regularly constructed for the purpose; such fires to be kept alight only between daybreak and 9 P.M. Cooking fires shall not be allowed on board of vessels in dock.

44. All gunpowder shall be landed before a vessel is put into dock.

45. The proprietor of every dock shall keep on the premises a good fire-engine, with serviceable hose and fire-buckets ready for immediate use with a supply of water at hand.

46. With a view to the extinction of fires, all vessels in port shall be provided with three buckets for every hundred tons of registered measurement up to 600 tons, and two additional buckets for every hundred tons above 600, provided that the total number of buckets shall not be required to exceed 50 in any vessel. One-half of the number of such buckets shall be left constantly hanging up on the quarter-deck or other convenient place.

*47. When fire has broken out in any vessel, the officers in charge of all vessels in neighbouring moorings or anchorage shall furl their awnings, get their force-pumps ready for use, and prepare for shipping their cables and chains, seeing specially that the pins of the shackles can be immediately knocked out.

48. The riverbank being a place of public resort, masters of vessels in moorings shall have the forecastles and heads of their vessels screened in, so as to avoid indecent exposure.

49. No vessel shall lie at single anchor in the port unless a pilot or assistant harbour master is on board. No vessel shall leave the port shall hoist the blue-peter at the fore at least 24 hours before leaving the moorings, and shall keep it hoisted until the pilot takes charge of the vessel to take her to sea.

51. With the exceptions hereinafter noted, no vessel of or exceeding 200 tons burthen shall, without the special sanction of the Commissioners, move up or down the port through the ship opening of the Hooghly Bridge, except such vessel is propelled or towed by steam against the tide, and then only at such rate of speed, not exceeding four miles an hour over the ground, as is absolutely necessary to keep good steerage way. No river steamer shall pass through the opening with more than two vessels in tow.

Exceptions.—Tug and river steamers, when not towing or propelling other vessels, may drop through the bridge opening, under steam, head to tide.

River flats may be dropped or warped at slack water through the ship opening, or through the 60-foot opening.

52. No steam-vessel shall attempt to pass any other vessel proceeding in the same direction whilst between the pontoons of the Hooghly Bridge.

53. No steam-vessel shall have in tow more than two cargo-boats when proceeding through the bridge opening with the tide.

54. All steam-vessels, when passing through the bridge opening, shall sound their whistles as a warning to other vessels.

* For the better security of vessels against damage or loss by fire, a steam floating fire-engine has been provided, and is always kept under steam, ready to proceed at once to any place where her services may be required. The fire-engine station is at Fort Point, where the vessel is moored, and where a look-out is kept day and night. In case fire breaks out on board a vessel, notice should at once be sent to the fire-engine station.

Penalties.

55. Any person committing an infringement of any of the foregoing Port Rules shall be liable to the penalties prescribed by the Act.

Special rules for regulating the discharge and loading of gunpowder on ship-board.

56. All inward-bound vessels carrying gunpowder, the total quantity of which is in excess of 25lb, of which not more than 15lb shall be common gunpowder, with 12 rockets and 12 blue-lights, are prohibited from proceeding above Budge-Budge, and the master of any vessel lying within the port, or in the river above Budge-Budge, which shall have on board any gunpowder in excess of 15lb shall be liable to the penalty provided in section 34 of the said Act XII of 1875; provided that boats will be permitted to bring as far as Neemuck Mehal Ghât, under cover of a pass to be granted by the Commissioners, 50lb of gunpowder, the property of dealers and consignees.

57. All such gunpowder in excess of the prescribed quantity must be landed and deposited in the magazine at Moyapore.

Vessels not to enter port with excess powder on board.
Powder to be landed at magazine.
Magazine keeper to take charge.

58. The magazine-keeper will take charge of the gunpowder immediately on its being conveyed to the shore at Moyapore, and will deposit it in the magazine.

59. For the convenience of vessels having gunpowder on board, a properly constructed powder-boat will be always in attendance off the magazine for landing and shipping powder. No charge will be made for the use of the boat for landing ship's powder, but the responsibility of the keeper in respect of the powder will not commence until it is landed on the bank, and will cease as soon as it is shipped on board the boat. Every precaution will be taken to ensure the safety of the powder while in the boat, but the landing and shipping is at the risk of the vessel.

60. Vessels bringing consignments of trade or Government powder will be liable to pay landing charges for the use of the boat if the magazine boat is used, and should passing vessels require the use of the boat to put out or receive ship's powder, such vessels must be accommodated before the boat can be used to discharge powder or ammunition brought as cargo.

61. In order to avoid unnecessary detention, masters of vessels requiring the use of the powder-boat are required to hoist a flag at the fore-topmast head on coming in sight of the magazine, as a signal to the keeper to have boat and coolies in attendance.

62. Masters of vessels are required to mark the names of their respective vessels on the barrels and packages of gunpowder previously to their being landed, and, if not marked, they will not be received by the magazine boat.

Artificial lights prohibited.

63. Gunpowder shall not be landed or received into the magazine when artificial lights are required to be used.

64. The magazine-keeper shall give to the master, or other person making the deposit, a receipt for the number of packages, and he shall be accountable to such master or other person for the redelivery of such packages.

65. A native clerk will be always in attendance in the powder-boat, and will receive from the master the declaration required by section 30 of the Act, and grant the receipt specified in the foregoing rule.

66. If any vessel shall be prevented, by stress of weather, or by being in distress, from landing or depositing such gunpowder in excess of the quantity allowed as aforesaid, such vessel may be permitted to come up to the lower limits of the port, but shall not proceed above Metteabrooj Ghât, and the master of such vessel shall forthwith give notice to the Harbour Master of his having such gunpowder on board, and shall obey his directions relating to the same.

67. Masters of vessels outward-bound, who may require gunpowder for their outward voyage, shall not take gunpowder on board in any part of the river above Budge-Budge, with the exception of a quantity not exceeding 25lb, of which not more than 15lb shall be common gunpowder, with 12 rockets and 12 blue-lights.

68. Masters of vessels who have deposited ship's powder at the magazine should inform the Harbour Master of the date on which the vessel will pass the magazine outward-bound, and on receipt of this information orders will be forwarded to the keeper to place the powder in the boat, and send it off in such time as to avoid any detention of the outward-bound vessel. Before delivering the powder, the receipt granted by the magazine-keeper must be given up.

69. Delivery of powder into boats at the magazine for conveyance to Calcutta will only be granted upon orders issued from the office of the Port Commissioners.

Delivery from magazine into boats.

70. No boat containing powder shall be allowed to proceed above Neemuck Mehal Ghât. All powder shall be landed at Neemuck Mehal Ghât, and no powder shall be landed at any other ghât, except with the special permission of the Commissioners.

71. The two foregoing rules shall not apply to Government powder-boats, which will be allowed to enter the port and discharge their powder under the rules laid down by the Inspector-General of Ordnance.

72. No smoking and no fire or light of any description shall be permitted on board of any boat having gunpowder or combustible ammunition on board.

Place of landing powder from boats.

73. No powder shall be landed within the port at any time when artificial light is required to be used.

SPECIAL RULE.

74. The provisions of sections 38, 39, 40, and 41 of the Indian Ports Act XII of 1875 have been specially extended to the Port of Calcutta and the approaches thereto, under the provisions of section 3 of the Act.

Government powder exempted.

No lights or fire allowed on boats carrying powder.

Landing after dark prohibited

Position of Sunken Wreck.

MR. G. MACKERNES, Commanding the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamship Kilwa, whilst on his voyage from Calcutta to Bombay, via Coast ports, discovered the British barque Sir Henry Davelock, which had been burnt on the 1st June 1886, sunk, in a position dangerous to shipping, in the Narrakel roadstead.

The wreck lies in about 5 fathoms, portions of the spars showing just above water sufficient to mark the spot, and he gives the following bearings:—

Narrakel flag-staff	E. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N.
Cochin light-house	S. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ S.
The Cruz Milagre gap	S. E. by E.

The bearings are magnetic.

A buoy painted green has been placed two cables to westward of the wreck.

The Master-Attendant, Narrakel, directs vessels approaching the anchorage at night to bring the light to bear about E. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. in 6 to 7 fathoms, and run in on that bearing and anchor in $4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 fathoms of water.

BOARD OF REVENUE, L.P., FORT WILLIAM, the 1st June 1886.

NOTIFICATION BY THE ACCOUNTANT-GENERAL, BENGAL.

STOCK CERTIFICATES.

As it does not appear to be generally known that Government Promissory Notes can be readily converted into Stock Certificates and re-converted into Promissory Notes at the option of the holders, and that Stock Certificate-holders enjoy certain special advantages, the attention of holders of Government Securities is drawn to the following particulars:—

1. Government Promissory Notes can be converted into Stock Certificates and re-converted into Promissory Notes at any time at the option of the holder.

2. The holders of Stock Certificates are not required to present them in person or by agent when the interest becomes due. On application made, interest will be paid to Stock Certificate-holders by warrants on any Government Treasury, which warrants will be sent by post, on the day the interest falls due, to the Stock Certificate-holders direct, or through the Treasury Officer, as they may desire.

3. Stock Certificates are not negotiable by endorsement, and are consequently of no value in the hands of a wrongful holder, and the risks arising from the possession of, or repeated transmission of, negotiable Securities, are thereby avoided.

4. In the event of the loss of a Stock Certificate by theft, fire, &c., a fresh Certificate will issue on satisfactory evidence of loss.

NOTE.—Further particulars can be obtained on reference to the Public Debt Offices, Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay.

PART IB.

ORDERS BY THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL.

NOTIFICATION.

The 26th June 1886.—The following draft rules under section 138 (i) of the Local Self-Government Act III (B.C.) of 1885 are published for general information. They will be taken into consideration on the 1st August 1886.

Rules for keeping accounts of District Funds under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, 1885.

GENERAL.

1. All the accounts and registers prescribed in these rules shall be maintained in English. All books of account and registers shall be substantially bound and paged before being brought into use, and no accounts shall be prepared on loose sheets of paper, or in loosely bound volumes.

2. All corrections and alterations in accounts shall be neatly made in red ink, and attested by the initials of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman. Similarly, all alterations and corrections in a voucher shall be attested by the payee. Erasures shall on no account be permitted in registers, statements, vouchers, or accounts of any description.

WORKS.

3. All works shall be divided into two classes, original and repairs—

(1) Repairs shall include all operations required to maintain works in proper condition.

(2) Original works shall comprise all works which do not come under the classification of repairs.

4. A separate estimate shall be sanctioned for every entry under the heads of "original works" and "repairs" in the annual estimate of income and expenditure.

5. No expenditure shall be incurred on any works until estimates have been sanctioned by competent authority, and the necessary funds have been formally allotted for their execution.

6. Except in case of emergency, or to prevent damage or loss, no work shall be put in hand until an estimate for carrying it out has been sanctioned by competent authority.

7. A revised estimate shall be prepared immediately there is reason to anticipate that an estimate will be exceeded by more than 10 per cent. of its total amount, or where considerable alterations of the original estimate are desired, and it shall be submitted for the approval of the authorities whose sanction would be necessary if it were an original estimate. If a work for which a revised estimate is required cannot be stopped, pending approval to the revised estimate, the approving authorities shall be at once informed of the changes proposed, and their consent shall be obtained to the continuance of the work: if this is refused, the work must be stopped.

8. A supplementary estimate shall be prepared when the additional work required is in excess of Rs. 600, or of 5 per cent. of the original estimate.

9. The cost of every survey or preliminary operation other than those which can be carried out by the paid district establishment shall be considered to be a "work," and shall be covered by a sanctioned estimate, and a specific assignment of funds.

10. On the completion of any work, a completion report shall be submitted by the District Engineer to the Chairman; and any deviation from the design and estimate that may have been made during the construction of the work must be fully explained in it: when the completion report relates to a work which requires the approval of the Inspector of Local Works or higher authority, the Chairman shall send it to the Commissioner of the Division through the Inspector of Local Works. The Commissioner shall either return it to the Chairman for record, or take such further action as he may consider necessary.

RATES OF WORK.

11. In order to secure proper rates it is necessary that measurements of work done should be fully and carefully made, and District and Local Boards shall take care that this is done.

12. It is of great importance that there should be some relation between the district and provincial rates of works. The Provincial Superintending or Executive Engineer will accordingly furnish District and Local Boards with rates of such provincial works as are executed in the district, and the District Board should furnish the Superintending Engineer with a list of the District Engineer's rates, and with any variations therein that are made from time to time. Both the Divisional Commissioner and the Inspector of Local Works should pay particular attention to this subject, in order that only the lowest rate for which work can be efficiently done may prevail in either the district or division.

BUDGET ESTIMATE.

13. The Collector shall, at such date as the District Board shall fix, prepare and transmit to the District Board a statement showing the estimated balance of the District Road Cess Fund (supposing the cess to be levied at the rate fixed by the District Board for the current cess year under section 46 of the Act), which will be available for transfer to the credit of the District Fund during the financial year next ensuing.

14. A budget estimate in Form No. I, showing the probable receipts and expenditure of the District Fund during the ensuing financial year, shall be prepared by the Finance Committee, constituted under section 55 of the Act, and laid before the Board at a meeting to be held not later than the 1st of February of each year.

The estimate shall set forth the estimated revenue and expenditure under major and minor heads of account only, and it shall be accompanied by a schedule in Form No. II, in which shall be entered the full details of the estimated revenue and expenditure, working up to the totals shown under the different minor heads of account in Form No. I.

15. In the schedule of receipts full details should invariably be furnished of the estimated revenue from rents of serais and staging bungalows, fees and forfeitures and miscellaneous.

16. As regards expenditure, the schedule should give the details of all establishment and contingent charges, specifying the rate and amount of salary to be drawn by each class of employé.

17. The estimated outlay for the year on each original work and repair shall be distinctly shown, and in the case of original works the total estimated cost for the whole work, and the total estimated outlay on each work up to the close of the current year shall also be given.

18. The distinguishing numbers of the roads and works shall always be stated, and no allotment shall be made for any work not included in the district list of roads and works.

19. Tools and plant should also be detailed, distinction being made between new supplies, repairs, and carriage.

20. The detailed estimates of works and repairs approved by the District Board, and, if necessary, by higher authority, shall be attached to the budget estimate.

21. In framing estimates care should be taken to estimate for the retention of a reasonable working balance of cash in hand at the close of the year. The amount may usually be placed at one quarter's road cess kist for each District Board.

22. Each District Board shall forward to each Local Board subordinate to it an extract of so much of the budget, as sanctioned, as shall be necessary to convey full information of the works, services, &c., to be executed or maintained by such Local Board.

23. No change shall be made in the major or minor account headings prescribed by Government, and the same account headings shall be used in all accounts and returns prepared or issued by District Boards.

The minor heads of account may be sub-divided in the Cash Abstract registers as may be found convenient, but all returns, &c., shall be compiled by totals of minor heads.

24. In preparing the budget estimate attention shall be given to the following point:—

- (a) What is expected to be paid (under proper sanction) during the year shall be provided for, not the liability falling due within the year.
- (b) For fixed charges the detailed estimates shall show the full amount of the sanctioned scale: when it is found by experience that a saving will arise from any causes, a lump deduction may be made.
- (c) The number of employes shall be carefully stated in the detailed estimates, and checked; the rate of pay shall be stated, wherever possible, in order to admit of verification of the column of charge.

25. The pay of mallees attached to inspection bungalows may be estimated for under the head of "Repairs."

TRANSACTIONS WITH TREASURY.

26. The District Fund shall be lodged with the Collector of the district, who shall keep a separate account thereof.

27. The Collector of the district shall in like manner keep a separate account of the funds placed at the disposal of Local Boards.

28. District and Local Boards shall not appropriate towards expenditure any moneys received by them, but shall immediately send them intact to be credited in the treasury.

29. All money paid into a treasury to credit of the District Fund shall be accompanied by a challan in Form No. III, bearing the signature or initials of the Chairman, or of some other officer duly authorized to act on his behalf. This challan should show clearly the nature of the remittance, and should name the person through whom the payment is made.

30. All moneys remitted to the treasury by District Boards, and all payments made by the treasury by cheques or otherwise on account of the District Board, shall be entered in a pass-book; the pass-book shall remain in the custody of the Vice-Chairman of the District Board, and it shall be sent to the treasury with every remittance, and also on the last working day of every month. On receipt of the pass-book by the treasury officials the entry of the remittance made (if any) shall be initialled by the treasury officer, and then the charge side shall be written up to date, and the book returned at once to the office of the District Board.

The pass-book will be supplied by the treasury. It is not a District Fund account book, but is simply a copy of the account kept in the treasury of the money paid into the credit of, and taken out by, the District Board, and must therefore always be written up only by the Government Treasury Department, by whom the original account is kept.

31. No entries or marks may, under any circumstances, be made in the pass-book by any one connected with the District Board's office.

32. At the close of each month the balance in the pass-book shall be struck, the amount written in words, and signed by the treasury officer.

33. The account of each Local Board will be posted by the Sub-Divisional Officer concerned in a separate pass-book, in which will be credited only the amount placed at the disposal of the Local Board from time to time by the District Board (see Rule 92).

34. Moneys paid into sub-divisional treasuries on account of the District Fund are not to be credited in the sub-divisional pass-book of the Local Board; but, when they are incorporated in the sudder treasury account, they will be entered in the sudder pass-book. Local Boards should report all such receipts to the District Board, so that the latter may watch for the credits in their pass-book.

35. When a grant-in-aid has been sanctioned by Government, it should be drawn from the treasury upon a bill signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the District Board, and with the bill should be forwarded a copy of the order of Government sanctioning the grant-in-aid: the amount should at once be credited to the account of the District Board, no money passing out of the treasury.

36. Whenever a District Board is authorized by the Government to receive advances from the treasury, it will be permitted to overdraw its account at the treasury to the amount of the authorized advance, and special instructions on the subject will be issued from the office of the Accountant-General on each occasion.

37. The amount of the balance of the District Road Cess Fund to be transferred to the credit of the District Fund will be entered in the pass-book at the close of each month. A separate intimation of the amount so transferred will be at the same time forwarded by the Collector to the Chairman of the District Board.

38. The Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall examine the pass-book from time to time, and see that all receipts and payments are duly entered therein: any alterations or corrections which he thinks should be made in the pass-book can only be made by the treasury officer at his instance, and, of course, not unless they are in accordance with fact and with the treasury accounts. No signature or acknowledgment of correctness will be taken from the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, but he will be understood to accept the pass-book as correct, unless he makes any specific objection to an entry or takes measures to have it corrected.

39. The treasury officer shall supply the Chairman, immediately after the close of each month's accounts, with a balance certificate in the following form:—

Abstract of District Fund Account for the month of

in the Treasury of

	Rs.	A.	P.		Rs.	A.	P.
1. Balance brought forward from last month ...				4. Debited in cash account of this month ...
2. Credited in cash account of this month ...				5. Other debits, as per Accountant-General's No. , dated ...
3. Other credits as per Accountant-General's No. , dated ...				6. Balance at end of month
GRAND TOTAL ...				GRAND TOTAL ...

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.

40. All payments on account of the District Fund shall be made by the Collector out of the said fund upon cheques signed by the Vice-Chairman for sums not exceeding one hundred rupees. When the Vice-Chairman is absent, or is from any cause incapacitated from signing, the Chairman shall sign such cheques on behalf of the Vice-Chairman.

41. Cheques for sums exceeding one hundred rupees shall be signed both by the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman; when the Vice-Chairman is absent, or from any cause incapacitated from signing, such cheques shall be signed by any ex-officio member of the Committee other than the Chairman, on behalf of such Vice-Chairman.

If the Chairman be absent or unable to sign cheques in conjunction with the Vice-Chairman, he may delegate this duty to some member of the Board other than the Vice-Chairman.

42. Cheque-books will be supplied to Chairmen of District and Local Boards by the officers in charge of Government treasuries and sub-treasuries.

43. On receipt of a cheque-book from the treasury, the Vice-Chairman shall count the cheques therein contained, and the cheque-book shall remain in his custody.

44. No cheques shall be signed unless required for immediate delivery to the person to whom the money is to be paid.

45. Every cheque shall be drawn in English in favour of the person to whom the money is actually due. Payments shall not be made to any other person except on production of a written authority from the creditor to receive it on his behalf. This rule does not apply in the case of a cheque issued for a sum of money distributable as pay or wages among a number of District Fund employes, or in recoupment of the imprest.

46. The amount of every cheque shall be written in words as well as in figures, both on the cheque itself and on the counterfoil, and the counterfoil shall be initialled by the person or persons who sign the cheque. The word "only" shall always be inserted after the amount written in words in the body of the cheque.

47. Every cheque drawn for a sum in excess of Rs. 20 shall bear a receipt stamp of the value of one anna, and such receipt stamp shall be affixed before the cheque is signed.

48. When a signed cheque is cancelled, it shall be stamped "cancelled" by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman. The cancelled cheque shall be destroyed as soon as the accounts for the month in which the cheque was drawn have been audited. The amount of the cancelled cheque shall be entered as a receipt on the debtor side of the cash-book (Form No. IV) and shall be treated as a refund (see Rule 73).

49. Petty payments of Rs. 20 and under from the Committee's Office may be made out of an imprest to be granted to the Vice-Chairman. The imprest may be recouped at any time, and hence need not exceed Rs. 30 or Rs. 40 in amount.

50. It will usually be found necessary to grant an imprest to the District Engineer also. The amount of this imprest will vary in each district in accordance with the difficulty of communication between the spot where works are being carried out and the office of the District Board, but it shall in no case exceed Rs. 1,000. No large payments shall ordinarily be made by the District Engineer out of his imprest. Such payments shall, except under unusual circumstances, be made by cheques upon bills and certificates countersigned by the District Engineer.

51. The amount of each imprest, subject to the limit imposed in the preceding section, shall be determined by the District Board.

The Vice-Chairman or other officer to whom an imprest is granted will be held personally responsible for the safe custody of such portion of the imprest as is at any time unexpended.

VOUCHERS.

52. Every bill or other claim for payment from the District Fund shall be presented in the first instance to the Accountant, who will check and examine it, and if it be found correct and in order, will submit it for orders to the Chairman or Vice-Chairman. If payment of the bill so presented is to be made, an order for the payment shall be endorsed on the document, that is to say, on the bill presented by the person who prefers the claim. The order for payment shall run as follows:—"Pay Rupees or (Rs.)," the amount being written in words as well as in figures, and the order shall be signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

53. If the bill is to be liquidated out of the imprest, the Vice-Chairman shall, before signing the payment order, see the bill stamped with the words

"Paid in cash," in conspicuous type, and shall then make it over to the Accountant for payment. If the bill is to be liquidated by issue of a cheque, it shall be made over to the Accountant, and shall be stamped (both in original and duplicate, see Rule 111) with the words "Paid by cheque No. " in conspicuous type.

54. In the former case the amount shall be entered as a debit in the separate Petty Imprest Account to be kept by the Accountant, and in the latter case, as soon as the cheque is signed, in the appropriate column of the District Fund Cash-Book Form No. IV (see Rule 65).

55. Every payment made, either in cash or by cheque, shall be covered by a receipt, stamped if necessary, signed by the person to whom the money is due, and to whom it has actually been paid. A receipt signed by another person for the creditor, or with a stamp, is invalid.

56. The pay of the District Fund establishment shall be drawn on Public Works Department Bill Form No. 39, and every District Fund employé on the permanent establishment shall give a receipt in the Acquittance Roll in Public Works Department Form No. 37, for the sum paid to him.

57. Under section 33, proviso (2) of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, the aggregate salaries and allowances, in any one financial year, of the establishment employed by any District Board for the purpose of heading (D), Public Works, of Part III of the Act, shall not, without the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, exceed 20 per centum on the total amount available for expenditure by such Board upon public works during the financial year.

58. In calculating the percentage the salaries of all establishments (permanent or temporary) employed by the District and Local Boards for the execution of public works shall be taken into account.

59. One bill, whether for establishment or other charges, shall ordinarily only contain details of charges to be taken against one of the budget heads in the cash abstract register of expenditure Form No. VI and in the register of monthly expenditure Form No. VIII (see Rule 76). If, however, it be convenient that a bill be presented which contains charges against more than one such head, the Accountant shall enface in red ink on the bill itself, above the payment order, the details of the apportionment of the charges. These details shall be also shown in the "Head in cash abstract" column of the cash-book.

60. All bills and vouchers that have been paid shall be numbered consecutively for the year in order of payment, and shall be pasted in a guard-book.

Sub-vouchers for payment made out of the imprest, however, shall be filed separately, and shall be attached to the periodical account to be submitted when the imprest is recouped (see rule 67).

CASH-BOOK.

61. The District Fund cash-book shall be maintained in Form No. IV. The receipt entries in this book will be made direct from the pass-book in regard to amounts credited direct to the Fund by the Collector of the District (see Rule 37). In regard to other receipts, the cash-book shall be posted as soon as any money is received in the District Board's office, irrespective of the fact as to whether the money is immediately remitted to the treasury or not.

No money collected by District Board officials shall be remitted direct to the treasury, but only through the District Board's office.

62. Expenditure will be entered in the cash-book, day by day, as cheques are signed.

63. As entries are made in the cash-book, the head of receipt or expenditure on account of which the entry is made shall be posted very briefly in the column provided for the purpose.

64. The cash-book shall be closed and balanced monthly, and shall be signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman at the close of the month in token of the correctness of all the entries made therein. In the event of any cheques issued during a month remaining uncashed by the treasury at the close of the month, there will necessarily be a difference between the balance brought out in the cash-book and that of the treasury pass-book, and of the certificate issued by the treasury officer under Rule 39. This difference shall be explained by a note in the last page of the cash-book for the month in the following manner:—

	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
Balance as per cash-book		5,047	15	6
Add cheques uncashed—
No. 4, dated 10th April 1886 ...	50	0	0
„ 23 „ 21st „ „ ...	40	0	0
Balance as per pass-book		5,137	15	6

IMPRESTS.

65. The amount of all imprests will be charged off at once in the cash-book as soon as cheques are granted, and will be debited to the head “Advances” and posted into the advance ledger Form No. IX (see Rule 77). The advances will remain at the personal debit of the officers to whom the imprests have been granted until they are repaid.

66. Whenever it becomes necessary to recoup an imprest, the Accountant shall copy out the details of the charges in the counterfoil of the form, make an abstract in red ink of the different heads of account to which the charges are to be taken, and submit the account itself, supported by the sub-vouchers, for the signature of the District Engineer or Vice-Chairman as the case may be. The sub-vouchers shall in all cases be passed by the District Engineer or Vice-Chairman previous to payment.

67. The District Engineer's imprest account shall be scrutinized by the Vice-Chairman, and if found correct and in order, the latter shall pass the account and issue a cheque for the amount of the same. The cheque in recoupment of the imprest shall be drawn in favour of the District Engineer, and the abstract of the charges alluded to above shall be copied into the “Head in cash abstract” column of the cash-book.

No entry will, of course, be made in the advance ledger, or on the receipt side of the cash-book when an imprest is recouped.

CASH ABSTRACT REGISTERS OF RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE.

68. All the entries on the receipt side of the cash-book (Form No. IV) shall be posted direct from the cash-book into the cash abstract register of receipts, Form No. V, and all the entries on the payment side of the cash-book shall be posted into the cash abstract register of expenditure (Form No. VI).

The cash abstract registers shall be posted as frequently as may be convenient, but in no case later than ten days after the close of the month to which the accounts relate.

69. Each item of receipt or payment appearing in the cash-book shall be posted separately into the cash abstract registers. Thus if there be two or three payments on the same day on account of the same head of expenditure, there will similarly be two or three entries under the same head in the cash abstract register, i.e., the separate items appearing in the cash-book, and not the totals of the daily receipts or expenditure for each head, shall be posted into the cash abstract registers.

70. The columns of the cash abstract registers shall be totalled every month, and the totals of the different heads of receipt and expenditure must necessarily be equal to the totals of receipts and payments in the cash-book.

ADJUSTMENTS.

71. At the foot of each month's account in the cash abstract registers of receipts and expenditure (Forms Nos. V and VI) two lines are left blank for the purpose of entering therein, and bringing upon the books of the District Fund, the adjustments made during the month.

72. Adjustments are transactions which have to be recorded in the monthly and annual accounts of the District Fund, but which are not actual cash transactions, and which therefore do not in all cases appear in the District Fund cash-book.

73. Adjustment are of four kinds—

- (1) The transfer from one head to another of items of receipt or expenditure wrongly classified in the first instance in the cash abstract registers.
- (2) The transfer of a sum of money from the head "Advances" to a head of expenditure for work done by a contractor or other person, the said contractor having originally been granted an advance to enable him to carry out the work.
- (3) Refunds of revenue received or of expenditure incurred during the current year of account.
- (4) The debit to a head of expenditure by credit to "Deposits received" of a sum of money due on a contractor's bill, but not paid, being retained as a security deposit for the due execution of future works.

74. In case (1) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column for the head to which the amount is to be added, and again in red ink in the line for "Adjustments by deduction" in the column for the head from which the amount is to be deducted. Both entries will be made on the cash abstract register of receipts if the amount is to be transferred from one head of revenue to another, and both will be made in the cash abstract register of expenditure if the amount is to be transferred from one head of expenditure to another.

In case (2) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column of the cash abstract register of expenditure for the head to which charges on account of the particular work executed are to be taken, and in the cash abstract register of receipts in the line for "Adjustments by addition" under the head "Advances recovered." A corresponding entry must of course be made on the receipt or credit side of the advance ledger (Form No. IX) of the person by whom the work was executed, and to whom the amount adjusted was originally advanced.

In case (3) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the line "Adjustments by deduction" in the column of the cash abstract register of receipts or expenditure for the head to which the amount refunded was originally credited or debited and in the cash abstract register of expenditure or receipts in the line for "Adjustments by deduction" in the column for "Refunds."

This procedure, however, shall not be followed when the refund made during the month is on account of revenue received during a previous year of account. In this case the amount refunded will remain at the debit of the head "Refunds," and no adjustment shall be made.

In every case of refund of revenue a note of the refund shall be made against the original entry of receipt in the cash-book or other register, so as to guard against a second refund of the same amount being accidentally made.

In case (4) the adjustment shall be made by entering the amount in the cash abstract register of expenditure in the line for "Adjustments by addition" in the column for the head to which the balance of the charges of the bill from which the deduction has been made has been taken, and in the cash abstract register of receipts in the line for "Adjustments by addition" under "Deposits received."

75. Adjustments made by deduction in the cash abstract registers shall always be exhibited in red ink.

REGISTERS OF MONTHLY RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURE.

76. These registers will be in Forms Nos. VII and VIII. Form No. VII (Receipts) will be posted, month by month, from the cash abstract book of receipts, and the quarterly and annual total will give the figures for the quarterly and annual statement required to be prepared under section 54 of the Act.

The report shall contain full details as to the total sum of money misappropriated, the method in which the embezzlement was effected, the absence of any rules by which the fraud was facilitated, and the steps taken to punish the offender.

REGISTER OF SECURITY DEPOSITS OTHER THAN CASH.

83. Security deposited in cash shall be credited at once in the cash-book of the District Fund to the head "Deposits received," and paid into the treasury like revenue. All other forms of security, such as Government paper, Savings Bank balances deposited under the rules in the Postal Guide, bonds for landed property, and the like, shall be recorded in a register in Form No. XI. When the security is surrendered, the depositor shall give a receipt in the column provided for the purpose.

ABSTRACT OF ADVANCES AND DEPOSITS.

84. At the close of every month abstract accounts shall be prepared of the advances made and adjusted, and of the deposits received and refunded during the month, and the balances remaining unadjusted.

85. The abstract of advances shall be prepared in Form No. XII, and the abstract of Deposits in Form No. XIII. In the column for remarks reference shall be given to the number of the bill upon which the whole or a portion of an advance has been adjusted (see Rule 78), or from which any sum has been deducted on account of security deposit (see Rule 81).

SERVICE BOOKS.

86. As, under section 35 of Act III of 1885, the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, it is within the competence of District Boards, subject to the approval of Government, to make rules regulating the grant of pensions and gratuities out of the District Fund, it is advisable, whenever such rules shall have been made and approved, that District Fund employes be required to keep up Service Books.

87. The opening page of the Service Book should be divided for entries in the following form :—

- (1) Name.
- (2) Race.
- (3) Residence.
- (4) Father's name and residence.
- (5) Date of birth by Christian era, as nearly as can be ascertained.
- (6) Exact height by measurement.
- (7) Personal marks of identification.
- (8) Signature of officer.
- (9) Signature of Vice-Chairman.

The entries in this page should be renewed or re-attested at least every five years.

The remaining pages should be divided for entries in the following form :—

- (1) Name of appointment.
- (2) Whether substantive or acting.
- (3) If acting, state the substantive appointment.
- (4) Pay.
- (5) Acting allowance.
- (6) Date of appointment.
- (7) Signature of officer.
- (8) Reference to any recorded punishment or censure, or reward or praise of the officer.
- (9) Signature of Vice-Chairman.
- (10) Date of termination of appointment.
- (11) Reason of termination (such as promotion, dismissal, &c.)
- (12) Signature of Vice-Chairman.

All the headings in the Service Book should be printed both in English and in the vernacular.

88. Service books should be maintained by every District Fund officer or servant in permanent employ. Every appointment, leave of every description (except casual), every period of suspension from employment, and every other breach of service should be noted in them, the date of the beginning and end of every employment or absence being certified at the time by the signature of the Vice-Chairman. The Service Book should be a contemporary record in minute detail of a person's official career.

The Service Books should be kept in the custody of the Vice-Chairman.

RECEIPTS ON ACCOUNT OF DISTRICT POUNDS.

RENT OF DISTRICT BUILDINGS, LANDS, CANALS, &c.

89. Separate registers shall be opened to show the details of each source from which periodical District Fund revenue is derived, for which there is a fixed monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, or annual demand.

The registers shall have columns to show—(1) serial number; (2) name or number of pound, building, plot of land, &c.; (3) term of lease; (4) name of lessee; (5) amount of monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, or annual rent; (6) number of bill; (7) initials of Vice-Chairman; (8) date of payment; (9) remarks, together with columns for any other particulars, which the special circumstances of the case may render necessary.

90. Whenever the number of buildings, land, &c., is large, it will be necessary to prepare a periodical abstract of opening balance, demand, realizations and closing balance, so that the Vice-Chairman may be enabled to exercise an efficient check over the outstanding dues.

ESTABLISHMENT SANCTION REGISTER.

91. In order that an efficient check may be maintained on the salaries drawn every month by District Fund employes, an establishment sanction register shall be maintained in Form No. XIV, separate pages being allotted to each class of establishment. In this register shall be entered details of every change in the scale of establishment employed by the District Fund, together with a reference to the resolution of the District Board in which the necessary sanction was granted.

LOCAL BOARD'S ACCOUNTS.

92. Funds shall be obtained by a Local Board in the following manner:—

An intimation shall be sent to the sub-treasury, near which the Local Board is situated, of the assignment or allotment made to it by the District Board, and the Local Board shall be allowed to draw cheques upon that sub-treasury up to the limit of the allotment for the year.

Each Local Board shall keep an account of its transactions with the treasury in a cash-book in Form No. IV. On the receipt side of the cash-book shall be posted the amount of the assignment granted by the District Board, and on the payment side shall be posted details of the cheques drawn by the Local Board against that assignment. The cash-book shall be closed and balanced monthly and signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Local Board, and, as soon as possible after the close of each month, the Vice-Chairman shall forward to the Chairman of the District Board a duly authenticated copy of his cash-book, supported by the original vouchers, so far as are obtainable.

The Local Board's transactions, as exhibited on the payment side of the copy of their cash-book, will be scrutinized and passed by the Vice-Chairman of the District Board, and, if found correct, will be at once incorporated into the cash-book and other accounts of the District Board.

93. In the generality of cases exact accounts and vouchers will not easily be obtainable from zemindars, indigo and tea planters, and headmen of villages to whom moneys have been advanced for repairs to village roads. In such cases the money will ordinarily be advanced on receipt of a statement of the proposed works, and the estimated cost of doing them, and, instead of accounts, certificates shall be demanded from the persons to whom money has been advanced, that it has actually been expended on the purposes for which it was given. A register shall be kept up in District and Local Boards' offices to exhibit what advances have been authorized, and it shall have columns to show the date of advance, the name of the person to whom the advance has been made, the name of the work or roads on which the money was to be spent, and the date of the certificate of completion of the work, together with columns for such other particulars as may be found necessary.

94. District and Local Boards shall arrange to have a certain percentage of such works inspected after completion; such inspection being carried out, not by a low-paid official, who might do harm, but by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, or by some responsible member of the Board.

TRAVELLING ALLOWANCES.

95. Travelling allowances may be granted to officers, paid from the District Fund, at rates not in excess of those allowed to officers of equivalent position in the service of Government.

MONTHLY ACCOUNTS FOR THE ACCOUNTANT-GENERAL.

96. At the close of every month a monthly abstract of receipts and charges, extracted by totals of minor heads from the registers of monthly receipts and expenditure (Forms Nos. VII and VIII) shall be prepared by the District Board in Form No. XV. The memorandum on the first page A of the Form showing the balance of the Fund, will simply be a repetition of the memorandum as explained in Rule 64 in connection with the cash-book, reconciling the balance of the cash-book with the balance of the pass-book.

The account shall be despatched to the Accountant-General, Bengal, not later than the 25th of the month following that for which the accounts are due.

The Accountant-General will prepare a quarterly statement of the receipts and expenditure of each District Fund for publication in the Gazette.

AUDIT.

97. The Finance Committee appointed under section 55 of the Act shall audit the accounts before they are submitted to the Accountant-General, and shall certify the result and the correctness of the account as audited by them. The certificate shall be given in Form No. XV.

98. District Fund Accounts shall be periodically examined by the Examiner of Local Accounts in Bengal and his assistants. The Examiner of Local Accounts will see that the accounts are kept up according to the prescribed system and in the authorized forms, and that a due check is maintained against any possible fraud or other irregularity.

The reports of such examinations shall be forwarded by the Accountant-General, Bengal, to the Chairmen of the District Funds, showing in what respect, if any, the accounts are found to be deficient or defective, and the Chairmen shall without delay have such deficiencies or defects rectified. Copies of the reports shall, if the Accountant-General thinks necessary, be forwarded to the Commissioners of the Division and to the Collectors of the Districts concerned.

DISTRICT ENGINEER'S ACCOUNTS.

99. As the District Engineer is always located at the station where the District Board's office is situated, it is unnecessary for him to have a separate cash chest, and consequently it is not necessary for him to keep a separate disburser's cash-book, or to render disburser's accounts. His duties in respect to payment will, as far as possible, be confined to passing certificates and bills for payment, at the District Board's office, to the persons to whom money is actually due.

100. Imprest cash-books shall be kept in Public Works Department Form No. 3. If necessary, the District Engineer may be permitted to give a small sub-imprest to any subordinate for the disbursement of contingent charges to be recouped from his own imprest.

District Engineers shall invariably obtain the consent of the Chairman of the District Board before making any of their servants sub-imprest-holders.

101. All expenditure disbursed by the District Engineer and his subordinates should be met, as far as possible, from the imprest; any miscellaneous receipts, such as the sale proceeds of materials or produce, fines or refunds, realized by the Engineer or his subordinates, should not be allowed to accumulate, but should be remitted, as soon as received, to the District Board's office, and should not be passed through the imprest cash-book. Such remittances should be entered with the necessary details in a challan-book under the initials of the District Engineer, and this book, with the cash, should be sent by the District Engineer to the District Board's office to be receipted and returned to him.

102. Works should be carried out, as far as possible, either by contract or by piece-work. Such work should be paid for on certificates in Department Public Works Form No. 14 for contract work, or No. 15½ for piece-work.

103. If daily labour is employed, muster-rolls should be kept and filed with the subordinate in charge, to be inspected by the District Engineer. Sircars, pēons, chowkidars, and other petty establishment specially employed for particular works, though charged as daily-labourers, should be paid monthly on acquittance rolls.

104. All materials purchased should be vouched by bills or purchase lists (Public Works Department Forms Nos. 18 and 19).

105. The expenditure on each work should be brought together in a day-book (Department Public Works Form No. 6D, half sheet, would appear most suitable). The day-book should show the expenditure on the work, the quantity of work done, and the rate of work on each item. The expenditure should be posted from details contained in the vouchers as passed by the District Engineer.

A reference should be given on the day-book to the number of page in the register of works.

106. Duly authorized establishment charges should be brought forward in monthly bills, which should, when practicable, be paid directly from the District Board's office, proper receipts or acquittance rolls, Public Works Department Form No. 37, being taken from the recipients.

107. It must be borne in mind that there is no such suspense head as "Stock" provided for in the District Fund accounts. The manufacture and keeping of "Stock" should be avoided whenever it is possible to purchase good material as it is required; and as the works paid for from the District Fund will be chiefly road work, any materials required must necessarily be for some particular road, and should therefore be charged as "material at site" against the estimate for the work. In exceptional cases, if material cannot be charged as at "site," the value must be charged in the account of "advances," a sub-head being opened for each description of material.

108. Road metal should be accounted for as in the Public Works Department (Form No. 33).

109. Measurement and note books (Public Works Department Forms Nos. 1M and 2M) should be kept by the District Engineers and their subordinates. As the measurement book is the basis of all accounts of quantities, whether of work done by piece-work, petty contract or contract, the entries therein should be carefully made from the official note-books of sub-divisional officers and their assistants. From the measurement book, all quantities should be clearly traceable into the accounts, and it should show clearly the progressive measurement, i.e., the total quantities executed up to date on account of each work. The measurement book should, as a rule, accompany the sub-divisional officer's bills, and it should be carefully compared with the latter, and also with the details in the sanctioned estimate. Any differences due to errors, excess quantities, unauthorised items of works, should be at once enquired into, and the District Engineer should initial the measurement book in token of its having been checked and examined up to date, and that it is a complete record of each kind of work done, for which certificates have been granted.

When note or measurement books are issued, the name of the subordinate to whom issued and the date should be noted on the book, and attested by the signature of the District Engineer. A list of all books issued should be kept in the District Engineer's office in view to their being promptly recalled and filed when done with.

110. The documents and accounts to be submitted by the District Engineer to the District Board's office will be as below detailed :—

- (a) Duplicate of imprest cash-book, with vouchers, submitted from time to time, as recoupment is required, or at not longer intervals than once a month, even if the imprest is not fully exhausted, in order that the disbursers' payments may be brought into the accounts of the month during which they have been made.
- (b) Certificates or bills for work executed, or materials supplied after being duly checked and certified to for payment.
- (c) Bills for all establishments duly certified to for payment.
- (d) A day-book for each work and repair in progress during the month.
- (e) A schedule or list of the day-books showing the amount of each.

111. All bills and certificates should be prepared and signed in duplicate. In the case of those to be paid in the District Board's office, the original, after being certified to as correct by the Engineer, should be returned to the payee for presentation at the District Board's office for payment, the duplicate being sent by the Engineer direct to the District Board's office by way of advice. After payment the original should be filed in the District Board's office as a voucher for the payment, and the duplicate should be returned receipted to the District Engineer for his guidance in respect to further certificates, but no payment should be made on these bills and certificates unless supported by an acknowledgment by the officer or subordinate concerned that the work has been efficiently done, or the supplies received, as the case may be.

112. The books to be kept in the District Engineer's office, besides the imprest cash-book, will be—

Register of bills passed.	Register of road metal.
Register of works.	Account of advances.
Register of tools and plant.	Account of deposits.

113. In the register of bills passed should be entered all bills and certificates received in the office, as well as the details of imprest accounts sent by sub-imprestholders for recoupment. The book should be ruled in columns to show—1st, date of receipt; 2nd, number of bill; 3rd, for what work or service; 4th, name of payee; 5th, amount of bill as presented; 6th, amount of bill as passed for payment; 7th, date of return of original bill to payee; 8th, date of receipt of duplicate from the District Board's Office after payment; 9th, number of the day-book in which the charge is included.

114. The register of works should be in Public Works Department Form No. 25. This document should be considered the next most important record to the cash-book, and care taken that it is posted with perfect accuracy and that the entries for each work are strictly in accordance with the sanctioned estimate. In addition to entering the item of work, each sub-head in the abstract estimate should be numbered, and the corresponding numbers entered in the register, thus—No. 1, excavation; No. 2, earthwork; No. 3, soling, &c.

It often happens that expenditure is incurred on items of work not provided in the sanctioned estimate, and in such cases the amounts should be separately shown in the work register, and not charged off against any other sub-head on which there may be a saving.

In the case of original works and repairs, no item of estimate under Rs. 200 should be separately detailed in the register of works, and no work or repair estimated to cost less than Rs. 2,500 should be accounted for by sub-heads, except in certain exceptional cases where the District Engineer may desire it.

When a work is completed, a double line in red ink should be ruled below the last entry, and the following note made:—"Work completed and completion report forwarded to the Chairman with No. _____, dated _____."

115. The registers for tools and plant and for road metal (Forms Nos. 30 and 33) should be kept similarly to those of the Public Works Department, that is to say, the expenditure on tools and plant should be entered in the register in the same manner as works and repairs. Each item, whatever may be the amount, should be shown in detail, and at the end of every half-year account should be taken by a responsible officer, who should certify the fact in the body of the register, any difference in balance at the end of the half-year between the figures of the columns "As per this return" and "Actual as counted" being fully explained.

116. It should be observed that advances for district road works are treated differently from "advances to contractors" in the Public Works accounts: in the Public Works accounts such advances are charged to works direct; in the District Fund accounts all advances are charged to the separate suspense account of "Advances," which account is credited with value of work done, supplies received, or labour performed, as the case may be. The account of deposits is similar to the account in use in the Public Works Department.

117. As all advances to contractors and others should be made from the District Board's office, and all deposits should be paid direct into that Office, the accounts of advances and deposits to be kept in the District Engineer's office are but memoranda for the guidance of the District Engineer in issuing certificates for payment. The accounts may be kept in the Public Works Form No. 29, appendix T, a separate folio being opened for each account, which should be balanced monthly.

118. District Engineers shall submit their accounts so as to reach Vice-Chairmen not later than the 10th of the month following that to which the accounts relate.

119. The offices of District Engineers will be periodically inspected by the Inspector of Local Works, who will report to the Magistrate of the District and to the Commissioner of the Division whether, in the execution of works and in the keeping, preparation, and submission of accounts, District Engineers conform to all the rules laid down for their guidance.

R. H. WILSON,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.
